DIVIDED COURT HEARS DEBATE ON UTILITY LAW

Dissenting Opinion on 'Yardstick' Sure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The right of the federal government to dole out millions of dollars of taxpayers' money, go into the electric power business and destroy private enterprises, on the pretext of establishing "yardstick" rates, was debated before a divided United States Supreme court this afternoon.

On the basis of questions from the bench during the arguments of counsel, it is a safe assumption that there will be a dissenting opinion in the case of the Duke Power company against Greenwood county, South Carolina, and PWA Administrator Harold L. Ickes, whichever way it goes.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis, one of the three most frequent dissenters on the "liberal" side, plainly indicated a predilection in the government's favor, while Justice James Clark McReynolds unmistakably was on the other side. The other justices asked just as many questions, but not in such form as to indicate a position on the question of the government going into business.

Newton Baker Presents Case.

Newton D. Baker, who was secretary of war in President Woodrow Wilson's cabinet, presented the major argument for the power company, while John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924, sat near by as an interested onlooker.

For the government the chief speaker was Jerome Frank, a brain trust lawyer who was "purged" from the department of agriculture because of his radical activities and who appeared in this case as special assistant attorney general.

Regardless of the outcome of the case, it would be an ironical circumstance if Justice Owen J. Roberts, author of the famous opinion invalidating the AAA, should hold against the government. Federal Judge John J. Parker of South Carolina, who held Secretary Ickes' power financing activities unconstitutional, was rejected by the United States senate as an arch-conservative when President Hoover nominated him to the Supreme court bench. Justice Roberts was named instead of Judge Parker, and now will pass upon one of his decisions.

Case May Be Remanded.

There is a possibility that the case may be remanded for further consideration without a decision by the Supreme court, because of a procedural question which occupied much of the argument. The Circuit Court of Appeals reversed Judge Parker on motion of Secretary Ickes when a modified contract was presented, but Judge Parker refused to reopen the case, holding that the changes in the form of the contract did not alter the fact that the government was doing an unconstitutional thing. The Circuit court reversed him a second time for not granting a rehearing and the power company appealed to the Supreme court.

The suit grew out of a 3 million dollar loan and grant which Mr. Ickes made to Greenwood county out of his original 3 billion 300 million dollar public works fund under title II. of the NRA. The power from the plant proposed to be constructed was to be sold to present customers of the Duke Power company, whose rates are regulated by the state public service commission.

"Threatened with Extinction."

"This company," declared Mr. Baker, "is threatened with extinction, not upon any evidence such as the court requires that the rates are too high, but because the federal administrator, with the treasury open to his hands to the extent of 3 billion 300 million dollars, has made up his mind that he wants to reduce those rates."

Justice Brandeis, in a long, hypothetical question, wanted to know whether the county could be enjoined from constructing its own power plant and going into competition with private industry if a wealthy individual had made a donation for that purpose.

"Obviously not," said Mr. Baker "but the question of rates charged by a local utility is no concern of the federal government."

Justice Brandeis then asked whether counsel had given any consideration

WORLD PEACE IS ARMISTICE DAY KEYNOTE HERE

Chicago prepared to observe the eighteenth anniversary today of the end of the nation's most costly martial experience, the "war to end war," in a spirit of determination that America must avoid the next world war. This determination was as much a keynote of the Armistice day ceremonies as was the honor paid to the men who fell in France and those who returned.

Maj. Gen. Charles E. Kilbourne, commander of the Sixth corps area, chose "The Hope of Peace" as his topic yesterday before the Rotary club luncheon in the Hotel Sherman. He listed seven factors which have made wars in the past and threaten to make wars today, and seven factors which make for peace.

What Makes Wars.

These, he said, are factors which make wars: the fact that conflict is a law of nature; treaties, which postpone wars but do not stop them; religious differences; dammed up preparedness, such as existed in Germany in 1914; pressure of increased population; unequal distribution of natural materials; racial jealousies and hatreds.

On the credit side of the peace ledger he listed: the end of feudal and tribal conflicts; increased periods of peace, which demonstrate its benefits; the fact that men no longer war over religion; educational efforts toward peace of the league of nations, disarmament conferences, and the Kellogg peace pact; democracy, which prevents class war; improvements in fair dealing between nations, tending to wipe out old hatreds, and the tremendous cost of modern war.

The greatest of these factors, Maj. Gen. Kilbourne said, is democracy. When the people have their hand on the throttle of government a nation is less likely to go to war than when a dictator announces, "We fight." Nevertheless, he declared, the odds in the world today are still heavily in favor of war.

Treaty Brings Awakening.

The treaty of Versailles provided the disillusionment of the noble motives and high ideals with which America entered the "war to end war," Rear Admiral John Downes, commander of the Ninth naval area, told members of the Chicago Engineers' club yesterday at a joint luncheon in their clubrooms with the Castle post of the American Legion and the Chicago post of the Society of Military Engineers.

"Some of us are militarists, some are pacifists, but I think all of us hate war," declared A. Copeland Callen of Urbana, president of Kiwanis International, at a meeting of the North Central Kiwanis club in the Drake hotel, attended by Chicago consular representatives of foreign nations.

Hold Programs in Schools.

The meaning and causes of war were stressed on the special Armistice day programs held yesterday throughout the Chicago public school system. Schools will be closed for the holiday today, as will banks, public buildings, and security and commodity exchanges. Stores and business houses generally will remain open, however.

Armistice day observances in the loop, ending with the minute of silence as crowds face east at 11 o'clock, will center at the same two spots where they have been held in recent years, State and Madison streets and the La Salle street entrance of the city hall.

Allies to Take Part.

Organizations of veterans who fought in the forces of America's allies in the world war will participate, for the first time, in the celebration at State and Madison streets. A parade, starting at the Goodman theater in Grant park south of Monroe street, will precede the ceremonies.

Units which will march in the parade will include the Carson-Pirie-Scott, Marine and Mandel Brothers posts of the Legion, with their musical units, detachments of the Illinois National Guard and naval reserves, Allied World War Veterans, Polish Legion, and the Queen Elizabeth Belgian Drum and Bugle corps. Firing of a rifle salute to the dead and the sounding of "Taps" will conclude the ceremonies.

Seamen Tieup Extends Grip on 2 Coasts

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Pacific coast's maritime strike blockade tonight caused a federal officer to abandon attempts to carry out a court order to unload perishable cargo, and other complications threatened government peace efforts.

In Los Angeles United States Marshal Robert Clark reported he was unable without using "coercion" to unload a $10,000 banana cargo from the strikebound liner California, as directed in a court order by Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick.

Clark, refused aid from union strikers, said that he found 2,500 cubic feet of miscellaneous cargo, not mentioned in the libel or order, on top of the bananas and that he was "unable to get, without coercion, competent persons willing or able to operate equipment" for unloading the fruit.

Seek New Peace Parley.

Assistant Labor Secretary Edward F. McGrady met shipowners in efforts to arrange new peace conferences with unions, but he made no statement after the conference.

Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, representative of the United States maritime commission, announced a four imes postponed investigation into the coast's maritime situation would be resumed Thursday at 2 p. m.

Observers indicated belief this meant federal conciliators felt further peace negotiations useless at present, although no official would comment. Admiral Hamlet delayed the hearings to allow, as he expressed it, ample opportunity for the unions and employers to negotiate peace terms.

In Seattle the strike committee announced a 48 hour "truce" starting at 8 a. m. tomorrow, during which union men will remove from Seattle piers cargo placed there prior to midnight, Oct. 29, when the strike was called.

Food Shortages Grow.

Fresh food shortages grew in Alaska and Hawaii. Honolulu strikers refused to sail seven ships homeward unless promised concessions which employers said were "out of the question." The impasse there caused Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter to ask McGrady's aid, saying the tieup left 1,729 additional persons to feed from diminishing fresh food supplies.

Violence marked the sympathetic walkout in New York, where a seaman was slashed in a fight and three other men were held.

The crew of the Grace liner Santa Maria, consisting of 141 men, quit their vessel and joined the strike as the liner arrived from Valparaiso, Chile.

The strikers there claimed their rank and file walkout was holding firm against efforts of "regular" seamen's union officers to put down the walkout movement. They claimed 247 ships were tied up on the Atlantic and gulf coasts and that 18,221 men were on strike.

Owners Discount Claims.

R. U. Baker, president of the American Steamship Owners association, said a survey of the shipping situation in New York late today yielded the following figures:

A total of 79 ships in port; 24 of them undergoing repairs; two of them idle since before the strike started; 38 with scheduled sailing dates, discharging, loading or awaiting cargoes; five held up owing to the west coast strike, and 10 idle wholly or partly because of the strike there.

Baker said 14 vessels, all of American registry, with 825 men aboard, sailed from New York today, making a total of 142 with 9,402 men since the strike began.

LABORITE HINTS AT KING'S FRIENDSHIP FOR WALLY; SQUELCHED

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Silence greeted an apparent attempt today by Jock McGovern, Laborite, to bring before the house of commons rumors that the friendship of King Edward VIII. of England with Mrs. Wallis Simpson might interfere with coronation ceremonies next spring.

Neville Chamberlain, chancelor of the exchequer, ignored McGovern's query whether it would be wise to spend money on coronation plans "in view of the gambling going on at Lloyd's whether this coronation ever would take place." McGovern, who a year ago wanted to know why Edward could not support his mother, Queen Mary, from his royal salary, sat down.

Report King Has Solution.

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—King Edward VIII. of England has worked out his own solution of the Mrs. Wallis Simpson difficulty, it was reported on good authority today. Recent arrivals from London, in a position to have unusual knowledge of the royal plans, say the plan is to arrange a marriage of convenience between Mrs. Simpson and a friend of the king who at the minimum rates the distinguishing "Hon." before his name.

Mrs. Simpson would then be entitled to full social and court position, and exchanges of visits between her home and the royal establishments would be entirely proper.

Hundred Flee Burning Hotel; Rescue Others

Nearly 100 persons fled down the fire escapes in their night clothing and a score of others were carried down ladders early today as a spectacular blaze swept the Park Manor hotel, a four story brick building at 7086 South Chicago avenue.

The fire apparently started in the basement or in a sandwich shop on the first floor. Twenty customers were dining in the sandwich shop when smoke and flames suddenly shot up in the rear. The cry of "fire" rang through the hotel.

Guests Trapped in Rooms.

The blaze ran quickly through the north end of the building, sending flames through the roof. Smoke filled all the rest of the hotel. Hook and Ladder company 34 was the first to arrive on the scene, and its members, led by Capt. James Cull, carried down guests who were trapped in their rooms and directed others to safety down fire escapes.

A four-eleven alarm was sounded as the flames spread, bringing numerous pieces of apparatus in command of Anthony J. Mullaney, first deputy fire marshal. The fire was confined to the north end of the building, and was under control at 3 a. m. The loss was set at $10,000.

Many Families Separated.

Most of the hotel's guests are permanent residents, and these include many families. There were scenes of wild excitement as members of families became separated. Charles Bundo, a guest from Grand Rapids, Mich., carried a tiny baby down a fire escape as it was handed to him. He did not find the baby's mother for more than an hour.

Only one person was injured, John Crane, 77 years old, who suffered a cut on his forehead and was overcome by smoke. He was taken to the Woodlawn hospital.

Thomas Minahan, 55 years old, and Axel Akers, 59, were carried to safety by firemen who found them on the floor of their rooms on the fourth floor, nearly overcome. Firemen also rescued Mrs. Mary O'Leary and her daughter, Mrs. Julia Beasley, with the latter's two children, Walter, 2 years old, and Harvey, 5.

Police Slayer Gets Sentence of 199 Years

Walter Meyer, 22 years old, a PAROLED CONVICT, was sentenced yesterday by Judge William J. Fulton of the Du Page county Circuit court at Wheaton to 199 years in prison for the murder of Policeman John B. [Jack] Frost of Lombard early in the morning of last Sept. 3. The policeman was slain while pursuing Meyer and a girl companion after a holdup.

Judge Fulton pronounced judgment after hearing the reluctant testimony of Meyer's sweetheart, Dorothy Bergholz, 19 years old, his companion on the murder foray. When the trial of Meyer and Dorothy opened last Monday she obtained a severance on her promise to testify for the state. Meyer promptly changed his not guilty plea to guilty.

The hearing yesterday was to guide Judge Fulton in determining Meyer's punishment.

Discusses Death Penalty.

In passing sentence the judge discussed his reasons for not imposing the death penalty. He recalled that in the Leopold and Loeb case the killers escaped death, although they committed a coldly premeditated murder, while in the case at trial, though wilful murder, there was no premeditation.

In a recent Rockford case, said the judge, Guy Tallmadge received a prison penalty by verdict of a jury despite the fact that he long planned to murder his wife. Also, the judge remarked, the prosecution had not asked the death penalty in summing up the case.

With bravado acquired in Pontiac reformatory and in Joliet penitentiary [whence he was paroled in January], Meyer accepted Judge Fulton's pronouncement.

Slayer Is Satisfied.

"It's all right with me," he boasted while puffing a cigaret. "I expected just about that. I didn't think I'd get the chair."

Meyer was taken immediately to the Joliet penitentiary.

State's Attorney Russell W. Keeney, as well as the defense counsel, expressed satisfaction with the court's judgment.

While her sweetheart dozed occasionally in his chair beside a burly guard, Dorothy told her story in halting monosyllables during the day's hearing. In answer to one question Dorothy confessed high regard for Walter.

For a moment her eyes blurred with tears. Still she did not look at Walter. Nor did the deputy sherif who was guarding him, until Walter's heavy breathing annoyed the guard. The deputy shook Walter awake. But a moment later the young man dozed again.

Girl Sticks to Story.

Throughout her questioning, both on direct and cross-examination, Dorothy remained firm in her statements that she did not know Meyer had a gun the night of Sept. 2, or that he planned a holdup.

Dorothy's home was at 4026 North California avenue, she said, but in September she was living with Walter at 4032 North Francisco avenue, two blocks away. They have been sweethearts for three years.

Dorothy also insisted she had not heard Walter talk of planning a robbery with Walter Poore, their companion earlier in the evening.

MADRID, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Flames spread through 40 blocks of the northwest section of Madrid tonight after a Fascist airplane and artillery bombardment of the capital.

A dense pall of acrid, greenish brown smoke drifted eastward over the city as a whole area, comprising some 40 blocks, became a seething caldron of flame. Thick smoke rolled from the North station.

Threaten Presidential Palace.

The red flames rolling into the black night from the military building "Capitania General" threatened to raze the whole area near the presidential palace.

The glare was visible from many points of the city and some observers believed incendiary bombs dropped by Fascist planes set off the blaze. The crackling flames offered great visibility to the enemy across the Manzanares river.

The devastating artillery shelling followed close upon the heaviest aerial bombardment the city had suffered. It was impossible to check the number of casualties, but it is estimated they were more than 100 killed and 400 wounded. One bomb fell in the middle of the turreted and arcaded "Plaza Mayor," Madrid's ancient city bull ring.

An artillery shell plunged through the roof of the Cortes and landed in the press gallery. Another shell wrecked the Ahora newspaper plant. A shell hit the stock exchange.

Madrid Buckles Defense.

There was apparent an attitude of dull resignation, but the Madrid defenders held on and claimed definite gains. They made a counter attack today which swept the Fascists back from the Toledo gate toward Carabanchel.

A terrific fight was waged by rebels for the capture of Casa de Campo on the west bank of the Manzanares, which until 1931 was used as a riding park by members of the royal family. Various places within its extensive walls are thickly wooded and served today as shelter for the defenders in repelling the rebel invasion. Most of the trees have been uprooted by rebel artillery which shelled both the park and its neighborhood. In the end the rebels were driven back to the top of Casa de Campo, it is believed, with a heavy loss.

For the first time the government troops saw the Fascist lines machine gunned by five government planes swooping down and across the river.

Observers watched through field glasses as the Madrid troops dashed through gunfire to capture a line of trenches between Carabanchel and the Talavera de la Reina highway. Dead on both sides were strewn over the brown earth as shells landed from Fascist batteries at Carabanchel.

Two Planes Shot Down.

Watchers of the battle said the government for the first time had resorted to the use of shrapnel in firing anti-aircraft guns against the Fascist bombers. Official sources said two of the enemy bombers had been shot down during today's raid.

A German pilot of another Fascist bomber, officials said, landed at Alcala de Henares and surrendered to the government.

The trenches west of the city's gates were evacuated repeatedly during today's bombardment, but the militiamen swarmed back into them as soon as the planes sped away.

To the northwest government gunners exchanged shellfire from the suburb Aravaca across a valley with insurgent artillerymen in position at the suburb of Pozuelo. The defense council said the northwestern road, from Las Rozas to El Escorial, still was held by Madrid's men.

Near Southern Limits.

WITH THE SPANISH FASCIST ARMY OUTSIDE MADRID, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Fascist soldiers returning to the rear today stated the insurgents had reached Paseo de Las Delicias, within Madrid's southern limits, in the face of terrific Socialist resistance.

Officials at headquarters, however, said they were unable to confirm that any insurgent troops had crossed the Manzanares river into the capital.

Fascists admitted they were engaged in the hardest fight of the civil war, even exceeding the fury of the battle for Irun on the north coast.

DROP 550 POUND BOMBS

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH GEN. JOSE VARELIA'S SPANISH FASCIST ARMY ON THE MADRID FRONT, Nov. 10.—The third day of furious fighting around the northwest, west and southwest limits of Madrid ended with government militia still holding their lines along the Manzanares river against what was probably the heaviest air bombing ever used anywhere.

Three huge rebel bombers, protected by fifteen pursuit planes, flew over the capital time after time. The bombers dropped more than forty high explosive and incendiary bombs, most of the missils being directed at the loyalists' defenses near the Toledo bridgehead, but others were aimed at gun emplacements in the northern sections.

The marvel of today's battle was how Madrid civilians—many of who a for the last three days have been torn away from their occupations and given guns for the first time in their lives—could stand up against the air bombing. The fact did confirm the report that they were terrorized and held in line by merciless file closers.

Repeat Long Trips.

The Fascist air attack was a beautiful piece of murderous efficiency. The bombers, flying in formation, dropped four heavy bombs each. These bombs weighed 250 kilograms [about 550 pounds] each, probably the heaviest that have ever been used.

The planes then wheeled about and returned to their base at the Talavera de la Reina flying field, 80 miles away, and came back to repeat. This merry-go-round of death was kept up all day.

The air attack followed exactly the government's line of defenses along the Manzanares river through the palace grounds up to the university, which it avoided. Care also was taken to avoid the neutral zone which was demarked by Gen. Francisco Franco after the decision was taken to continue bombing Madrid until resistance ceases.

The Fascist bombers, on account of the incapability of the defense anti-aircraft guns, were able to fly very low—probably they were up not more than 500 feet—and be absolutely sure of their target.

Siege in True Spanish Style.

From an observation post southwest of Madrid on the Talavera highway, the battle presented a grandiose and terrifying spectacle worthy of the long Spanish tradition of sustaining terrible sieges. The whole line of defenses was visible from Rosalias and extended south and west of the capital in the form of a bent pin along which rose columns of smoke obscuring the outer line of Madrid's buildings as shells of the Fascist artillery exploded.

From time to time a burst of flame showed where an incendiary shell or bomb had found its mark. At intervals came crashing explosions from the planes' heaviest bombs, from which smoke and flame shot hundreds of feet high.

Mingled with the evidence of the use of these monster engines of death was the constant rattle of rifle and machine gun fire which often was so heavy it became a continuous roar. One feature of the day was the government militia using dynamite sticks as bombs, the favorite fighting method of the Asturian miners, which would seem to prove that some of them are taking part in Madrid's defense.

Question Prisoners.

Since the government is pressing the whole population into service, the Fascists are taking many prisoners. I saw a column of 200 of them, most of them in civilian clothes, without a vestige of any kind of uniform, not even a monkey cap.

All had their shirts torn open by examiners to see if they had the red mark of a kicking rifle on their shoulders. If it was there, they were taken away. All were made to produce papers to justify themselves. One man unwound from the underclothes of his midsection a Fascist flag. He was immediately greeted as a buddy and given a fat cigar.

All prisoners with authentic Fascist sympathies were received with kindly treatment. Not all loyalist prisoners were meek. One group of defiant diehards I saw salute their Moorish captors with clenched fists in the communist fashion. By way of returning the salute it is no exaggeration to say the Moors pushed them around somewhat. Two prisoners spoke Russian, but I was unable to learn if they were really Russians.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT ACCUSED OF HELPING MADRID WITH PLANES

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 10.—The newspaper Figaro today published the result of an investigation made by Philippe Roland, one of its reporters, into the delivery of planes to the Spanish government. Roland claimed to have documentary proof of such deliveries and Figaro announced that it would place his material in the hands of the senate air committee.

Some of these planes, it is charged, were destined for the French air force and were released by permits from the air ministry. Roland claimed that between Aug. 8 and Oct. 26, thirty-seven planes were sent to the Madrid régime.

The communist newspaper Humanite today published an article in which it claimed that the munitions firm of Brandt had sent nearly ten tons of war materials—big guns, shells, fuses, and cartridges—to the Spanish rebels in a shipment disguised as for the destination of Peru.

150 FINE CATTLE FROM ONE HERD SELL FOR $76,000

A public auction of 150 pure bred Holstein cattle closed yesterday at Elmwood farm on the Old Mill road, Lake Forest. The herd was owned by George Rasmussen, chairman of the board of the National Tea company, who died last Aug. 22, and his son, Robert V. Rasmussen, vice president of the company. The other half of the herd is to be sold at auction next April 19 and 20.

Seventy-five buyers from sixteen states, Canada and Porto Rico attended the first sale. They paid a total of $76,120 for the 150 animals, an average price of $507.46. Lowest price was $100 for a two day old calf and the top price was $3,500 for an eight month old bull, King Bessie Geraldine Ormsby, which was purchased by J. D. Allen of Libertyville, an official of the Brinks Express company.

M. S. Prescott of Lacona, N. Y., editor of the Holstein-Friesian World, who attended the sale, said the total proceeds were the highest of any sale since 1929. He said Robert V. Rasmussen plans to develop a new herd.

ORDERED TO PAY ALIMONY.

Bruno Rolleck, a helper on a city ash wagon, was ordered by Municipal Judge Joseph B. Hermes in the Domestic Relations court to pay his wife, Mary, 41, of 1804 Harvey street, $7 in court yesterday and $7 a week.

American Requirements First Must Be Fulfilled.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—A uniform policy of restricting exports of American military type airplanes until government requirements are fulfilled by manufacturers was ordered today by President Roosevelt at a White House conference with representatives of the state, war and navy departments and the attorney general's office.

A flat prohibition against the sale abroad of planes manufactured for the army and navy until one year after the second consignment has been delivered on government contracts is embraced in the new policy.

This was based on authority of the war time espionage act forbidding the revelation of American military secrets to foreign countries.

Press reports recently have said Great Britain intended to buy a quantity of fighting airplanes from American manufacturers to bolster its air force. Under today's action, it could buy no ships in this country of a type manufactured for either the army or navy until one full year after delivery of the second plane for which the United States government has contracted.

France's Neutrality Program.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Describing Europe as a "tinderbox" where war might flame at any moment, Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.], chairman of the senate munitions committee, announced today he would press for enactment of a broad five-point neutrality program in the next congress.

To be embodied in three bills and two proposed constitutional amendments, the program is intended to plug the gaps in present neutrality laws, put warfare on a "pay as you fight" basis, and end wartime profiteering.

It will call for stringent regulation of arms manufacture, he said, because "the du Ponts and other munitions makers refused to coöperate with the government in the last war."

Proposes Nationalization.

Nye said he would seek nationalization of a large part of the munitions industry, adding that he believed "a strong block of liberals" in both houses would support his program.

While Nye was discussing his plans restrictions on exports of latest type American war planes were announced today by President Roosevelt, after a conference with high army and navy officials.

Seeks "Mandatory Embargo."

Nye said he would ask the next congress to strengthen the present neutrality law with a "mandatory embargo," automatically forbidding loans or munitions sales to warring nations from the hour hostilities break out.

LONDON COMMITTEE DISCUSSES PLAN TO WATCH SPANISH PORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Though it is beginning to look more and more as if they are waiting for the horse to be stolen so they can lock the stable, members of the subcommittee on nonintervention in Spain met today at the foreign office to consider means of preventing violations of the agreement.

After two hours of discussion on Chairman Lord Plymouth's proposal for a neutral committee—for which it is understood Sweden and Norway would be asked to provide the membership—to supervise Spanish ports, the committee adjourned until Thursday.

The plan is for the establishment of neutral groups in the ports and key points on the frontier to check importations to make sure arms are kept out. The Spanish government and the insurgents' junta will be consulted on the proposals.

ROBBER SEIZED BY POLICEMEN IN CAFE HOLDUP

William Mangan, 31 years old, 3841 Lexington street, was disarmed and captured by two policemen last night as he held up the Senate cafe, 3153 Madison street. He threatened the manager, John Solan, 214 North Lamon avenue, and ordered him to put the contents of the cash register on the bar. Suddenly strong arms seized him from behind. They belonged to Policemen Joseph Feldman and Thomas Peters of the Warren avenue station, who were off duty and had been watching a pinochle game in a rear room.

Police said Mangan answered the description of one of the men who killed Policeman Michael Toth in a tavern at 4830 South Wood street last Saturday night.

POLICE ASKED TO HUNT MISSING OAK PARK DOCTOR

Police were asked last night to search for Dr. Milton Ochs, 41 years old, of 300 South Maple avenue, Oak Park, when it was learned he had failed to keep his office appointments at 7300 Madison street, Forest Park, either yesterday afternoon or last evening.

The request was made by his sister, Dr. Clara Ochs, and a brother, Dr. Arthur Ochs, both of the same address. They said their brother had left his home at 10 a. m. yesterday, gone to the Frances Willard hospital, performed an operation, and—according to hospital officials—left there at 11 a. m. He has not been heard from since, police were told.

85 SUSPECTS IN SHOWUP.

Eighty-five suspects seized by police since the week-end were in the showup in the detective bureau last night, but none of 130 victims of recent crimes identified any of them.

U. S. GROUP MAPS PAN-AMERICAN NEUTRALITY PLAN

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

S. S. AMERICAN LEGION, AT SEA, Nov. 10.—The United States delegation to the Pan-American peace conference took up today detailed study of a neutrality proposal it will offer to the gathering at Buenos Aires on Dec. 1. This will be its most important contribution toward carrying out President Roosevelt's professions regarding peace when he suggested the conference months ago.

Charles Fenwick, professor of international law at Bryn Mawr college, was made chairman of a subcommittee consisting of Michael Doyle of Philadelphia, lawyer, and Adolf Berle, former New York City chamberlain, with Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles sitting ex-officio.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull is exchanging visits with the heads of other delegations aboard.

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.—British Airways, Ltd., today obtained government sanction to negotiate with the Lockheed Aircraft corporation of the United States for the delivery of a number of Lockheed Electra airliners. They would be used for service on the new night mail service between London and Sweden, which the British government is subsidizing to the extent of £20,000 [$100,000]. Hitherto it has been obligatory for any subsidized concern to use only British aircraft. British Airways, however, found that the British aircraft industry was unable to deliver planes for many months.

COUNT POTOCKI, NEW POLISH AMBASSADOR, ARRIVES HERE TODAY

Count George Potocki, recently appointed ambassador to the United States from the republic of Poland, will arrive at the Union station from Washington at 9:20 a. m. today with Mme. Potocka.

A committee from Polish-American societies will join Chicago officials in the welcome to the ambassador. After a brief ceremony at the station the count and his wife will go to the Holy Trinity Roman Catholic church at Noble and Chapin streets for mass to be celebrated in gratitude for Polish independence.

Other events scheduled for the day include a visit to the Polish-American soldiers' world war memorial in St. Adalbert's cemetery in Niles, and a reception at the Drake hotel during the afternoon. Mayor and Mrs. Kelly will attend a reception in the count's honor at the Polish consulate, 1444 Lake Shore drive, in the evening.

Count and Mme. Potocki will attend a dinner at the Casino club tomorrow evening and one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick on Friday evening before returning to Washington.

Il Duce's Daughter Plans Month's Visit to U. S.

ROME, Nov. 10.—Premier Mussolini's eldest daughter, Edda, the wife of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italy's 33 year old foreign minister, will visit the United States soon. She will stay in America a month, visiting cities from coast to coast. She will be accompanied by Leonardo Vitetti, formerly first secretary of the Italian embassy in Washington, D. C.

U. OF C. HUNTS 2 REDS IN ATTACK ON VETERAN, 60

Force Browder Button on Him, Then Strike.

University of Chicago officials last night ordered an investigation to determine the identity of two young men who attacked a Spanish-American war veteran near the university the day before election, apparently because he was wearing a Landon button. The victim of the attack, Essex Kendall, said yesterday he believed the youths were student communists, because they pinned a Browder communist button on his lapel after they had jerked off the Landon button.

ESSEX KENDALL.

Mr. Kendall, who served with the 1st Illinois infantry in Santiago, Cuba, during the Spanish-American war, is 60 years old and he weighs 118 pounds. He has been in poor health for several years. He and his wife operate a curio store at 1555 East 57th street, where they also reside. He told his story yesterday to several university officials, who then ordered a strict search for the young men.

Walks Slowly; Heart Weak.

"I was walking alone on East 57th street near Kimbark avenue the afternoon of Nov. 2, the day before the election," Mr. Kendall told the university officials.

"I was walking slowly, because my heart is weak. Two young fellows approached me and one said: 'You hold him and I'll pin it.' Then the bigger of the two pinned my arms back of me, while the smaller fellow jerked the Landon button off. He pulled a Browder button out of his pocket, pinned that on my label, hit me in the stomach, and said: 'Now, you Republican ———, go peddle your papers.'

"The blow made me sick and I staggered against a building there, wondering in my daze what it was all about. The two young fellows walked up the street, stopping once in a while to turn around and laugh and make some taunting remarks.

Follows His Assailants.

"Then I began to get my dander up and I made up my mind to follow them. I picked up a piece of brick I noticed on the side of the road. I wanted something to protect myself in case they attacked me again.

"I followed them to the Anatomy building of the university on 57th street. When they started through the door of the Anatomy building I threw the piece of brick and I hit one of them. I never expected to, and I suppose I couldn't do it again. He staggered, and the other fellow ran into the building. I followed him, but I lost him inside.

"Then the reaction set in and I got really sick. I met Dr. Charles Swift in the building and he offered to get me some medical care, but I said I could handle myself all right.

Asks Apology, at Least.

"Somebody told me then how to make a complaint at the building and grounds department, and I did that and went home. I think those boys at least should apologize for hitting a man a lot older than they are."

Lester S. Ries, assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds at the university, said that bulletins would be placed in all classrooms of the zoölogy and anatomy departments asking the aid of students to find the assailants. Instructors also will be ordered to coöperate.

WILL WED FOR FIFTH TIME

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, who revealed in London yesterday that she is to be married for the fifth time. The groom will be Vivian Jackson, 30, a gentleman jocky and professor at London university. [Acme Photo.]

PEGGY JOYCE, 42, TO WED NO. 5, A PROFESSOR OF 30

He's Also a Jocky, and They 'Love Horses.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The much married Peggy Hopkins Joyce, completely recovered from her feeling of antipathy to men, is to be married again—for the fifth time. Her new husband-to-be is Vivian Jackson, 30 years old, a gentleman jocky and professor of astrophysics at London university. The former actress is 42 years of age.

Their love for horses was credited largely for their romance today when Jackson did the talking in an interview.

How It All Started.

"You see, we both love horses and that is what started us," Jackson said. "I have given Miss Joyce one of my favorites, but I have a half dozen more."

He added quickly: "I only ride my own horses, and I would not want Miss Joyce's friends in America to think she was marrying a regular jocky."

Their marriage cannot take place until Jackson has obtained a divorce. The ceremony probably will take place near Cranleigh, Surrey, where proceedings already have been started, he said.

Wed First at 17.

Miss Hopkins, born Marguerite Upton of Norfolk, Va., ran away and was married to Everett Archer of Denver, Colo., when she was 17 years old. The marriage was annuled six months later.

After a year and a half she married her second husband, Sherburne Hopkins, a lawyer, on Sept. 1, 1913, at Bel Air, Md. They separated in 1915. Miss Joyce went to New York to begin a stage career. They were divorced on Jan. 20, 1920.

Miss Joyce's third husband was J. Stanley Joyce, wealthy Chicago lumberman, whom she married on Jan. 23, 1920, and from whom she was divorced in 1921. This separation brought her $80,000 and jewelry valued at $800,000.

Miss Joyce's last previous excursion in matrimony was in June, 1924, when she married Count Costa Morner, a Swedish nobleman. They were divorced in 1928.

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT MAY SEEK CONTROL OF 'BABY DERBY' FORTUNE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 10.—In order that "the kids get a square deal," the Ontario government probably will seek to administer the $500,000 "baby derby" bequest of the late Charles Vance Millar. This was announced today by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario.

It is the government's duty, the premier said, "in the best interests of the children" to administer the estate. Arthur W. Roebuck, attorney general, and Harry Nixon, provincial secretary, hold the same view.

Millar's will provided that the residue of his estate go to the Toronto mother who bore the most children in the ten years preceding last Oct. 31.

DR. DAFOE PUFFS PIPE AND SMILES AT NIGHT LIFE

The Chicagoans serving as his hosts were gay, animated, excited, but Dr. Allan Dafoe, the small round shouldered Callender, Ont., physician, who brought the Dionne quintuplets into the world, merely puffed away at a big black pipe and smiled.

His clothes were shabby, this little man with the white toothbrush mustache and blue eyes shining from behind gold rimmed spectacles. His gray topcoat hung in folds. His gray suit was not specially tailored. His blue shirt, with red and yellow stripes, was rather wrinkled, and his speckled blue tie was bunched.

Undismayed by Crowds.

Crowds clustered around the entrance to the Erlanger theater as he walked in, a battered felt hat far over his eyes, to see Ina Claire in "End of smile lighting his features, was undismayed.

Later, as midnight approached, he had to fight his way through an even gayer crowd at the Chez Paree, near north side night club, with his Chicago host, Donald B. Douglas.

And before either of these had come a taste of even more exclusive Chicago gayety, a cocktail party at the Tavern club, high in the clouds over Michigan boulevard, and dinner at the Casino on East Delaware place.

Talks Proudly of Five Girls.

During the day Dr. Dafoe lunched at the Chicago club, took a ride around the city, and visited Michael Reese hospital. When interviewed in the morning, Dr. Dafoe talked proudly of the five Dionne girls.

"They are about 2½ years old now," he said. "Marie is the smallest but is the leader, being the most active. All of them talk so darn much it is hard to estimate their vocabularies. It's all in French. They won't get English until they are 4 or 5 years old because if they had learned English first they would have difficulty learning French. A child can readily pick up both languages if French is learned first."

Dr. Dafoe was asked if he thought the quintuplets would have happy lives.

"If money has anything to do with it, they will," he replied. "Any privacy they get they will have to buy. Will they achieve privacy when they become of marriageable age and go separate ways? Well, I don't know."

He threw up his hands and added, "For one husband to come in and pick out one—I feel sorry for him."

Questioned about the current attitude of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, to government supervision of their children which they long protested, Dr. Dafoe smiled: "I just look after the babies; I'm not sticking my nose out."

Chilly Toward Stork Derby.

Dr. Dafoe first stated he did not "think much" of the Canadian stork Derby and added that "it's none of my business and I do not feel I should comment."

FORD DOES THE PICTURE TAKING

ENGINEERS HEAR SMALL UNIT PLAN OF COLD STORAGE

Individual families may now take advantage of quick freezing facilities previously enjoyed only by large concerns, A. L. Blatti, chief engineer of the Railway Ice company, said yesterday in an address at the Drake hotel. He spoke at the opening session of a four day convention of the National Association of Practical Refrigerating Engineers. The chief advantage of quick freezing, Blatti said, is that fruits, vegetables and other foods retain their natural flavor and may be kept for long periods. Many cold storage plants rent lockers to families, allowing them to have out of season foods without canning them, Blatti said.

PAROLE OF CRUEL BURGLAR ROUSES GLENCOE WRATH

David Carlson an Insane Killer, Says Police Chief.

Police Chief W. M. Peterson of Glencoe had only one complaint yesterday of a dangerous robber being returned to freedom by the parole board during October. Chicago police had nineteen bandits returned during the month.

But Chief Peterson insisted that the one desperado in which his suburb is interested is more dangerous than the other nineteen whom the Chicago police have to contend with. The Glencoe gunman, David Carlson, is not only unbalanced by his three prison terms, but was murderously crazy before entering prison, according to Chief Peterson.

There was no reason for the parole, said Chief Peterson, because Carlson was under a sentence of one year to life; it was his third sentence, and his last crime was most vicious and showed utter depravity.

Two Policemen Bullet Victims.

Chicago police agreed, recalling that Carlson, who is now 50 years old, shot two Chicago policemen during his career of outlawry.

Henry C. Bartholomay, 620 Spruce street, Glencoe, a broker, who was a victim of Carlson, added his denunciation on the parole.

"Carlson and two other bandits forced their way into my home one night in July, 1928," Mr. Bartholomay said. "Carlson was armed with a sawedoff shotgun. When I locked our bedroom door against him he threatened to kidnap my child unless I opened the door. My wife was expecting another child at the time, but I had to admit him to our bedroom.

"All of us were tied up while Carlson and his two companions searched the house for jewelry. At his trial he told me he would cut out my throat if he was ever released. He had tried to kill the police who captured him."

Parole After Parole in Record.

At the time of his arrest in 1928 Carlson gave his address as 1109 Washington boulevard and his occupation as a musician. His record follows:

July 22, 1904—Sentenced to Pontiac reformatory for burglary, several charges being stricken off docket.
March 13, 1906—Paroled.
March 13, 1907—Discharged from parole.
March 8, 1911—Sentenced to one year to life for robbery and arson.
Sept. 12, 1918—Paroled.
March 14, 1919—Special discharge from parole.
Feb. 7, 1922—Acquitted of conspiracy.
July 19, 1928—Received at prison in Bartholomay case.
Oct. 31, 1936—Paroled.

It was reported that his seventeen years in prison had made him "stir crazy," a form of insanity due to incerceration. W. C. Jones, chairman of the parole board responsible for putting Carlson back in society, could not be reached either at his office or home yesterday for an explanation.

ORDERS DRIVER HELD TO JURY IN 2 AUTO DEATHS

Coroner's Jury Acts on Hit-Run Motorist.

Walter Malleck, 22 years old, 1542 Melrose street, was ordered held to the grand jury on two charges of manslaughter yesterday by a coroner's jury. Malleck fled after his automobile struck another at Racine and Fullerton avenues on Oct. 5, killing George Stensoh, 42, 2309 Eastwood avenue, driver of the other car, and his wife, Marian, 38.

Malleck was arrested several days later in the home of a friend. He said he was dazed by the accident and didn't realize what had happened.

Aged Woman Dies of Hurts.

Mrs. Rose Vrgl, 75 years old, 1847 Gunderson avenue, Berwyn, died in the Oak Park hospital yesterday from injuries received on Oct. 18 when she was struck by an automobile at 18th street and Oak Park avenue in the suburb. The car was driven by Richard Shilling, 7639 Jackson boulevard, Forest Park. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death

Benjamin F. Dunlap, 46 years old, vice president of the Lincoln Brewing company, 54th avenue and 21st street, Cicero, was injured seriously last night when he lost control of his automobile and it crashed head-on into a street car in Western avenue near Madison street. A score of passengers on the street car were shaken up, but none was injured.

Chicagoan Killed Down State.

James Adaire, a Chicagoan, was killed at Springfield, Ill., yesterday when a southbound Alton passenger train struck a truck he was driving at a crossing there.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 868 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 656 were killed in Chicago. In the same period 16,742 were injured in trafic accidents within the city.

Court Reinstates Police Sergeant Ousted by Board

Judge James J. Kelly in the Superior court ordered the reinstatement yesterday of Sergt. Thomas P. Gartland whom the civil service commission dismissed from the police force last May 19 on charges of intoxication, disobedience, disorderly conduct, unlawful use of weapons, and conduct unbecoming an officer. On an appeal from the commission's order, Judge Kelly upheld the defense contention that there was not sufficient evidence at the hearing in support of the charges.

DIES AFTER KICK BY HORSE.

DECREES LONGER SENTENCES FOR TIPSY AUTOISTS

McGarry Jails Motorist for 6 Months.

Municipal Judge Eugene L. McGarry in Safety court commented from the bench yesterday that ten day jail sentences for driving while intoxicated had not proved effective. He said that in the future the sentence would be more severe in flagrant cases.

Judge McGarry made the announcement while hearing the case of Byron Walters, 28 years old, 4167 Emerald avenue, whom he sentenced to six months in the Bridewell for driving while drunk. An additional sentence of six months for leaving the scene of an accident was ordered to run concurrently with the first sentence.

Walters' automobile collided with one driven by Henry Rosenberg, 7725 Essex avenue, at 90th street and Jeffery avenue on Oct. 11. Walters fled, but was apprehended several blocks away by police. He pled guilty to the charge of intoxication.

Others sentenced by the judge were:

JOSEPH ZINEY, 48 years old, 2840 Thomas street, a laborer, 30 days for reckless driving. Ziney hit a parked car at 1817 Augusta boulevard.

ERNEST PINN, 25, 3260 North Drake avenue, 30 days, reckless driving. On Oct. 25 Pinn hit Anthony Lewandowski, 5917 Elston avenue, who was waiting for a street car.

DOUGLAS WALKER, colored, 39, 3524 Giles avenue, 60 days for leaving the scene of an accident. On Oct. 16 Walker hit a car at 54th street and South Park way and didn't stop.

JAMES DEMMA, 35, 2512 Lowe avenue, three days for reckless driving. On Oct. 19 he crashed into two parked cars at 46th and State street. After letting Demma sit in jail all day, Judge McGarry rescinded the sentence.

Automobile license plates were taken away from Harold Manther, 20 years old, 6342 North Merrimac avenue, by Municipal Judge John Gutknecht in Trafic court, who will hold them until Jan. 11, 1937. Manther was arrested twice within an hour on Oct. 19 for speeding in Lake Shore drive. Last week he was fined $20 and costs on one charge.

YOUTH IS CAUGHT IN CHASE AFTER FRAUD ATTEMPT

A youth who tried to defraud two Evanston department stores was captured yesterday after a chase. He identified himself as Robert Rembs, 19 years old, of Marshfield, Wis., and admitted that he had served four months in jail in Los Angeles, Cal., on a burglary charge.

In one store Rembs ordered $175 worth of clothing, and promised to return for it in half an hour. Store employés learned that he was not registered at the hotel he gave as his address and notified police.

While policemen were seeking Rembs, he dashed out of another department store, wearing clothing for which he had not paid, with several store employés in pursuit. Policeman "Duke" Cohen overtook Rembs at Davis street and Chicago avenue after a chase of a block.

FINES 9 AUTOISTS FOR LACKING CITY SAFETY STICKERS

Nine motorists were fined $5 each yesterday by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the Municipal court's special license court branch for failure to have stickers on their cars showing that they had been approved in safety lane tests.

Ninety-four such cases were on the call. Charges against twenty-seven drivers were dismissed because they obtained stickers after their arrests. Thirty-nine defendants failed to appear and warrants were issued for them. The rest of the cases were continued.

2 PAROLEES GET LIFE AS HABITUAL LAW VIOLATORS

Clarence Lukesch and Fred Meyers, PAROLED convicts, were sentenced to life imprisonment as habitual criminals yesterday by Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Criminal court. With Norman Cravens, another parolee from Danville, whom they had met in Pontiac, they attempted to rob a tavern at 203 East 69th street on Sept. 28.

Cravens was killed and Detective Charles Stine and Policeman Nicholas Connelly were critically wounded in the battle that followed. Lukesch and Meyers were captured. In addition to the sentences imposed upon them yesterday, they will be classed as parole violators under their former sentences which were for 1 year to life, and therefore, prosecutors said yesterday, it should be reasonably expected that this time they will remain in prison for life.

RULE WIFE MUST LIVE WHERE HER HUSBAND WISHES

Citing the rule of law that a wife must live where her husband chooses, the Appellate court yesterday reversed the separate maintenance decree of Mrs. Bernice Mottz and gave a divorce to her husband, Paul.

Mrs. Mottz, who lives at 15 South Prospect avenue, Park Ridge, charged in her suit that her husband was cruel to her and left her in 1933. Her husband, an official of the Illinois Central railroad, filed a cross bill, seeking a divorce on the ground of desertion. Judge Philip J. Finnegan in the Circuit court dismissed the husband's bill and awarded Mrs. Mottz $60 a month separate maintenance.

The Appellate court held that the cruelty charge was not proved and pointed out that the couple's marital difficulties apparently arose over Mrs. Mottz's refusal to follow her husband from Bloomingdale to a Chicago residence. It held that a wife is legally bound to live where her husband lives.

WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IS A GOOD $35 SUIT!

Park Lane* Suits do the trick!

Of course, you've a taste for the better things in life All of us have! But in the matter of clothes, we've had a bit of a time indulging that taste—at a price to fit our pocketbooks. To borrow an old campaign phrase "what this country needs is a good $35 suit". And Bond has it! We're not going to bore you with a long story about expensive woolens and superb needlework. "Seeing is believing"—one look will impress you with the very evident character of these new Park Lane Suits. But the facts behind their amazingly low price need a word of explanation. Bond is the only retail clothier in America who owns a tailoring plant in Rochester—and you know where Rochester stands when it comes to quality. The profits we'd ordinarily have to pay an outside maker go into your pocket. You save what we save! Seems like a pretty swell reason why we should get together, doesn't it? And the time to do it is right now, while selections are at the peak.

BARES WEDDING OF CHAPLIN AND MISS GODDARD

British Friend Tells of Year Old Event.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—It seems to be settled again that Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard are married and have been married for a year or two. The latest revelation of this apparent fact came from Winston Churchill's son Randolph, who yesterday confided that "Mr. Chaplin and Miss Goddard are married; I can definitly say that this is so, after having tea with them."

Everybody here has been trying to get Chaplin or Paulette to answer the question as to whether they were or weren't married ever since a well known columnist of gossip ran the item: "Paulette Goddard became Mrs. Chaplin on her birthday in 1934 aboard the ship Panacea [a yacht which Charlie had borrowed here from Joseph M. Schenck." That item was printed last June.

Don't "Discuss Private Affairs."

When, at a recent party, Paulette was asked to say yes or no about the marriage, she said she "never discussed private affairs." Chaplin uses the same stock phrases when quizzed.

Everybody here thinks Charlie and Miss Goddard have been married for some time; in fact, ever since before they worked together to produce Chaplin's last silent film, "Modern Times."

Young Randolph Churchill, from England, has been a visitor for several days in the movie colony. He said the actor and his dark haired leading lady told him they had kept the ceremony secret for more than a year to give Miss Goddard a chance to win fame "on her own."

Many Rumors Current.

For some time reports have been current, especialy among the couple's friends, that the noted comic and the little actress were married on the yacht off Catalina Island on June 23, 1934.

The story that the pair were married on the yacht in 1934 goes on to say that the wedding knot was tied by Capt. David Anderson in his capacity as skipper of the Panacea. However, these rumors were so often denied they lost some of their early credence.

Now Mr. Churchill is quoted as saying: "I can say definitly that they are married."

Sought Independent Success.

"They have been married for more than a year and both have certain definite reasons for maintaining secrecy," Churchill was quoted as saying.

"Miss Goddard told me it was her wish to win film fame on her own, not as the bride of a film notable. She is earnest and sincere in this, I am sure.

"A similar explanation for the long delay in announcing the nuptials was made by Mr. Chaplin. He said that he was eager to launch Miss Goddard on a career of her own before letting the facts of her marriage be known."

But today Chaplin still refused to confirm or deny the story.

BELIEVED MARRIED YEAR AGO

Charles Chaplin, movie comedian, and his leading lady, Paulette Goddard, who, according to Randolph Churchill, were married more than a year ago and have kept the ceremony secret ever since. Churchill, son of British statesman, has been a Hollywood visitor.

RICH EASTERN VISITOR FINDS CUPID IS ROUGH

Phineas Crooker, 43 years old, a well-to-do candy broker from Marlboro, Mass., and Mrs. Esther Miller O'Rourke, a widow, 29 years old, of the Château hotel, 3838 Broadway, were held last night in cells at the detective bureau. Mr. Crooker was detained to insure his appearance today against Mrs. O'Rourke in Woman's court.

Last night Sergt. John Shanahan was summoned to the Villa Savoy bar at 838 Wilson avenue by a taxi driver, who said he saw a woman sitting at the bar pressing a revolver against the side of her escort. The driver said the woman was insisting that her escort take her to Waukegan and marry her.

When the policeman reached the bar he found the bartender had disarmed Mrs. O'Rourke. Mr. Crooker explained that he and the widow had been on a round of cabarets since early yesterday. He said events toward the end of the evening were a bit hazy.

"I hate men," Mrs. O'Rourke declared. "They make all kinds of promises, and then back out. This guy was trying to back out like all the rest."

FAKE CUSTOMER STEALS $1,500 IN UNSET DIAMONDS

Eleven packages of unset diamonds valued at $1,500 were stolen yesterday by a thief who posed as a customer in the offices of S. Lazarus & Sons, Inc., jewelry manufacturers, on the third floor at 131 South Wabash avenue. Siegfried Lazarus, 6808 Clyde avenue, part owner of the concern, discovered the gems were missing from a tray of rings after he had shown the tray to the supposed customer. There were several larger packages containing more valuable stones on the tray, Lazarus said, but the thief apparently thought them too large to "palm" while he was pretending to look at the rings.

$40,000 Award for Injuries at World's Fair Is Upheld

The Appellate court yesterday upheld a Circuit court jury's award of $40,000 damages to Jane Anne Slaughter of Hollis, Okla., for injuries incurred during A Century of Progress exposition when she was struck by a car driven by an employé of the Exposition Gateway Parking corporation. The girl, now 17 years old, has undergone several operations on her spine. The parking corporation appealed the verdict on the ground that the attendant in question was under strict orders not to drive customers' cars.

THREE THUGS ROB PRIESTS' HOME; BIND SIX PEOPLE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Three thugs robbed the parish house of St. Adalbert's church, two blocks from a police station today.

They bound and gagged three priests, two servants, and a woman parishioner; locked a third servant in the basement and escaped with cash and jewelry worth several hundred dollars.

Eva Pastkovich, the cook, followed by Rev. Joseph Frania, went to the door. Both were tied with clothesline.

In the meantime the housekeeper, Mary Pastkovich, sister of Eva, came in. The thugs forced Eva to summon the other two priests and the woman parishioner. Each in turn was bound and gagged.

One told Pastor Frania:

"We hate to do this, father, but we need $500."

HOEPPELS GET NEW COUNSEL; RETURN TO JAIL

Richmond, Va., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Represented by new counsel after their attorney, Jesse C. Duke, was barred from practice in United States District court today, Representative John H. Hoeppel of California and his son, Charles, were remanded to the county jail here tonight on a continuance of their removal hearing until Friday.

Federal Judge Robert N. Pollard granted the continuance to give the new counsel, Jacob Morewitz of Newport, Va., time in which to familiarize himself with the case. The Hoeppels are fighting return to Washington, where they are under sentences of four months to a year for conspiring to sell an appointment to the United States Military academy.

The 56 year old congressman and his son, 24, were arrested in a tourist home on the outskirts of Richmond early Nov. 7 on warants charging them with being fugitives from Washington.

ORDERED HELD BY U. S.

Nung Yiek Choy, 40 years old, 826 Oakdale avenue, treasurer of the Korean church of Chicago, was ordered held for removal to Los Angeles on charges of sending threatening letters through the mails by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday.

ROOSEVELT WILL ASK MORE FUNDS SOON FOR RELIEF

Schedules Early Request from New Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt this afternoon said one of his first requests of the new congress will be for a temporary appropriation to continue unemployment relief.

The 1 billion 425 million dollar appropriation made by the last congress and the 1 bililon 500 million dollars salvaged from the record four billion 880 million dollar appropriation of 1935 are virtually exhausted, Mr. Roosevelt said. He laid the draining of the relief fund to drouth activities, saying they bit deeply into the unemployment relief till.

He declined to estimate how large his demand on the new congress will be. Relief officials have estimated that they will need 500 million dollars to continue the WPA.

Promises No New Taxes.

The President revealed his plan at his press conference during which he reiterated his pledge that the administration is contemplating no additional taxes at the next session of congress. He declared he is enjoying reports of wage and dividend increases as indications of the continuance of recovery, but shied away from a question as to the prospect of a balanced budget.

He said he would give his answer Jan. 6 when he will deliver his budget message to congress. The message, he continued, will contain his request for a temporary relief budget. get.

Late in the session, he said, he will make his request for relief funds for the fiscal year which begins next July 1. It is safer to make estimates for the 1938 fiscal year in March than December, particularly for relief, he said, because employment pickup by industry can be measured more accurately at that time.

Plans Simple Inauguration.

At the outset of the conference Mr. Roosevelt revealed that simplicity is to be the watchword of his second inaugural next Jan. 20 if his wishes are observed.

Asked about inaugural plans, he said the affair would be simple so as to be in keeping with traditions of the Democratic party. He said no party is to be held if he can stop it after the oath taking at the capitol steps. Asked whether the ceremonies were to be as simple as they were in 1932 Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't think his first inauguration was a simple affair.

The President said he was somewhat worried about the weather he will have to face. Examination of weather records has shown, he said, that a temperature of 31 degrees may be expected, with possible snow flurries. The weather will affect the inauguration, he said, but after a moment he added, "I can take it."

Making Budget Study.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he has been devoting the major part of his time, and will continue to do so before his cruise to Buenos Aires for the opening of the Pan-American peace conference, to consideration of the budget. He said he is making excellent progress, although he said he will not have his message in shape for delivery until after his return here about Dec. 12.

In this connection with relief budget requests he casually dropped the announcement that unemployment relief will continue possibly on as large a scale as last year. He declined to make estimates, however, saying it was far too early to do so.

To a barrage of questions on filling vacancies, the President said he had given no thought to the jobs and would not do so for some time. To another barrage of questions on consolidation of departments and agencies and possible revival of the AAA and NRA, he said it was too early to discuss reorganization reports or other plans.

BOY ON BICYCLE INJURED.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Richard Retzer, 14, 2718 North Oakland avenue, suffered a brain concussion and broke his collarbone when riding his bicycle through an alley. He crashed into a car parked in the rear of 2964 North Bartlett avenue.

LONG VANISHED TUGWELL BACK IN WHITE HOUSE

Reappears for Lunch with President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Rexford Guy Tugwell was back in the White House today a week after President Roosevelt's landslide reëlection. The dapper No. 1 brain truster, who had not been seen or heard from for months, appeared smilingly at the door of the executive offices shortly after noon.

With a cheerful nod to White House police and secret service men at the door he stepped briskly into the office of Assistant White House Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre, who has charge of presidential appointments. From this office he was ushered to a seat at the President's desk for a tray luncheon.

It was Tugwell's first visit with his chief since the launching of the campaign and his first luncheon at the White House since early in the summer. They had not met since the President's "nonpolitical" drouth tour.

Hidden During Campaign.

In the interests of the President's reëlection campaign Tugwell was relegated to the New Deal doghouse during the windup of the campaign. The doghouse was not new to the brain truster, although it had been moved. Two years ago the doghouse with Tugwell inside was shipped to Italy, where Tugwell attended an international farming conference during the 1934 congressional election. This year its location was held a secret by his office.

Tugwell remained with the President for more than an hour. What went on over the luncheon was not revealed by the secretary because he left by a rear stairway to dodge a gamut of newspapermen.

Rumors of Retirement.

Rumors persist in Washington that Tugwell has not long to remain in Washington because he has been squeezed dry of his ideas for making America over. The reports have been strengthened by the fact that Mrs. Tugwell and their two daughters, to whom Tugwell is devoted, have leased a home on the Hudson river.

Tugwell joined the New Deal on a leave of absence from economics classes at Columbia university. Friends here believe the leave is about to expire and Tugwell will return his cap and gown to academic halls.

APPEAL TO SAVE CITY $10,000,000 READY FOR COURT

Barnet Hodes, city corporation counsel, completed preparation of an appeal to the state Appellate court yesterday in an effort to save the city from being compelled to pay an estimated total of $10,000,000 in interest on condemnation judgments prior to the time the city took possession of the properties.

The city's argument is that the value of the use [rental] of the condemned property to the owners before the city takes possession should be allowed as a setoff to the interest claimed by the owners.

The brief contests a decision of Judge James J. Kelly of the Superior court awarding the Wieboldt company $163,320 interest on a judgment of $371,028 entered in 1927. The judgment was for a 17 foot strip fronting on Ashland avenue near Lincoln avenue.

SPRINGFIELD, O., SCHOOL BOARD MEETS 5 MINUTES

Springfield, O., Nov. 10.—(AP)—With a large audience present, the Springfield board of education met for five minutes tonight and adjourned without action in the crisis which forced the twenty-six public schools to close indefinitly last Friday.

Simultaneously, after a three hour closed meeting of the Springfield Real Estate board, which fought the defeated 3 mill school levy in the election, President Paul T. Gerhardt announced:

"We will offer a proposition which we believe will solve the school situation in Springfield and other cities."

The school board's meeting climaxed a week of civic efforts to provide facilities for the 12,300 public school pupils locked out of classrooms.

Russia Confers Its Highest Honor on Maxim Litvinov

WOMAN SECRET WITNESS HELD IN GIRL KILLING

For more than three months the state's attorney has held a woman witness in secret custody apparently in the hope of solving the murder of Miss Audrey Vallette, blonde party girl, who was shot to death in her apartment in the La Salle Tower, 1211 North La Salle street, last July 3.

This fact became known yesterday after the inquiry into the murder was again continued until Nov. 18. First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley asked for the time extension to permit Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan to familiarize himself with the case. Coghlan is relieving Assistant State's Attorney Richard Devine, who is taking a new position with the park board.

Found on South Side.

The secret witness, is was learned, is Mrs. Anna Koletsky Freed, 38 years old, 933 Airdrie place. A month ago her mother and brother attempted to locate her. They found her in the technical custody of a policewoman at the Del Prado hotel, 5307 Hyde Park boulevard. They dropped their intention to obtain her release on a writ of habeas corpus when Mrs. Freed said she wished to remain at the hotel.

Mrs. Freed is the divorced wife of Eddie Freed, former night manager of the Nut House, a cabaret at 550 North Clark street. Freed's present wife, Mrs. Carmelia [Ruth] Freed, 34 years old, has been missing since the day of the murder when police started a search for her.

There were no eyewitness to the shooting of Miss Vallette. Harold Knox, clerk in the apartment hotel, has identified a picture of Mrs. Carmelia Freed as that of the woman who fled from the building a few minutes after Miss Vallette's body was discovered.

Interest in Case Explained.

In her "party" diary police found Eddie Freed's name as a favorite friend of Miss Vallette. When questioned about the murder Freed admitted he and Miss Vallette had been sweethearts, but professed allegiance to his wife.

Although Mrs. Anna Freed was not an eyewitness, it was believed the prosecution would use her to identify the missing Mrs. Freed as a jealous wife, capable of a fiery outburst of temper. When she first offered to help the police last summer Mrs. Anna Freed said that Carmelia had broken up her home.

Moreover she said that a few weeks before the murder she met the second Mrs. Freed, and Carmelia beat her for fancied attentions to Freed.

Traveling Crane Robs Till from Wrong Side; Gets $35

Frank Miller, owner of a grocery at 6140½ Milwaukee avenue, looked up in astonishment last night as a customer, 6 feet 5 inches tall, ambled in wearing a gray butcher's coat, and asked for a pound of butter and a can of noodles. As Miller turned to get them the customer leaned over the counter, scooped up $35 from the till, threatened Miller with a revolver held in the other hand, and walked out.

German Theaters Barred from Using Name Alcazar

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—(AP)—German theaters and night clubs today were barred from using the name "Alcazar," the Toledo fortress which for seventy days was under siege of Spanish loyalists. A decree issued by Heinrich Himmler, head of the national police, stated the name had become a "sacred" one as a result of the Fascist defense of the ancient building.

Investigate Liquor Dealer's Pistol Death in His Store

The inquest into the death of William Ex, 45 years old, in his liquor store at 6761 North Clark street on Monday, was continued yesterday until Nov. 18 pending ballistics tests to determine whether the bullet that killed Ex came from his own pistol.

PRICE OF BEER JUMPS; FRENCH RETAILERS STRIKE

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Beer drinkers at Lille went thirsty today as proprietors of a majority of the city's cafés and beer retail shops refused to sell the drink because of a rise in the wholesale price.

Near Valenciennes, 3,700 miners quit the Anzin mines.

Strikers and employers of the Panhard-Levassor automobile plant agreed tonight to a 72-hour truce, during which the strikers, who have occupied the buildings since last Thursday, will evacuate them and the plant will be closed.

UNION MEN MAP GREAT DRIVE TO ORGANIZE LABOR

Spurred in New Demands by Roosevelt Victory.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Spurred on by the reëlection of President Roosevelt, which they regard as a triumph for labor, union leaders today mapped a great drive to organize hundreds of thousands of nonunion workers.

Behind all the deliberations in hotel rooms among labor rulers, attracted here by the third annual conference on labor legislation, rose the specter of a third major party to be led into the political battlefield by some such man as John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers.

Having consolidated their position by helping the President to continue in office for four more years, labor obviously feels that it is time to set up its own political organization.

Prepare to Act Promptly.

The air was filled today with such phrases as "let's strike while the iron is hot."

"We must not be slow to capitalize our victory in the recent election," declared Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. He announced a campaign to recruit 75,000 new members and said his war chest contained "more than $1,000,000" to finance the drive.

Hillman's drive paralleled that of David Dubinsky, leader of the International Ladies Garment workers, who is working on plans for an intensive unionization movement in the middle west, for which $500,000 has been appropriated.

Together with these militant plans, there were renewed demands from the leaders for a constitutional amendment giving the federal government authority to fix minimum wages and maximum working hours. Dubinsky's organization called for action to give congress power to "legislate for the protection and advancement of the wage-earning masses." The United Textile workers urged similar legislation to promote increases in wages, reduction of hours, and improvement of working conditions.

Miss Perkins Lauds Work.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins told the delegates that "more and better labor laws have been passed since the inauguration of the New Deal than in any previous three years of American history."

She lauded the National Labor Relations board, the conciliation service of the labor department, the National Mediation board, and the Textile Labor Relations board.

BOMBS SHATTER 3 AKRON HOMES IN LABOR ROWS

Akron, O., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Bombs shattered porches of three homes and imperiled at least ten lives today as a result, Detective Gilbert Mosely said, of labor trouble among rubber workers.

The early morning blasts shook widely separated neighborhoods and broke windows in nearby dwellings. Occupants of the wrecked homes ran into the streets. None was injured.

Notes, police said, warning them to "lay off our union" were found in mail boxes at the Childs and Gualt homes. None was left at Hoffman's.

Total of British Workers Reaches an All Time High

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The government announced last night that 599,000 insured workers had been absorbed by British industry in the last twelve months, bringing the total in jobs to the record figure of £11,103,000. The highest estimate of insured workers employed during the last trade boom was 10,316,000, in September, 1929.

DIVIDED COURT HEARS DEBATE ON UTILITY LAW

Dissenting Opinion Sure in "Yardstick" Case.

to the "purposes" of the National Industrial Recovery act, as distinguished from the asserted "motives" of the administrator in financing power plants. He mentioned the avowed purpose of the appropriation to reduce unemployment and alleviate distress.

"Nobody contends," replied Mr. Baker, "that the things sought to be done by the act can be done except under the general welfare clause. Congress alone, not the executive branch, can act under the general welfare clause, and the general welfare clause does not enlarge the legislative power of congress."

"Would grants made for the purpose of relieving distress by creating employment come within the general welfare power?" asked Justice Brandeis.

Mr. Baker said he believed they would, but that congress could not proceed under the guise of the general welfare power to encroach upon the sovereignty of the states, reducing them to "mere geographical expressions."

"Nothing could be a more complete and precipitate surrender of state sovereignty than the action taken by South Carolina when it entered into this mad scramble for federal largess," he said. "It got down on its knees and said to the PWA, 'We don't care what you do if we get the money.'"

Violation of 10th Amendment.

Mr. Baker then assailed the untrammeled delegation of legislative power in the act, saying the President, under its terms, could do as he pleased, without guide or direction, and was not even required to exercise thrift as unemployment diminished. He attacked the government's efforts to force reductions in electric power rates as a violation of the 10th amendment to the constitution, which reserves to the states all powers not expressly delegated to the federal government.

"The regulation of utility rates is essentially a police power of the states," he said.

Attorney W. S. O'B. Robinson, who opened for the power company, contended that Ickes lacked authority under the appropriation, made theoretically for useful public works, to finance the construction, and that congress lacked authority under the constitution to make an appropriation for such activities.

McReynolds Takes Hand.

"Do you mean that a plant constructed in some county where there as no electric power would not be useful?" asked Justice McReynolds.

"Perhaps it would be useful in that case, but we contend that there is no constitutional power to do this," Robinson replied.

"What you mean is that the federal government is going into the private power business and it has no right to do it," said Justice McReynolds.

W. H. Nicholson, representing Greenwood county, made no effort to defend the project on the ground of relieving unemployment.

Our chief industry is the manufacture of cotton goods and our chief agriculture is cotton," he said. "We thought that if we could do anything to produce more and better power it would help our farmers to get a better price for their cotton."

Recalls NRA Arguments.

Mr. Frank entered into a long discourse of legalistic abstractions, reminiscent of the argument made by Donald R. Richberg, his sponsor, in support of the outlawed NRA. He cited the Supreme court's decision in the Chicago Junction railway case on competition, and said there was a distinction between damage and injury.

If the power company was damaged by competition from the county without being injured, or having any of its legal rights invaded, it had no recourse, Mr. Frank reasoned.

Baroness Violet Wenner, portrait painter, is completing her impression of "The International Bride," a composite oil painting she is doing from photographs of the 21 girls who will appear in the "Brides of the Nations" revue at the Chicago automobile show which is to open in the International Amphitheater on Saturday. The girls who will participate in the revue were selected as typical brides in contests held by various nationality groups in Chicago.

ROOSEVELT WILL LEAD TRIBUTE TO THE 'UNKNOWN'

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—With the representatives of other powers joining in the Armistice day ceremony, President Roosevelt will place a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Exercises before the tomb and in Arlington amphitheater will be broadcast throughout the country. Messages of peace and international good will will be exchanged on a special four way short wave broadcts between the United States and Europe.

Military and naval attachés of foreign embassies and legations will follow the President in paying their countries' tributes to the American world war dead, and legionnaires from forty states will file past the tomb to deposit wreaths.

The President's Armistice day proclamation will be read by Col. Rice W. Means, past department commander of the Legion in Washington, who, while a member of congress, introduced the bill providing for national observance of Armistice day.

Secretary of War Woodring will deliver the principal address.

POSTPONE MEXICO CITY STRIKE.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The General Confederation of Workers today deferred a scheduled strike in the federal district pending the outcome of negotiations with the labor department.

VON BERNSTORFF MEMOIRS MAY BE BARRED BY NAZIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—The memoirs of Germany's wartime ambassador to the United States, Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, have been the object of a heated discussion in the ministry of propaganda here, it was learned today. Officials have been discussing the advisability of banning the book.

The Nazis hold his statements represent the "strongest pro-Jewish sentiment expressed by a German in recent years and are an indirect insult to the German people."

Urges Ban on Undset Works.

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Westdeutscher Beobachter, official Nazi organ, asserted today the writings of Sigrid Undset, Danish novelist, should "disappear from the columns of German newspapers, from German libraries, and from book stores."

Mr. Hooper gets an unexpected bonus

Events involving the sale of a 1930 Harley-Davidson motorcycle recently made Mr. J. M. Hooper* richer by $15.00 than he expected to be.

As the bike's owner, Mr. Hooper estimated it to be worth about $50.00. That was before he took steps to liquidate his investment in it.

Calling Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser, he dictated a three-line want ad to Miss Ford. It appeared the next day in the Motorcycles column of the Chicago Tribune want ad section.

Eight prospects replied. One offered $65.00 for the machine—thus netting Mr. Hooper a pleasantly surprising $15.00 bonus on the deal.

Mr. Hooper's only regret now is that he was caught totally unprepared to satisfy the evident demand for more machines than he had for sale.

And since he has not expressed intentions of going into the motorcycle business, that same opportunity is still open to other advertisers.

MORAL—IF IT CAN BE SOLD, A TRIBUNE WANT AD WILL SELL IT.

To sell Motorcycles and Bicycles, call Superior 0100 and ask for Miss Ford—Want Ad-Viser.

*Fictitious name, but all the other details of this experience are from the want ad department files.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions, intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

EDUCATION'S FERMENT

By CALEB

THE term educated usually is taken to mean that a certain quantity of learning has been poured into an individual, who has retained a satisfactory share of it as definitely determined by measurements.

The academic system for the most part lends fuel to this belief. One takes so many hours of this or that. Having taken those hours, and being measured for what stuck, he is given credits. Those credits will indicate until the crack of doom—no matter how much or how little he understands of the subject—that he is educated to that extent.

Before we adopted the present methods of measuring what has been learned students studied for the acquirement of wisdom. Now, many students work furiously for credits. More rarely they are working for the learning for which the credits stand.

The academic system is aware of some of the difficulties it faces in this and other directions. It is meeting constructive criticisms openly and graciously. It is seeking solutions to its problems.

The Pennsylvania Study conducted by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has netted a great mass of information to the educational world. It points to a possible increase in the use of tests which can be graded objectively, rather than subjectively.

Some educators decry the use of objective tests—and plead for teachers so skilled and fair—and so numerous—that they can deal subjectively but wisely and fairly with all the students they teach.

In North Carolina, on Black Mountain, is a new educational venture—Black Mountain College, which experiments at socializing the student while educating him.

Antioch College at Yellow Springs Ohio, has done a great deal in combining practical and text-book education. There, students work in pairs—one student holds down a job in industry for a term of weeks while his team-mate takes school work. Then they exchange places for a like period—and so on through the year.

The University of Chicago is venturing a bold program which permits individuals to progress as rapidly as they individually can.

The world of education is in a ferment. These are only a few of numerous experiments or new programs under way.

What goes on in the world of education is important to a large business because it has its own educational and training program to keep up to date and effective.

WORLD PEACE IS KEYNOTE HERE ON ARMISTICE DAY

City to Honor Heroes of Great War.

Legion has arranged a parade of several thousand marchers to move from State and Van Buren streets north to Randolph street and thence west to the city hall for the ceremonies there.

The Black Horse troop will lead the parade, followed by a battalion of infantry and band from the regular army forces at Fort Sheridan and sailors and a band from the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Numerous Legion posts, with their bands, drum and bugle corps and drill teams, will follow, as will a thousand members of high school R. O. T. C. units with their bands.

Gen. Kilbourne to Speak.

The speaking program after the parade will start from a reviewing stand in front of the city hall at 10 o'clock. Maj. Gen. Kilbourne will be the principal speaker and Miss Edith Mason of the Chicago City Opera company will sing "The Star Spangled Banner." Among the guests on the speakers' platform will be Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, State's Attorney Courtney, President Clayton Smith of the county board, Brig. Gen. Dana T. Merrill, commandant at Fort Sheridan, and Rear Admiral Downes.

In other sections of the city a number of parades and ceremonies will be held, while Legion posts and other veterans' organizations are planning evening celebrations and reunions. Legion posts composed of railroad employés will hold short ceremonies in the Union and La Salle street stations at 11 o'clock for the traveling public. All trains on the L system and electric suburban lines coming into the loop will be stopped for a minute at 11 o'clock, and buglers will sound "Taps" from the overhead bridges on the L loop.

Colored organizations of world war veterans will hold their ceremonies at 11 o'clock at 35th street and South Park way. An eight foot bronze figure of a Negro soldier is to be dedicated there as a world war memorial.

Parade in Englewood District.

Veterans' organizations of the Englewood neighborhood will parade, ending their march at 63d and Halsted streets, where a salute will be fired. Columbus Park post of the Legion is staging a parade from Austin High school to a point in Columbus park near Adams street and Menard avenue, where ceremonies will be conducted at 11 o'clock.

Polish organizations in Chicago will celebrate both Armistice day and the independence of their native land, with a luncheon at the Drake hotel. Among the Legion post celebrants in the evening will be those of Logan Square post in the Logan Square Masonic temple, and of Fort Dearborn post at 6412 Cottage Grove avenue.

Parker at Union League Club.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, who retired a few months ago from the United States army after distinguished service which included a world war combat record and a number of years spent in Chicago as commander of the 6th corps area, will make the annual Armistice day address before the members of the Union League club at noon.

Dr. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community church of New York, will speak on "Peace in a War Mad World" at 10 o'clock today in Fisk hall on the Northwestern university campus in Evanston. "Must War Go On?" will be the topic of Rabbi Joshua Loth Liebman of Congregation K. A. M., speaking at 1:15 o'clock in the ballroom of the Covenant club.

Col. Edward Davis, U. S. A., retired, former chief of staf of the 65th cavalry division, will be the speaker at the annual Armistice day convocation at Armour Tech.

Edward A. Hayes of Decatur, former national commander of the Legion, will deliver the annual Armistice day memorial lecture before alumni and faculty of the University of Illinois college of medicine, 1853 West Polk street, at 11 a. m.

State Commander Matthew Murphy of the American Legion addressed 5,000 students of Tilden Technical High school, 48th street and Union avenue, in an Armistice day program yesterday.

Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen announced yesterday that there will be no mail deliveries this afternoon, and that financial and contract stations will close at 1 o'clock. All day service will be maintained at the information counters, general and special delivery departments, and stamp windows of the old and new postoffices.

POLITICAL WARFARE LOOMS IN MEXICO AS 'STRONG MEN' SPLIT

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Political leaders said tonight the long expected open break between President Lazaro Cardenas and Gen. Saturnino Cedillo—Mexico's two "strong men"—was imminent.

A reliable report said Cedillo would leave the cabinet, in which he is secretary of agriculture, after Nov. 20. The report said Gen. Francisco J. Mujica, minister of communications, would quit the government at the same time.

The National Confederation of Revolutionary Veterans, a group with socialistic leanings, today ousted Cedillo as honorary president. Alvaro Hernandez Garcia, president of the executive council of the confederation, called Cedillo "the soul of the rightist movement in Mexico."

FEAR ARMISTICE DAY RIOTS; PARIS UNDER BIG GUARD

Reds and Fascists Set for Battle.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The government moved 10,000 mobile guard reinforcements into the capital tonight as evidence of its determination to preserve order in the city's streets on Armistice day.

It sought to prevent political rivals from clashing along the route of tomorrow's ceremonial procession. Followers of Col. Francois de la Rocque, leader of the Social party, which communists say is Fascist, and of Jacques Doriot, head of the Popular party, which seeks to combine features of communism and Fascism, both planned to line the sidewalks of the Champs Elysees.

Factions Accuse One Another.

Leftists charged that the rightists planned an anti-government demonstration. Rightists declared the People's Front—the union of Socialists, communists, and Radical Socialist parties—was trying to make the observance a pro-government rally.

French troops, following 200 tricolor battle flags of the world war, are to march in review before the tomb of the Unknown Soldier before the Socialist premier, Leon Blum, and President Albert Lebrun.

Fifty veterans of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars will join the procession to the tomb under the Arc de Triomphe.

Thousands of widows, relatives, and friends of the republic's 1,700,000 war dead will make pilgrimages to cemeteries.

King Edward to Head Ceremony.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.—King Edward VIII. of England will head the first Armistice day celebration since his accession tomorrow. He will attend the ceremony at the Cenotaph, accompanied by the dukes of York and Kent, his brothers.

Queen Mary, his mother; the princess royal, and the duchesses of York and Kent will look on from the balcony of the home office as the king lays a wreath at the foot of the monument to the British war dead just before 11 a. m.

At the king's express wish the ceremony will be carried out exactly as during his late father's lifetime. Detachments of the army, navy, and air force and the merchant and fishing fleet, as well as ex-service men, will form a hollow square about the monument for the ceremony.

Belgium to Pay Tribute.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Belgium, historic battleground of European armies, made ready tonight to pause in tribute tomorrow to the country's world war dead. King Leopold of the Belgians will confer the fire cross on the unknown soldier who lies buried at the foot of the Congress column in the Rue Royale. A civilian parade and a military one are to mark the ceremony.

Exhibit an Original Draft of Treaty of Versailles

An original draft of the treaty of Versailles, signed seven months after the cessation of warfare on Nov. 11, 1918, is an unusual Armistice day exhibit which can be seen today at the Chicago Historical society. The draft of the treaty was loaned to the society by Charles H. MacDowell, retired chemist, formerly with Armour & Co. Mr. MacDowell was a member of President Wilson's peace commission and served as technical adviser during the drawing of the peace treaty.

Orders Inquiry Into $2,000 West Side Restaurant Fire

Anthony Mullaney, chief deputy fire marshal, ordered an investigation yesterday of a $2,000 fire which early in the morning damaged a restaurant at 4752 Lake street and an adjoining building at 4750.

WALPOLE NAMES THREE NOVELS AS MASTERPIECES

Briton Tells Signposts of Modern Writing.

Three novels were named last night by Hugh Walpole, English novelist and lecturer, as the masterpieces and sign posts of modern literature. Mr. Walpole spoke in the University college lecture series of Northwestern university at Thorne hall on the downtown campus. Having attained the age of 52, Mr. Walpole declared his current platform appearances will be his "last on a lecture tour anywhere."

HUGH WALPOLE.

The books published since 1920 which were hailed as the best by the veteran author and commentator are "Ulysses," by James Joyce; "The Magic Mountain," by Thomas Mann, and "Memory of Things Past," by Marcel Proust.

Real Modern World Pictures.

"They are real pictures of the modern world," said the speaker.

Mr. Walpole traced his own literary heritage as a young man from the simple "sheep and goat" morality of the Victorian novelists through the "evil and malevolent" complexion which was suddenly created from the Parisian influence and the "birth of the new woman" to the new literary school of involved morality which decreed the truth should be told about the world.

Tells Typical Reality.

His own romantic premises, which collided with the new school, were that there was more than one world about which he could write and that somewhere in the world there is a hero.

Typical of the modern reality, Mr. Walpole said, is the literary theme that "a man wakes in the morning with a headache, feels rotten, it is raining, of course it is raining and he thinks 'Shall I take an aspirin?'"

Despite their reality and its apparent nothingness, the speaker concluded, the modern artists are still reaching out from what is at hand to the promise of better things attainable.

$10,000 IN INDECENT BOOKS WILL BURN IN NEW YORK TOMORROW

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Mounds of indecent books, playing cards, postcards, and erotic pamphlets having a market value of approximately $10,000 will be burned by the police department Thursday in a lot adjoining a department warehouse.

Martin H. Meaney, fifth deputy police commissioner, will supervise the burning. Included in the confiscated properties going to the pyre are 184 copies of "Ladies of the Parlor," seized on June 18, 1935, on a warant obtained from Magistrate Overton Harris by John S. Sumner, head of the Society for the Suppression of Vice. The books have a market value of $900.

LETTERS PENNED BY LAWRENCE OF ARABIA NET $500

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Letters revealing sidelights on the tragiglamorous life of Col .T. E. Lawrence, the "uncrowned king of Arabia," were sold for $500 at auction today.

"I wasn't a king or a prime minister," Lawrence wrote, in one of his letters to Ernest Thurtle, New York born member of the British parliament, "but I made 'em and played with 'em—and after that there wasn't much more in that direction for me to do."

In another passage, Lawrence described what he called his "abnormality" which caused him to retire, at the age of 35, and seek a hermit-like refuge "far from the madding crowd" in the lonely heath country of Dorsetshire.

Lawrence had his own bitterly evolved formula for monetarily successful literature:

"To earn money by writing you must tickle the public below the belt," he commented, in a letter which brought $97.50.

Thurtle, who became a firm friend of "Lawrence of Arabia" after suspecting his activities in India in 1929 and asking pointed questions about them in the house of commons, described his first meeting with Lawrence as "one of the rare moments in my life."

He cited a passage from another letter written to him by Lawrence, who was killed in a motorcycle crash May 19, 1935.

"Any one who has gone up as I went and has seen so much of the inside of the top of the world might well lose his aspirations," he wrote.

REOPEN RUSSELL DEATH; MOTHER GETS A THREAT

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—While authorities pressed an inquiry into the fatal shooting of Reid Russell, his mother, Mrs. Victoria Russell, reported she received a threatening telephone call today.

A woman's voice said, Mrs. Russell told police, "some harm might befall you if you continue to push this investigation into your son's death."

Russell was found shot to death last September on the Manhattan beach grounds of Gouverneur Morris, the writer. His death was listed in police records as a suicide, but the mother yesterday asked that the shooting be investigated. He had been carrying on a romance with a wealthy married woman, she told officials.

Russell was shot in the head. One hand gripped a pistol. The bullet that caused his death and the empty shell were not found.

4 Die, 40 Hurt as Religious Riots Are Renewed in India

BOMBAY, India, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and 40 injured here today in a renewal of religious rioting. Mobs fought a pitched battle in the Kamatipura area. Today's casualties brought the total for the recent disorders to 74 killed.

LIFT BAN ON SKIT 'POKING FUN' AT MRS. ROOSEVELT

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The skit in the musical revue, "New Faces," featuring portrayals of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, will go on.

The sketch, which caused a furor at the opening of the revue in Philadelphia last night and was banned by Mayor Wilson as a "a damnable outrage," was back on the boards tonight—but with modifications.

The mayor told Martin Jones, the producer, and his attorney, Francis Biddle, a friend of the Roosevelts, at a conference late today that lines in the skit weren't so bad. But the manner of the actors, depicting Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Hoover addressing a meeting of Girl Scouts, he said, was highly objectionable.

Biddle, former chairman of the National Labor Relations board, came from the conference with the announcement that "it was agreed that the performance of the play should go on, including the skit in which Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Roosevelt appeared before a meeting of Girl Scouts, with the understanding that certain physical caricaturing of these two ladies would be modified, so as to remove the mayor's criticism that it was not altogether in good taste."

The mayor last night rose from his third row seat in the middle of the sketch and stalked up the aile to tell the manager, in hearing range of some of the audience:

"Take that skit out of the show or I'll close it. It's the most damnable outrage I ever witnessed."

While the mayor was in the lobby Leonard Sillman, the author, told him the President's three sons and James Farley, Democratic national chairman, saw the production in New York and "roared" with laughter.

"Well, you can't play it here," Wilson retorted. "I know Mrs. Roosevelt personally. I am a personal friend of the Roosevelts and I won't stand for it."

The mayor added his objections "apply to Mrs. Hoover as well as to Mrs. Roosevelt—she is the wife of a former President."

Mrs. Roosevelt, at Minneapolis for an address, said she knew nothing of the incident and never had heard of the play.

"I SAW THEM DIE" TODAY'S BOOK OF WAR

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"I Saw Them Die," by Shirley Millard. [Harcourt-Brace, $1.50.] Published on Armistice day.

Today, as we celebrate eighteen years of peace [while Europe rocks in the horror of civil war or trembles with the fear of strife] there appears a simple human document which, in 115 pages of unembroidered, unimpassioned, almost unemotional words, is a powerful indictment of war.

"I Saw Them Die" is the war diary of a very young American girl who, in 1918, went to France as a helper in a French field hospital that had already been through three enervating years of service. The diary includes amplifications written after eighteen years. Those amplifications are not editorial comments on the facts. They are much more impressive than that, for they are detailed descriptions of what was necessarily briefly set down in the diary. They are impressions which were so violent that, after eighteen years, they are as vivid as when they happened.

There is neither minimizing nor aggrandizing of events in these unforgettable pages. The author shuns neither horror nor the grim humor which made life possible. Just so were the remnants of life picked up and pieced together after war had had its way with men.

Nurses in hospitals which received cases directly from the front had first hand contact with reality. Shirley Millard accepted that reality and recorded it. Facing that grim reality with the author will be one of the most salutary of any reader's experiences with books, an experience which he will scarcely forget, and one which today, of all days, should be his. It strips war of its glory.

There is nothing glorious about cutting away mud and blood caked bandages from a head and having a man's brains fall out; nothing glorious about men shrieking in agony when all that can be done is to pour oil over gas burns too deep to be bandaged and too slow in bringing death.

There is nothing glorious about an air raid at dawn when "against the blood red sky of sunrise stood a tree . . . the barren branches of which had blossomed horribly with fragments of human bodies, arms and legs, bits of bedding, furniture, and hospital equipment."

There was something epic in the courage of the French intelligence officer who cried, "Quick, there is no time to lose," and who was kept alive with saline injections just long enough to get the valuable information he had gathered about the movement of enemy troops. But there was nothing very glorious about his death.

There is nothing glorious about any of the physical ravages of war. In "I Saw Them Die" they stand unadorned.

Readers will be profoundly moved by this simple recital. The more sensitive of them will find themselves sobbing as the last page is turned, but they will also find themselves feeling like missionaries, eager to preach these facts.

Not that every page is horror. There is courageous human adjustment and saving humor. The author describes the humorous difficulties of taking a bath; tells of the one armed American who taught his hospital mates to shoot craps and won the only thing they had to gamble with, their dinner; of a tea party in which the tea was brewed in a captured German helmet and drunk from the suction cups used in pneumonia cases; of the pet fox cub that sneaked under the patient's bedclothes and was called, in French, "Hot Water Bottle."

And it records the grim humor of the indignity of an unpopular doctor walking into the front line hospital clad only in underwear because he had stepped in the mud onto a corpse and had ruined his only uniform.

In this almost elementally simple record there is an elementary message which seems, this Armistice day, a literary as well as a human one of prime importance.

ARREST BODY OF 40 UNEMPLOYED TEACHERS IN N. Y.

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Forty unemployed teachers were arrested today when they refused to leave the general field offices of the WPA. They included fifteen women and twenty-five men.

They entered the office of C. R. Smith, general field supervisor, and demanded an interview with Col. Brehon Somervell, WPA administrator. None of the teachers had qualified for home relief, according to Mr. Smith, and even if they had qualified, they had come to the wrong office for relief. They were told they could not see Col. Somervell and were asked to leave the office. They refused. Smith called the police.

Ten radio patrolmen appeared, but the teachers remained obdurate. They were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct and removed to a police station in patrol wagons.

The Qualapaca Overcoat—Its Fabric, Woven Here, Is a Blend of Six of the Finest Wools Obtainable

Of the fabrics that make a claim to being the most luxurious in their field, none are more deserving of it than those woven of the long silken strands from the Kid Kashmir of Hindustan; the soft wool of the Andean alpaca, the Llama and Guanaco. Used individually, these wools provide the softest textured materials known, are costly, but incapable of wear. It's from these four wools that the fabric in Qualapaca coats derives its warmth-giving qualities, richness and velvety smooth finish. It is the weaving of these four wools together with the addition of the finest Australian and American wools that equips this same overcoating with the stamina to resist successful season after season wear. There are few coats with the endurance of a Qualapaca, and none better fitted to help you weather the vagaries of a Chicago winter with more contentment and comfort. Qualapaca overcoats are available in four styles, and every coat is lined throughout with celanese satin.

We are of the firm belief that no shirt, regardless of the fineness of its fabric or the painstaking tailoring that has gone into it, is worth its salt, if it is not topped with a collar whose fit and styling doesn't do something for you. Feeling as strongly as we do about this, the collars of our collar attached shirts come in for attention equal to that lavished on the made-to-measure product. This takes in not only the manner in which every collar is tailored and finished—but the correctness of their styling—no detail that will make a definite contribution towards a well groomed effect is overlooked. All this care, thought and study is expensive and takes time, but the results justify it. You'll find that the collar you favor is here—its styling, smartly interpreted by shirt tailors to whom the set of a collar is a matter of personal as well as professional pride.

We ran across the velour cloth of these robes in a Britisher's dressing gown. Ran down its source, and bought up the limited yardage available. Back in London we put tailors to work on it who have as many fine robes behind them as a Royal warrant tailor has suits. Given time, we got from these craftsmen a lounge robe whose styling combines matchless comfort with the sophisticated elegance of a cocktail jacket. The fabric itself is beautifully soft and firm, and liberally endowed with qualities that provide well for both wear and luxurious warmth. In solid colors as shown with plaid trim and plaid with solid color trim.

To Women:

It takes something like these robes to get gift lists off to the right start, and with Christmas only 44 days off—you'd do well also to make a point of seeing the robes shown here.

LEAHY IS NAMED TO CHIEF NAVAL COMMAND POST

Standley Will Retire on Jan. 1.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today appointed Admiral William D. Leahy, commander of the navy battle force, to fill the post of chief of naval operations when Admiral William H. Standley retires from that topmost of navy high commands on Jan. 1.

It was also announced that Maj. Gen. John H. Russell, commandant of the marine corps, would be succeeded in that post when he retires from active service on Dec. 1 by Brig. Gen. Thomas Holcombe. The latter will be elevated to the rank of major general of marines.

Several changes in fleet commands and shore assignments were made necessary by Admiral Leahy's promotion.

Rear Admiral Claude C. Bloch, now commanding battleship division 2, was given the temporary rank of admiral and appointed to succeed Admiral Leahy as commander of the battle fleet, the second highest command in the fleet.

Rear Admiral Edward C. Kalbfus, president of the navy war college, was appointed vice admiral and commander of battleships of the United States fleet. He relieved Vice Admiral C. S. Kempff, who was ordered assigned as commandant of the Mare Island, Cal., navy yard.

Rear Admiral Arthur St. Clair Smith, now commandant of the Mare Island navy yard, was assigned as commandant of the 12th naval district at San Francisco.

Rear Admiral Charles P. Snyder, commanding division 6 of the fleet, was appointed to relieve Rear Admiral Kalbfus as president of the naval war college.

Rear Admiral David F. Sellers will remain as superintendent of the naval academy at Annapolis until February, 1938, when he is scheduled to retire.

U. S. ARMY SEEKS MANY HUNDRED RECRUITS HERE

Several branches of the United States army are enlisting men at the United States courthouse, according to Col. William W. Edwards, recruiting officer. He announced yesterday that several hundred men are wanted.

The enlistments are open in the infantry, cavalry, field artillery, medical department, air corps, ordnance department, quartermaster corps, and signal corps. Application can be made in person or by mail to the recruiting station in room 1101 of the courthouse.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 35 years, unmarried, and of good character, Col. Edwards said. If between the ages of 18 and 21 years applicants must have the written consent of parents or guardians.

Concetta Lallone, 45 years old, a laborer living at 4624 West Monroe street, was killed yesterday when he fell 100 feet inside a brick smokestack which was being dismantled at the F. C. Austin building at 111 West Jackson boulevard. His body was recovered two hours later by firemen who opened a hole in the foot of the stack. Lallone and his nephew, Thomas Blando, 21, 1006 Polk street, were working near the top of the stack when falling bricks broke one of the planks on which they were standing. Blando managed to grab another plank and save himself.

ASSAILS TAPPING OF U. S. WEALTH BY WAR VETERANS

Hobart Talks Before Commerce Group.

"Nibbling" at the nation's wealth by continued passage of benefits for war veterans is one of the most important social and economic problems confronting the United States today and must be stopped. This statement was made to members of the Junior Association of Commerce of Chicago last night in the Civic Opera building by Donald A. Hobart, New York, commander of the American Veterans' association. This organization is composed of war veterans and its aim is to call a halt on excessive payments to veterans.

"The United States," said Commander Hobart, "is the only one of the belligerent nations of the world war which has shown a constant increase in veterans' cost.

Benefits in U. S. High.

"On the basis of men mobilized our casualties in the world war were eight per cent. This is compared with 73 per cent for France. In 1932 the Veterans' administration in Washington calculated that the cost of veterans' benefits in this country, on the basis of each man killed or wounded, was $2,668.66. The average cost per casualty in all the other belligerent nations is $53.

"To date the world war veterans of the United States have received nine and one-fourth billion dollars in one way or another in eighteen years. The Grand Army of the Republic took 70 years to get a little over six billion dollars, or about 50 per cent less than the world war veterans. This shows the trend is increasing."

Finds Lawmakers Afraid.

Commander Hobart said that the principal reason for the constant increase is that lawmakers, congressmen and state legislators are afraid that they will be voted out of office if they do not approve the benefits.

"A lobbyist of a veterans' organization tells the lawmakers that he controls a lot of votes," Commander Hobart said. "This is a fallacy. Some time, and possibly soon, the lawmakers will wake up to the fact that they have nothing to fear from the veterans so far as losing their jobs by defeat at the polls and then the benefits will stop."

ASK FOR REPORTS ON TRUANCY DUE TO POOR CLOTHES

Truant officers have been asked to report to the Chicago relief administration all cases in which children are compelled to remain at home because of lack of clothing. This announcement was made yesterday by City Relief Commissioner Leo M. Lyons.

"We do not know the extent of this cause of truancy," Mr. Lyons said. "We may find, among other things, that many of the children in this category are from families not on relief rolls. We are coöperating with the board of education to remedy the situation as quickly as possible."

Charles E. Miner, deputy state administrator of WPA, said yesterday that he would favor a project whereby WPA workers would repair the shoes of needy children in the schools. Such a project is being considered by relief and school authorities, who would furnish materials, but formal application has not yet been made to WPA.

ROOSEVELT SON REVEALS SNUB BY THEODORE'S WIFE

Kinswoman Asks Him to Avoid Her Lecture.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, strapping son of the President, said today he acceded to a request by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. not to introduce her to a Fort Worth town hall audience last night to avoid an "embarrassing" situation.

Young Roosevelt, invited several weeks ago to appear at the town hall lecture and introduce his distant relative, said he cancelled plans when Mrs. Roosevelt wrote him that divergent political views "would make it embarrassing for all concerned for you to appear at the lecture."

The letter suggested, Roosevelt said, that he inform the town hall committee that he would be out of the city and could not serve.

Not "for Publication."

Small, vivacious Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the former governor of the Philippines, in Dallas tonight for a similar lecture on "Life in the Philippines," said:

"I have written no letters to the Roosevelt family for publication.

"The Fort Worth town hall committee made all arrangements for my lecture. A Mr. Kennedy, whom I had never met, introduced me."

Viewed as "Courtesy and Duty."

Elliott Roosevelt said he agreed when Mrs. W. M. Harrison, executive secretary of the town hall group, asked him to introduce Mrs. Roosevelt, adding that he saw no reason why the fact that his father, the President, and Theodore Roosevelt Jr., differed in political views should interfere with what he considered "a courtesy to a relative and my duty as a citizen of Forth Worth."

Young Roosevelt said he received a letter from the lecturer in which she reminded him that her husband's political views "differed in every respect to those of your father, the President."

Cites Peril of "Embarrassment."

The letter continued, he said, that she entertained the same views as her husband and that "it would be embarrassing to all concerned for you to appear at the lecture."

The President's son said he telegraphed his relative that under the circumstances he would oblige.

Roosevelt said he then explained to Mrs. Harrison of the town hall committee that "I wanted you to know the whole story, as I would not let you down with a lie, nor would I do anything to make Mrs. Roosevelt angry at your organization."

Mrs. Roosevelt, after her introduction by Kennedy, thanked him for not referring to her "as one of those out-of-season Roosevelts."

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Christmas liquor packages must contain liquor and nothing else.

The federal alcohol administration today virtually placed a ban on the plan of some producers to furnish retailers with alcoholic beverages packed in elaborate boxes of substantial value to purchasers—containers in the form of miniature bars or those containing cocktail shakers, muddlers, lamps, bottle openers, or other useful articles of appreciable value.

Furnishing of consumer advertising specialties in combination with alcoholic beverages might involve violation of the law, the FAA warned.

New Michigan Ave. Walk Signals Are Approved

The Chicago parl: board yesterday approved plans for installing new pedestrian "walk" signals on all Michigan avenue intersections between Randolph street and Roosevelt road, and for extending the progressive trafic light system to 26th street. At present the "walk" signals are on the trafic standards in the center of Michigan, making it difficult for a pedestrian standing on a safety island to see them. A blue light will be placed on each of the four corners of the fifteen intersections included in the plans.

SENATOR ABOUT TO CRACK DOWN ON LIT. DIGEST

Magazine Warned to Keep Records.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—United States Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, demanding a senate investigation into the Literary Digest's 1936 presidential poll, said today he would sponsor legislation to place future straws votes under strict federal supervision.

In a statement the veteran Tennessee Democrat described the Digest poll, which forecast victory for Gov. Alf M. Landon, as "a great wrong to American voters," and added:

"Any newspaper or magazine conducting such a poll, before being allowed to publish partial or final results, should have a federal supervisory body composed of active and intelligent partisans of the parties participating in the election.

Would "Insure Fairness."

"The individuals composing such a supervisory body should be of such character and ability as to insure the utmost fairness and honesty of the poll; and no newspaper or magazine should be permitted to publish the returns of any preëlection poll until its fairness and correctness are passed upon by such bipartisan or multipartisan board."

He said that although the magazine's poll was "entirely discredited by the election" in which Landon carried only two states to President Roosevelt's 46, measures should be taken to prevent another such "performance."

The senator said he would introduce a resolution calling for the senate inquiry at the next session of congress. He asserted he also would author the proposal for supervision of preëlection polls.

Fears Heavy Losses.

"It would be hard to estimate the enormous sums of money that were lost by enthusiastic Landonites in the last days of the campaign," McKellar continued.

"On the other hand it [the Digest poll] caused hundreds of thousands, and perhaps millions of voters to vote for Landon in the hope they would get on the bandwagon."

The Literary Digest "guessed correctly" on three previous presidential elections, McKellar said, "and led many to believe it had some uncanny system of tests which could be depended upon."

The magazine was advised by him to preserve "all of its books, papers, returns, ballots, and every other fact connected with the poll intact so that the committee conducting the investigation shall be able to get full, accurate and true information concerning the entire poll."

Count 'Em, Says Digest.

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Literary Digest, sponsor of a preëlection poll which Senator McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] said should be investigated, invited the senator today to examine all its records at its offices here and count the ballots himself.

PONDER ELECTION EFFECT ON ISSUE OF WORLD COURT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—the senate's world court lineup gave the senate's world court line-up gave rise today to speculation that President Roosevelt might be encouraged to revive the issue in the next congress.

Of first significance, it was noted that while ratification of American adherence missed by seven votes in January, 1935, ten of those who voted against it have been displaced by defeat at the polls, death or retirement.

How their successors would vote, should the question be raised again, remained to be revealed. Some quarters held it of possible significance, however, that all but two of them were Democrats who came into office with the Roosevelt sweep of last week.

No Mention in Platform.

The Democratic platform of this year made no mention of the court. But President Roosevelt has been a vigorous advocate of adherence and there was nothing to indicate a change in his attitude since he urged ratification at the outset of the last congress. The Republican platform declared against the court.

At all events, some administration aids, interested in foreign affairs, were keenly aware of the year's changes in the personnel of the senate and have been doing some close figuring on how the new senate might vote.

Last year's vote was 52 to 36, or seven less affirmative votes than the two-thirds stipulated by the constitution for ratification. The result was in doubt to the last minute, with administration forces confident of victory.

Death, Defeat Take Foes.

Of the thirty-six who voted against ratification last January Carey of Wyoming, Dickinson of Iowa, Hastings of Delaware, Metcalf of Rhode Island [all Republicans], and Gore of Oklahoma, Democrat, have been defeated in primary or general elections. Death took Senators Long of Louisiana, Murphy of Iowa, Trammell of Florida [all Democrats], and Schall of Minnesota, a Republican. Coolidge of Massachusetts, a Democrat, did not seek reëlection.

Democrats were elected to all of these places with the exception that Senator Elect Lodge, a Republican, succeeded Coolidge, and Senator Elect Lunden, Farmer-Labor, followed Schall.

Skin Troubles
Come from Constipation

Constipation is the cause of most complexion troubles. Poisons from the waste matter are picked up by the blood and carried to all parts of the body, especially the skin.

No one needs to have a sallow, muddy complexion. Proper diet, exercise, surface cleanliness and above all—internal cleanliness. Nujol prevents intestinal poisons that ruin your health and complexion.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Just try Nujol regularly for the next month and see if you don't feel better than you ever suspected you could.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

WHEELS WITHIN WHEELS.

The electoral college not being an institution for the education of qualified voters—it does not play anybody Saturday—but the instrumentality for electing a President, the actual election did not take place Nov. 3. It is probable that no die-hard hopes will be aroused by this situation. They are not worth entertaining. Mr. Farley really has it in the bag.

People may observe that a candidate who got 17,000,000 votes will cash only 8 votes where they count. Seventeen million is a sizable number of voters, but they produce only 8 collegians, not enough for a football team, not even if they measured up to Minnesota. So it will recur that something ought to be done about this.

As Mr. P. G. Wodehouse so often has one of his characters remark after studying the complications of life: "There are wheels within wheels." The automobile taught us that the fifth wheel was not a figure of speech on a buggy. The electoral college was the device by which the American people came to what proved to be the popular election of the President and it was so intended by its author, James Wilson of Pennsylvania.

Wilson was known as a scholarly man, a great lawyer and fellow of highly respected mental equipment. Just the same when he proposed to his associates in the constitutional convention that the chief executive of the United States could be one person and that he could be elected by the people, so far were the Founders from that excellent and even imperative idea of a republic that they raised their eyebrows and at best could be only polite in asking him precisely how he proposed to go about this admirable but impossible thing.

Mr. Wilson frankly didn't know and he said so. He was advised in a tone which plainly implied that he should take something every two hours in a little water, doctor's prescription, to apply, again as Mr. Wodehouse would say, the cream of the Wilson brain to it. A Founder never had a more skeptical audience than Mr. Wilson had at that moment in Philadelphia.

He gave the idea his reflections overnight and the next day produced the electoral college just about as it is today to make possible the election of the President of the United States by the people of the United States. It was one of the great conceptions of political history struck off the brain of a single man who continued to be regarded for weeks thereafter in the convention in which he sat as slightly touched mentally on this particular subject.

In the end, and almost at the very end, he prevailed. Otherwise the President might have been anything from an executive head appointed by a board of directors to a body of men at war with each other.

Now it could be said that a party which has only 8 electoral votes is plainly swept aside, whereas a party with seventeen million supporters is very much alive. Therefore, whatever creates the impression that such a party is dead does the country no service psychologically. A more serious thing might be the election of one candidate with more electoral votes over a candidate with more of the people's votes. But reform here would walk considerately.

The United States is not a simple governmental and national unit. One of its wonders is found in its political complexities and the ease with which usually they go into gear and mesh. It is something that in spite of a civil war there is so little sectional antagonism and regional particularism. It helps to this desirable end that people feel they vote not only as the people of the nation but as people of a state, of their own particular region.

Time in the end may run against the electoral college, but prudence would turn the glass many times.

THE HIGH SCHOOL PROBLEM.

The growth in enrollment in the high schools of this country is amazing. William Betz of the Rochester, N. Y., school system in an address at the University of Illinois called attention to a forty-fold increase in high school attendance between 1880 and 1930 and a thirteen-fold increase since 1930. There are now 7 million children in the high schools, which means that nearly half the children of high school age are continuing their education.

State laws advancing the school leaving age have had a part in bringing about this great increase. The depression has also contributed; the lack of opportunities for employment in business and industry has kept many young people in school who otherwise would have gone to work. Some of the recent increase can be attributed to grants of money from the government to school children. But these influences have all been unimportant in comparison with the determination of most parents to give all the schooling that their means will afford to their children.

Americans believe in education and most of them now believe that a primary education is not enough. The great increase in high school enrollment is another index, like the widespread possession of automobiles, of the gradually increasing family income.

Naturally, the great growth in high school attendance has created a variety of problems for educators. Some of them are financial. New schools cost money and staffing and maintaining them cost even more. The selection of properly qualified teachers has not been easy at a time when recruiting has had to be hasty. But the most difficult problem of all has been the maintenance of educational standards in the face of a vast influx of students, many of them none too well qualified for high school studies.

That problem remains to be solved. One way out, of course, is to accept a lower standard of accomplishment. If the larger attendance today cannot attain the goals which were set a generation ago the goals can be moved within easier reach. Not many school administrators would admit that they had accepted this solution, but there is little doubt that, in fact, many have. Children are graduated from many high schools today who formerly would not have made the grade.

It is against this tendency that Mr. Betz, and with him most of the educators of this country who take their responsibility seriously, are struggling. Some of them are thinking of restricting high school enrollment somewhat as the colleges do, by fixing fairly high standards and dismissing any students who cannot attain them. It is unlikely that this remedy can be employed, even if it were generally felt to be desirable, because the laws of most of the states forbid children of high school age to work. As long as those laws remain the children must go to school and the school authorities must provide instruction for them.

The solution which Mr. Betz advocated at the Urbana meeting avoids this difficulty. He recommends a reconditioning period for retarded pupils and at the same time special honor groups and more advanced courses for the brighter and more industrious. In that way the great danger that the abler pupils will be held back and will be encouraged by low standards to acquire habits of laziness and indifference can be avoided.

This solution will not appeal to those who think that public education in a democracy requires that each pupil receive exactly the same treatment as every other pupil. They confuse equality of opportunity with equality of intellect and character and forget that while equality of opportunity can be approximated, there never can be equality of intellect throughout the population. If it is assumed that all children are equally bright and equally industrious the schools must deteriorate.

If the schools deteriorate the chief sufferers in the long run will be the less gifted pupils. They must depend upon able and intelligent leadership in their generation. If as a result of inferior schooling the able are handicapped the others will have fewer jobs, less income, and more hardships.

ARMISTICE DAY.

Armistice day celebrates the end of a war. It was a victorious war and yet the note of exultation is almost completely lacking today. That may be because the fruits of victory were disappointing. A war which was expected to result in the extension of democratic freedom, in the checking of autocracy by constitutional restraints, in peace and plenty, achieved none of these objectives. It is difficult to escape the conclusion that the war for the most part actually retarded the attainment of the ends which were promised.

The war was disappointing in another sense. It produced no outstanding leaders whom the nation can place beside Washington, Jackson, Grant, Paul Jones, and Farragut.

But we can and do turn with pride and gratitude today to the great host of men in all ranks who acquitted themselves gallantly in the war. Their devotion and their sacrifice were all that could have been expected. Their example remains to inspire us and those who will come after us.

REFORM IN NEW YORK, AND NONE TOO SOON.

A movement has recently started in New York to give the sucker a break. It appears that slickers operating along the great white way have been taking tourists for rides. The fleecing has been so persistent that the city's reputation for clipping has become notorious. One victim telling another has made the situation appear much worse than it really is. The result is that people from the hinterland have been staying away from New York rather than subject themselves to the grave hazard.

At last, reports Variety, the city is coming to grips with this evil. A committee has been formed by representatives of cabarets, hotels, tourist agencies, and railroads to put a stop to the illegitimate practices which have given New York a black eye.

Chicago, we are happy to be able to say, has been free from this sort of thing. Here, a guest is a guest. The risk of being short-changed in Chicago is no greater than in the general store at Orchard Corners. At the bright night spots here a Texan in a ten gallon hat can get as much entertainment for his money as any native. Millions came to Chicago during A Century of Progress. Some may have found bigger numbers on their dinner bills than seemed reasonable, but there were agencies in Chicago to protect the World's Fair guests. It is a satisfaction to know that an organized effort is to be made in New York to place the tourist business on the high plane which is just a matter of custom in Chicago.

By the way, whatever has happened to the Yellow Kid?

FIRST AID ON HIGHWAYS.

[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.]

Second only to the problem of reducing highway accidents is the problem of adequate first aid care for the injured. The Red Cross has already established first aid stations on many principal highways and plans to extend the system as funds permit.

A supplementary suggestion of interest is that offered by Dr. Byron Stookey of the New York Neurological institute before the New York Academy of Medicine, proposing the establishment of first aid stations in filling stations. These could be established at slight expense, he said, and would be a good investment for the filling stations, on practical as well as humanitarian grounds.

"Buy at a gas station equipped to render first aid" would be an excellent advertising slogan and indicative of a real humanitarian service, he said.

Attendants could be trained to give simple first aid service, he believes.

Thanks to the educational efforts of medical and other authorities, the public is learning some important facts about the treatment of persons injured in highway accidents. It knows, or should know, that a badly injured person might better be left lying by the roadside than moved by inexpert but well meaning bystanders. Dr. Stookey pointed out that even so slight a movement as the raising of the victim's head to drink might aggravate a spinal fracture so that complete paralysis would result.

The Red Cross has dinned away on the same theme. A ride to a hospital may prove fatal to a seriously injured person. The best first aid advice is to leave the victim alone until the arrival of expert help.

THE LEGION OF THE DEAD.

What ghostly drums are in the skies?
What shadows march across the earth?—
What specters, these, with pallid eyes
And lips devoid of human mirth?
'Tis the Legion of the Dead!—
The soldier hosts that sleep and rise—
No beat is in the muffled tread,
And no bugles blow.

What grief, like tangled ivy, twines
Around these dreams that might have been?
What hearts alone in sheltered vines
Lean out to draw them closely in?
'Tis the Legion of the Dead!
No hand may break the silent lines,
And rank on rank is onward led—
And no bugles blow.

MILITARY EXPERTS assert that cavalry is outmoded in modern warfare. Perhaps. But the soldiering gentry will ride horses in parades until some genius invents a little tank that will come up out of the pasture when you whistle.

WE ALWAYS LIKED the identification of the romantic Mr. Barrymore and his newest bride with two Shakespearean characters, but the apex of our pleasure was reached last year when a downstate paper headlined seriously: "Barrymore Fleeing from His Aerial."

OVERWEENING AMBITION.

Those smart dogs you have been press agenting were tyros compared to Jitters, the terrier that Slim Brown, the telephone lineman down at Cairo, used to own. Slim noticed it made Jitters mad when a cat he was chasing ran up a tree. So he got some lineman's spikes and adjusted them on the pup. In about a week Jitters could climb a tree faster than a Frenchman can swallow an oyster. It was funny to see the cats (who got to know of his ability in no time) stick to the straightaway when he went after them. . . . Poor Jitters, His end came when somebody brought a flying squirrel into Cairo. Jitters chased it to the top of a tall pine and then, thinking he could fly because he could climb, followed the critter as it zoomed to another tree—and broke his neck.

ARMISTICE DAY, 1918.

WE LINED UP, that dreary November morning, along the road that led northeast from the time spotted little village near Bar-le-Duc that had been our home for a week. "Fall in, you scrubs," a first sergeant grated; "think you can rest forever just because you spent October in the Argonne? We're goin' up to take Metz, and if anybody bets you can't, take him. If you don't win they won't let you come back with your shoes on." . . . Time dragged on. Eleven o'clock came. A train, halted at the station, blew its steam away. The bell on the schoolhouse tolled wildly. Half crazy villagers, some in wooden shoes, began running out to give the brave Americans whiskered kisses. "Feeneesh war," they cried. The soldiers liked it all but the embracing. On order they fell out, but without horseplay. . . . London, Paris, and Chicago celebrated with confetti and craziness. For us in the village it was enough to know that champagne and beds in dry haylofts were to be had—and no Metz to be taken.

Down in Hometown (central Indiana) a few days ago some one asked the oldest cracker box percher if he could explain the significance of the squirrel tail one of our young bloods had tied on the radiator cap of his car. Whereupon he laughed, displaying both his upper teeth, and chortled: "It's a sign. Yessir, means a fur piece to go."

RISKING ONE EYE.

We were having a warm local election in Hometown. Mayor Demos, seeking to succeed himself, cried to an assembled multitude: "I would rather put out my right eye than take a dollar of dishonest graft." The next day Mr. Respublica, before a multitude equally dense (in at least two senses), cried back: "The records of all the oculists he ever consulted show that the right eye of Demos is astigmatic. Why didn't he offer his good left one—and what sort of graft, if any, would be consider dishonest?" Pretty fair as repartee, but Hometown's mayor still has both eyes.

FEELING LOW? LOOK TO THYROID.

THERE is no simple, easy formula that may be used to explain the many varieties of nervousness, and this discussion is designed to call attention to the rather common occurrence of "nerve" symptoms, even mental disturbances, following failure of the thyroid gland to perform satisfactorily.

We have all seen instances among our friends of alert, up-and-coming men and women who gradually changed into fat, logy, and indifferent persons. They may have complained that they tired easily, exhibited numerous aches and pains, had difficulty in concentrating upon any task of importance, and were unable to make decisions. There was a rather steady loss of memory and a listlessness that was inexplainable when one thought back a year or so and compared—in retrospect—their aforetime energy. Even the features showed a dulling of expression with an ironing out of muscle contours and the gait was often slow and clumsy. Frequently the victim observed that he simply could not get his work done. As a rule, the demand for sleep was greatly increased and sometimes the speech was stumbling and halting.

Other individuals show marked excitement at periods, interspersed with intervals of apathy and mental confusion. Occasionally they may require forcible control. Along with the mental unrest there may come certain fixed ideas or resentments toward members of the family. These may fade away at times, when the patient will resume his former somnolence.

The case is reported of a 28 year old woman on whom a diagnosis of a psychosis had been made. Some months prior to the examination she had noticed that her strength and vitality were diminishing. She was very sensitive to cold and her memory began to fail. Symptoms of melancholia were present now and then. She had increased in weight with noticeable enlargement of the hands and feet, and it had been necessary twice to purchase shoes of larger size.

Examination by a skilled psychiatrist revealed a person who, except for her previous history, would have been considered subnormal mentally. Further investigation disclosed the low state of metabolism, pointing to a failure on the part of the thyroid. With appropriate medication soon there was no trace of her chilly feelings, her mental reactions became quicker, and she lost four pounds in weight within ten days. In the same period the metabolic rate rose from a minus 37 to a minus 21. Within another few weeks all symptoms of mental depression were completely eliminated and her appearance became that of an alert, wide-awake woman.

Cases of this type could be multiplied at great length, but the indication is clear that the thyroid can be responsible for a galaxy of symptoms involving not only the physical organism but the mental and nervous reactions as well.

Physicians have learned that it is exceedingly difficult to fix a dose of thyroid gland substance that will apply to all individuals. Before attempting medication the patient and his thyroid demands must be studied. Most physicians will use a very small quantity at the outset, administered once or twice daily. If no unfavorable symptoms appear after two weeks the amount may be increased gradually to the limit of tolerance. There is danger of upsetting the metabolism by too generous doses of this powerful material. Nervousness, excitability, and excessive perspiration, with feelings of heat, palpitation, and breathlessness, may develop because too much of this gland extract is absorbed.

After a time a fairly stable, so-called maintenance, portion can be arrived at. We must remember, however, that the very presence of the drug may bring about a certain amount of reactivity on the part of the gland itself, and unless the physician is called upon to make regular checks the established level may be excessive and the first thing we know the patient has been thrown from a "too little" to a "too much" thyroid state.

NOT THE SAME.

M. S. writes: Originally my case was diagnosed as multiple sclerosis and later as myelitis. Are these two conditions the same?

REPLY.

No! Multiple sclerosis occurs in young and middle aged adults. Patches of degeneration are scattered throughout the nervous system with consequent impairment of function. They are found more frequently in the spinal cord. Symptoms, of course, depend upon the location of the lesions. There is generally a marked tremor, sometimes called an "intention tremor," which manifests itself when the patient attempts to grasp an object. Speech is sometimes drawling or "scanning." The cause is unknown. It has been held to be due to an infection or to some food or metabolic deficiency.

Myelitis indicates softening of the spinal cord. It is due to an inflammation involving the covering, that is, the meninges of the cord and the blood vessels. Injury to the circulation thus destroys the cord substance. The cause is ascribed to an infection or a toxin and sometimes follows tonsilitis, measles, scarlet fever, erysipelas, or some other infectious diseases. Symptoms include a mild fever, pains in the back radiating down the limbs, and the sensation that a belt is drawn tightly about the body. Numbness and tingling of the legs will appear. Weakness of the muscles is first noticed and is followed usually by complete paralysis. The onset is fairly rapid with progressive loss of power in the legs. These symptoms differentiate the disease from multiple sclerosis.

HYPERTENSION.

J. M. F. writes: In a case of hypertension, where liver extract was taken daily for several days without ill effects and where there was a reduction of about sixty points in systolic pressure, is there any reason for discontinuing this treatment? It is true the pressure went up as soon as this substance was discontinued.

REPLY.

There is no occasion for discontinuing the liver extract if the patient is free from symptoms. The pressure rose gradually to its former level, indicating that liver supplied some needed hormone, thus completing the balance of endocrine secretions.

BASHFULNESS.

M. D. writes: Is bashfulness a disease? How can one be rid of it?

REPLY.

It is not a disease but is due to self-consciousness or to a sense of inferiority. The cure depends upon the restoration of confidence. Your friends can help by well deserved compliments, emphasizing your good points.

PAY CUTS.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—As a former employé of the county board I, who was one of the overworked and underpaid staf members in the Cook County hospital, have been rewarded for my years of faithful service with a discharge that has never been explained and forced salary cuts that have never been repaid.

When I read of pay restitutions to different city and west park employés I remember with bitterness that our beneficent county board has steadfastly refused to consider restitutions of depression salary cuts gouged out of its few thousand county employés. It seems that only the higher-ups get anything that resembles an even break out of the county.

Is Cook county too poor or too miserly to restore these paltry thousands to its hard working employés? Must we resort to law to get what is rightfully ours? A FORMER EMPLOYE.

RECKLESS DRIVING.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Tonight at 8:30 my patience was exhausted. Your lawbreaking trucks bother me. Example: Eight-thirty p. m. Thursday, Nov. 5, 1936, at Division street and Oakley boulevard, one of your trucks, No. 160, passed me up on the left side of the street, went through the stop sign on Oakley boulevard, continued west on Division street to Western avenue, passed another car on the left side, and made a left turn against the stop signal. I begin to wonder if your drivers ever read your news about driving safely.

Reports of accidents concerning newspaper trucks never seem to reach your pages, but I'm certain there must be some accidents coming from all this lawbreaking, or is it perhaps that the driving public knows how fast and reckless your drivers drive and keep their distance? E. J. KAHN.

CLOCKS.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Last Tuesday the people expressed themselves as being against eastern standard time. It seems to me that the time is ripe for the changing of the clock over the whole country. The changing of the clocks four times during the rapid trip across the country in airplanes should convince us that a standard time for the United States is needed. But the changing of the clocks should not be done by local or state government. This is a matter for the federal government to act upon. This change will not cause as many complications as it might seem.

HENRY MAILER.

NOT IN VAIN.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Your great work for the preservation of our American form of government and free citizenry I know has not been altogether in vain. I have talked with numerous persons in the last two days and have heard the remark, "I voted for Mr. Roosevelt and I hope he doesn't let us down," which indicates Mr. Roosevelt will be watched as never before and a hue and cry will be raised if he betrays the trust reposed in him. EX-DEMOCRAT.

ALCOHOL AND AUTOMOBILES.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—The casualty record as commented upon editorially yesterday is enough to startle any thinking person.

However, it is with considerable amazement that one observes that THE TRIBUNE feels that the elevated highways offer the outstanding solution. They would help—but not adequately in the present—and the future situation.

Working with youth as I do, I observe that one of the greatest contributing factors to the trafic problem is the extensive and unlimited urge to drink beverage alcohol which comes through modern advertising. No man, woman, boy or girl can drink modern high alcohol content beer, wine or spirits and remain normal.

It is hopeless to talk temperance in the use of alcohol with the tremendous advertising promotion that surrounds us. There can be no such thing as moderation.

Police officials quite freely admit that it is the drinking driver that is the greatest trafic hazard—not the drunk driver.

May I respectfully request—in the interest of modern youth and in the interest of adult life—that you face this whole situation with new concern for humanity?

ERNEST S. MARKS,
General Secretary,
Michigan Christian Endeavor Union.

RACKET.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Some months ago you attacked the pernicious racket in the courthouse of the politicians and their underlings selling tickets to banquets, dances, picnics, etc. Shortly thereafter it stopped. Now they are at it again. The big boys at the top distribute these tickets and tell the small fry they must sell them or pay for them. The result is the clerks pester lawyers and every one who comes into the building to relieve them of the duty of digging into their own pockets to pay for them. If you do not buy tickets you get no service and are reminded you are something pretty low. These tickets are for affairs that no one wants to attend, and the whole system is a means of collecting funds to further the personal ambitions and ends of the political bosses. You did one good job in stopping this before. If you can stop it permanently it certainly will be appreciated by a long suffering public. H.

A RUGGED INDIVIDUAL.

Paw Paw, Mich., Nov. 5.—Five years ago at the age of 60 I was for the first time in my life obliged to support myself. I scorn the dole, and am too busy to worry about old age pension plans. My one grievance is the taxes paid for the benefit of the Weary Willies of this land, of which there are far too many. Now that this nation, ostrichlike, seems headed again for the cleaners, where regardless of the plainness of our millinery they will lose even their pin feathers, would it be wise to grab a few letters and organize a triple B [bigger and better backbones]?

SPIRIT OF NINETY-THREE.

BANK STOCK.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 8.—I am not a lawyer, but Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson deserves a pat on the back for his honest interpretation of stockholders' liability. Why should all the stockholders of the Central Republic bank be exempt from their liability to depositors unlike any other bank stockholders throughout the U. S. A.? They accepted the stock when it was paying good returns, so why shirk when they are called upon by depositors to carry out their duty called for by law regarding such bank stock liability?

There are plenty of other bank stockholders in the U. S. A. who were honest enough to lay their assessment on the line. Surely the Central Republic bank stockholders should be no different.

We have all suffered losses the last few years, but if the small investor plays the game honestly, why not the wealthy? He is better able to pay. It is too bad this affair has dragged since Nov. 19, 1934, as it gives the stockholder time to hide some of his assets and plead poverty. Now the court has ruled, let's see them pay up like honest men, so the depositor receives his 100 per cent. ASSESSED STOCKHOLDER.

DISHWASHING.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—For some time, and particularly after having read the excellent article you have just published in today's SUNDAY TRIBUNE on the subject of "Syphilis," the writer has given thought to the washing or rather lack of washing of eating utensils in some restaurants, drug stores, etc.

I refer, of course, to eating places where this so-called washing is done before the patron, and where in a great many instances water only is employed, and in others where little if any soap is used.

This letter is not intended to express the pent-up emotions of a meticulous housewife or an old maid napkin-wiper-of-spoon-and-fork-before-eating; on the contrary the writer has no dirt phobia, but believes that if something were done to improve the situation mentioned above by certain antiseptic requirements a few innocent and unsuspecting persons might be spared an unnecessary transfer point of colds, syphilis, tuberculosis, and other diseases. SANITAS.

FROM A POLICE HERO.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—On behalf of myself and my family I want to take this occasion to thank you sincerely for your kindness in awarding me THE TRIBUNE award for heroism for the month of September, 1936.

Your kindness in making these awards will no doubt act as an inspiration to other members of the department in performing their full duty as police officers, irrespective of how trying the circumstances may be. JOHN J. RYAN.

NOVEL POINT OF VIEW.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Your detractors to the contrary, THE TRIBUNE is in a most strategic editorial position.

If your dire forebodings come to pass you will be looked upon as a prophet and a patriot; if they do not, nobody is worse off. CALINICUS.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

TO FIND JUDGMENT.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Tell me the easiest way to find out if there is a judgment against me. Eight years ago we bought a building and signed mortgage notes. Since then we sold the building, taking back a second mortgage. The party buying from us did not keep up either mortgage and as I did not have the means to foreclose the party holding the first mortgage did the foreclosing.

I lost my equity and [2] never heard if they got a judgment against me for signing the notes. This was 2½ years ago. How can I find out?

3. I have no legal description of the property. A. J. C.

1. You can examine the judgment indices in the recorder's office in the county building.

2. If you are not hunting for judgments in general but merely for what was done in this specific case you could examine the files in the office of the clerk of the court in question.

3. You do not indicate what you have to begin with. If all you have is the street number of the property your first step would be to get the legal description at the city map department.

9 POLICE GUARD $500,000 EXHIBIT IN SCHOOLS SUIT

Payment of $2,500,000 Tax Warants Demanded

Guarded by nine policemen, $500,000 in 1929 tax anticipation warants of the board of education were taken yesterday from a vault in the First National bank into the Circuit court of Judge Michael Feinberg.

The warants are exhibits in the suit of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company and 55 other plaintifs against the board of education, a chancery action to determine the city's liability for the redemption of about $2,500,000 in 1929 school board tax warants now held by the plaintifs.

Yesterday's hearing, on a suit filed six months ago, struck a snag at the outset when Attorney Ralph Condee for the board moved that this case be consolidated with two other similar cases now pending in the Circuit court. Francis E. Hinckley and Howard Bishop, counsel for the plaintifs, objected that such consolidation would involve undue delay.

Judge Studies Merging Cases.

The lawyers spent most of the day arguing the question of consolidation, and in the end Judge Feinberg took his ruling under advisement until Dec. 14.

Originally the board of education issued $52,000,000 in warants anticipating the collection of taxes for 1929. This represented the legal limit of 75 per cent of the board's budget for the year. Later County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki declared certain of the 1929 tax levies invalid, which had the effect of increasing the ratio of outstanding warants to about 90 per cent of the taxes the board expected to receive.

Subsequently the school board retired about $48,500,000 of its 1929 warants, leaving about $13,500,000 outstanding. Because of high delinquencies in the payment of 1929 taxes, it is considered unlikely that money for the retirement of the warants still outstanding will ever be collected.

Object to Retirement Order.

The plaintifs contend that the board of education acted improperly in retiring the 1929 warants in numerical order, thus paying off some holders of warants in full. They cite previous court rulings holding that such retirement should be on a pro rata basis, and they seek to compel the board to retire the warants they hold.

If the plaintifs are upheld in their contentions, the board of education would have no course but to retire the outstanding warants and then seek to recover from those who received more than their pro rata share of the retirement money, in the opinion of lawyers.

The three pending Circuit court suits and two similar cases pending in the federal court represent the entire $13,500,000 of outstanding 1929 warants of the school board.

SALES TAX LAWS WIN AND LOSE IN REFERENDUMS

In several states where sales taxes were direct issues in the Nov. 3 elections voters evinced divergent opinions, according to a survey yesterday of returns.

In Michigan a proposed constitutional amendment to forbid the state's per cent sales tax on foodstuffs was defeated. Ohio voters issued a mandate for repeal of the 3 per cent levy on food consumed in the home. Mississippi voters rejected a constitutional amendment proposal to enable the legislature to make the 2 per cent tax a levy on consumers. Unofficial returns from a referendum in Idaho, where a 2 cent tax is in effect, showed repeal favored.

BACK DEATH PENALTY FOR WHITE KILLER OF MISSISSIPPI NEGRO

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The death penalty for William C. Mitchell, Yalobusha county, Miss., white farmer, was upheld by the Mississippi Supreme court today. Mitchell had been convicted of the torch murder of a Negro father and son in 1932. The hanging was fixed for Dec. 11 at Coffeyville, Miss.

Only once before, since Mississippi became a state 118 years ago, has a white man paid the extreme penalty for the murder of a Negro, according to Supreme court authorities. That was in 1889, when M. J. Chatham was hanged at Grenada, only a few miles south of Coffeyville.

The torch murder case aroused all of North Mississippi in July, 1932. Mitchell and his brother-in-law, Arthur Cook, were charged with having gone to the Negro's home and robbed them of $88. Cook gave up the next morning, and on the same day was sentenced to life imprisonment after his plea of guilty had been made. He was one of the prosecution's witnesses against Mitchell.

Mitchell fled, and was not caught until September, 1935, when he was found living in Cuba, Mo., under another name. He was returned to Mississippi and tried and convicted.

Ex-Wife Sues Pianist Here for $10,500 Back Alimony

Mrs. Adele Scionti, 42 years old, a pianist living in Paris, France, petitioned Judge John C. Lewe in the Superior court yesterday to compel her divorced husband, Silvio Scionti, 49 years old, concert pianist and music instructor, to pay up $10,577 in back alimony. The petition, drawn by the law firm of Socrates, Davis, & Cohen, alleges that Scionti had his $40 a week alimony payments reduced on the plea that he is unable to pay, but declares that he is earning enough from his piano lessons to pay the arrearage, while his former wife is stranded in Paris. Last Aug. 1 Scionti married Miss Isabel Laughlin, a piano pupil. Judge Lewe set the hearing on the petition for Nov. 24.

BEATING PROMPTS ACTION FOR QUICK TRIAL OF THREE

The state's attorney's office took action yesterday to bring to speedy justice three alleged robbers whose friends are suspected of seeking to intimidate the chief witness against them. All three were indicted yesterday, arraigned, and the case set for trial Nov. 16 before Judge Rudolph Desort in the Criminal court.

The three are James Wilson, 23 years old, 62 West Ohio street; his estranged wife Margie, 19, of 1520 Jackson boulevard, and her brother, Harley Todd, 21, of 123 South Ashland avenue. In Felony court last Friday they were identified by Miss Marie Byrne, 17, as those who had robbed her mother, Mrs. Minnie Byrne, of $70 in their rooming house at 1137 Washington boulevard.

After the identification Miss Byrne was beaten by a man who followed her into the home of Mrs. Lee Okun, 444 Webster street, whom she was visiting. The case against the three had been continued in Felony court until Nov. 17, but when Wilbert C. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, heard of the beating he ordered quick action.

NEW YORK BULLS MUST BEAR HORN AND TAIL LIGHTS

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Any bull that roams New York's streets at night must have green lights on each horn and a red light on his tail.

That's the law! But perhaps it will not be when the board of statutory consolidation finishes its new city code.

The code, already half completed, will index all obsolete laws and ask the legislature to pass a "living law" for the city.

Among the strange laws on the city's books are:

Every place of business that employs more than ten persons must furnish a cuspidor for every two employés.

Salt must not be thrown on any street or sidewalk, even to melt ice.

No cannon over four pounds may be fired without a permit from the mayor, except on July 4, when anything goes.

If a man leaves his dead horse in the street he must attach a light to the carcass and tie a tag on it, giving the owner's name and address.

LONDON FACING TRAFIC CRISIS AT CORONATION

Half Million Outsiders Expected.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

London faces a difficult problem in getting hundreds of thousands of visitors into the metropolis for the coronation of King Edward VIII. of England and getting them out safely again.

Ten reigning kings and queens, 150 Indian princes, and at least half a million other outsiders are expected to descend upon London for the ceremony next May 12. Essentially, the service when King Edward is crowned will be that which has been used for the last 600 years. Yet his coronation will be unlike any in British history. Airplanes and luxury liners will carry representatives from all parts of the empire. Visitors will fly from distant dominions more quickly than the peers, knights, and burgesses of former centuries rode from remote English towns to Westminster.

Reservations Pouring In.

Already most of the April and May sailings from this side of the Atlantic to Europe are heavily booked. British vessels operating between England and Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, and the far east are nearly sold out. Reservations for coronation seats and hotel accommodations are pouring in from all over the world. Six months in advance of the event, processional seats are now being sold at a premium.

Word received in Chicago has it that it will be necessary to build a temporary addition to Westminster abbey—something like the extra bleacher seats for the world series games in America—in order to accommodate the visiting dignitaries who must have seats for the crowning. Some consternation is being expressed in London over this modern excrescence on the historic façade, but architects are planning so to blend the addition into the architectural scheme of the whole cathedral that the improvement—or lack of it—will not be noticeable.

Painters Busiest.

Chicagoans returning from London this fall tell of an amazing activity going on in preparation for the big day. The most obviously busy persons are the paintmakers, inasmuch as apparently every house and shop will get a new coat of paint this winter. Less evident, but considered extremely important over there, is the preparation of attire for members of the peerage.

Since peers wear their crowns and robes at coronations only, and since peers' robes with the best quality of ermine, velvet, and silk cost anywhere from $500 to $1,000, this is quite an item for the less affluent noblemen. Nearly 20 yards of velvet alone are used—and peeresses' attire costs "rather more." A few fortunate noblemen, of course, simply can bring their robes out of the airtight containers where they have been lying in storage since 1911. But 180 peers have been created since the last coronation, and many younger members of the older houses will need new equipment.

Battle Over Rights.

The most feverish activity, however, is now going on in the court of claims, set up by the king's recent coronation proclamation. This court must consider the pedigrees put forward by men and women claiming a hereditary right to perform certain functions at the sovereign's crowning, and many of these persons have even engaged counsel to defend their claims.

Some barons still assert the right to carry a canopy over the king's head. The lord great chamberlain has the right to take 40 yards of crimson velvet from the king's robes and to strip his bedroom of furniture. A great almoner will have to be appointed to "quell disturbances among the poor."

Defender to Function.

Among the other claims to be presented are these: The right to support the king to the altar; to be the bearer of the great spurs; to taste the king's wine as a safeguard against poisoners; to possess the bed the king sleeps in the night before his coronation, and to be the champion who rides in full armor into the coronation banquet and declares himself prepared to defend the king's right to the throne against all comers. This time the champion will not actually ride in, as did his predecessors in medieval times, but he will function nevertheless. And—quite happily—there is no question as to whom this choice plum belongs. It belongs to the lord of the manor of Scrivelsby in Lincolnshire. But how his ancestors acquired it is lost in the depths of forgotten history.

Cuts Alimony Payments of L. A. Meeker to 2d Wife

Judge Philip J. Finnegan of the Circuit court yesterday reduced the monthly alimony payments of Lawrence A. Meeker, 1350 North State parkway, to his second wife, Mrs. Ruth Campbell Meeker, from $75 to $50, on a showing that Meeker's income as an insurance broker during 1935 was only $1,100, and so far this year but $700. Meeker testified he resigned membership in the Saddle and Cycle club three months ago because he was unable to pay the dues and that a car which he drives belongs to his present wife, the third Mrs. Meeker. Meeker was divorced by his second wife in 1933.

WARNS JAPAN TO RESIST MOVE FOR DICTATOR RULE

Ex-Premier Hits Pleas of Military Clique.

TOKIO, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki, former Japanese premier who was forced to resign in December, 1931, appealed to the nation today to resist any attempt to form a dictatorial government.

His declaration was interpreted as the strongest expression by a Japanese politician against military attempts to reorganize the governmental structure.

Denounces Fascist Rule.

He denounced European dictatorships, mentioning Russia, Germany, and Italy.

"Under such conditions there cannot be any real development of national power or real happiness among the people," he said.

"If there be any section of people in this country considering adopting such a political form, we will have to definitly reject such an idea in favor of defense of Japan's constitutional politics and for the welfare and happiness of the state and the people."

The baron's statement, made during a memorial meeting for former Premier Yuko Hamaguchi, hit at army demands recently placed before Premier Koki Hirota.

Army Proposal Changed.

The latest proposal would have made members of the Japanese diet [parliament] ineligible for cabinet positions and formation of political party cabinets illegal.

Political opposition to the military demands already has resulted in modification of the suggestions. Army and navy officials last night made public a detailed program for government reorganization which is much milder than their previous proposals.

The new demands were declared designed to strengthen the national unity as a preparation against future wars.

CRUSHED HAND FATAL.

Reinhold Beduhn, 68 years old, 4952 South Wells street, died in the Illinois Central hospital last night from an infection which developed after his hand was crushed while he was at work as a mechanic's helper in the railroad yards near 6900 South Central avenue.

FRENCH SOUND OUT U. S. ENVOY ON A NEW LOAN

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 10.—War debts, trade relations, and immigration were among subjects discussed in an extensive question and answer interview which United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt accorded the Agence Economique et Financiere today as a guide to the policies to be expected in Franco-American dealings during President Roosevelt's second term.

Bullitt was asked whether the United States could not look favorably upon a proposition for debt settlement whereby the total debt would be greatly reduced and at the same time the United States would accord France the equivalent of a loan bearing low interest which would be paid off by a sinking fund over a long term of years and benefit to the United States would be derived from the interest.

Puts It Up to Congress.

The ambassador's reply was that the United States government, as always, was ready to discuss any proposal for debt settelement and submit any reasonable proposal for the approval of congress.

As to Franco-American trade he said:

"I am convinced our trade can be increased and that it will increase. It is already greater since the commercial accord, but there would be more important development with the return of commercial liberalism such as is envisaged in the recent monetary agreement. Our governments ought to face the difficult task of deciding what articles of import could be best exchanged to favor trade revival.

"There are many articles which we make that could supplement French production and many articles produced in France which do not compete with our productions. Increased exchanges of such products would stimulate recovery in both countries."

Encourages Air Trafic.

Ambassador Bullitt said the United States was interested in developing trans-Atlantic air trafic.

Asked whether the United States could not be induced to enlarge the immigration quota for French nationals, he replied that if the French quota was low it was because few French desired to emigrate to the United States and seldom had to wait long for admission. He expressed satisfaction at the increased numbers of French people who are going to the United States as tourists.

DUCE MAY SEEK TO WOO AWAY FRENCH ALLIES

Tri-Power Parley Opens in Vienna Today.

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy met tonight to discuss questions affecting their countries on the eve of a two day conference in which Hungary also will join.

An indication that the foreign officials of the three nations will consider Hungary's demand for revision of its boundaries was seen in a statement by Wilhelm Ziegler, Hungarian press chief, that "retention of the status quo means permanent European strife."

Chancellor Schuschnigg's newspaper, Weltblatt, asserted that no sensational moves or surprises would develop at the conference and that "no secret policy will be drawn up."

Italy Seeks More Influence.

The three nations form a tight alliance based on the 1934 Rome protocols, which provided for economic coöperation among them and created what many have regarded as an Italian bloc.

It contrasts with the French bloc of the little entente—Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania.

Whether the lineup is due for a shift was a subject of speculation on the eve of the opening tomorrow of the talks among the veteran Hungarian statesmen, Koloman von Kanya, Count Ciano, and Dr. Guido Schmidt of Austria.

Italy, some observers believed, will try to strengthen its fence around Austria and Hungary and then build up friendlier relations with Jugo-Slavia and Rumania.

Duce's Speech Recalled.

One basis for this opinion is the Milan address of Premier Mussolini on Nov. 1, when he promised that an opportunity soon would be given to demonstrate publicly the friendship between Italy and Hungary.

[Well informed sources in Rome asserted last night that Italy, Austria, and Hungary would sign a secret protocol to the Rome accord at the conclusion of Count Ciano's visit to Vienna. In these quarters it was said collaboration among the three nations would be strengthened, while Germany also would tighten its relations with the three.]

In some Vienna circles it was believed some major announcement may be made during the foreign ministers' talks—perhaps a demand by Hungary for permission to rearm itself on a large scale, contrary to the post-war Versailles treaty, or perhaps a statement concerning Hungary's long-standing demands for revision of its boundaries fixed by that treaty.

Vision Deal on Ethiopia.

If Italy should support Hungary in an announcement of that nature, it would be in exchange for recognition of the Italian empire in Ethiopia, observers thought.

In this connection reports from Belgrade said Italy has intimated a wish that little entente countries recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. Jugo-Slavia, it was reported, is about to do so in return for improved Italo-Jugo-Slav trade relations. Mussolini also said in Milan that the friendship between these two countries should be increased.

Kanya, Schmidt, and Ciano probably will discuss the relations of their governments to the league of nations. This would be in line with reports that the smaller countries of southeastern Europe are wondering whether to form a new and bigger alliance for self-protection to replace the little and Balken ententes and to supplant dependence on the league.

Czech Government Moves to Control Big Arms Works

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Czechoslovakian government moved today to obtain majority control of the Skoda munition works at Pilsen, one of the largest plants of its kind in Europe. Fifty-one per cent of the stock at present was said to be owned by French interests. The munitions plant, it was announced today, will issue 20,000,000 Czech crowns worth of new stock [$700,000] to be purchased by a consortium representing the Czech government.

ANN HARDING TO KEEP CHILD TILL JUNE IN BRITAIN

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Ann Harding, film actress, today won her contest to keep her 7 year old daughter, Jane, with her in England until next June.

Over objections of her ex-husband, Harry Bannister, Superior Judge Lewis H. Smith granted Miss Harding's petition to extend the stay of her daughter abroad an additional six months.

Miss Harding originally was ordered to return to California with Jane by Dec. 10, but in her petition she said illness had delayed her screen work in England and she could not leave as soon as she thought.

BRITAIN CLINGS TO NAVY AS FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE

Plans to Trap Attacking Planes in Huge Nets.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Great Britain must still rely on the capital ship and the rest of the navy for the first line of defense, Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for coördination of Britain's billion dollar three year rearmament program, told the house of commons tonight. He gave the first comprehensive account of the job he took over eight months ago and defended the program from the charge of inadequacy leveled by a group of Conservatives led by Winston Churchill.

"No aircraft has been developed which can play the rôle of the capital ship, and it is only a fraction of the truth to say that air power has destroyed the historic security of this island," he said.

Inskip reiterated recent statements by Sir Samuel Hoare, first lord of the admiralty, that experiments conducted last summer in the Mediterranean showed that properly armored battleships have nothing to fear from air attacks.

Expansion Planned to 1940.

Inskip asserted that next year would see an increased output of arms and munitions and that the expansion would be continued to 1940. Special attention is being given to speeding production of special powerful guns for anti-aircraft defense of London, he said.

The defense chief mentioned that a necessary part of London's defense against air raids would be a "balloon trap" consisting of huge wire nets, strong enough to crash planes, suspended from stationary balloons.

Inskip disclosed that eighty air squadrons, including sixteen auxiliary squadrons, now guard the islands.

The coördination minister stated that if Britain again is involved in a war, land forces will be sent overseas.

Plan to Guard Empire.

"Strategic reasons would not permit us to keep all our land forces at home," he said. "We are looking primarily not to protecting our frontier at home, but to guarding imperial commitments."

Continental suggestions that difficulties in getting recruits for both the regular army and the territorials means a weakening of the national fiber here, and that Britain is "too tired to fight" were dismissed by Inskip with this statement:

"I feel that youth will not be backward when the call is actually heard. They have not been put to a test yet which would justify aspersions on their courage or public spirit."

Points to Enlistments.

He insisted that no difficulty was experienced in getting recruits for the navy and air force. Since May of last year 2,400 have been accepted for training as pilots out of 12,000 applicants while 20,000 have been enlisted in the ground forces out of 60,000 applicants.

Later Hoare elaborated on Inskip's reference to expeditionary forces. What is contemplated, according to the admiralty chief, is the formation of an "all purpose force" consisting of five divisions able to go anywhere and carry out whatever responsibilities are imposed on it.

He skated carefully around the demand of Sir Roger Keyes, admiral of the fleet, that the navy have its own air force, by declaring vaguely that the question "is much in the mind of the prime minister and the minister of coördination."

BRITAIN ASKS JAIL IN BILL TO CRUSH REDS, FASCISTS

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The text of Home Secretary Sir John Simon's "public order bill," made public tonight, disclosed that the government seeks full powers to cope with both communists and Fascists in any future bid for power.

The bill, introduced in the house of commons Monday, authorizes a three months' jail sentence and a $250 fine for wearing political uniforms, and provides for two years in prison and a $2,500 fine for membership in an organization designed to "usurp the functions of police or armed forces or using a display of physical force for promoting any political object."

Making the law applicable to organizations which even so much as arouse the foregoing apprehension, the bill also would authorize the government to impound money and property belonging to such organizations.

NAZI NAVY BOOK TO REVEAL VAST STRENGTH AT SEA

26 U-Boats Ready; 10 More on Way.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—The speed with which the German navy is being expanded will be revealed in its 1937 year book to be published soon.

It will show that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's new naval program provides substantial increases in almost every category, ranging from super battleships to tiny speedboats.

Following the French and Italian example, Germany has laid the keel of a 35,000 ton battleship. While its armament is not yet revealed, the size of the ship complies with the limit for battleships recently agreed upon in London by naval powers. Together with two 26,000 ton battleships now under construction and three pocket battleships, the new battleship, Ersatz Hanover, will give Germany a formidable fleet of highly modern, speedy, and powerful capital ships.

Two Aircraft Carriers.

In line with a rapidly growing naval air force Germany is building two airplane carriers. One airplane carrier displaces 19,250 tons and the other is "in preparation."

The year book will reveal that Hitler's naval yards have been busy day and night to build and perfect the submarine fleet. Twenty-four submarines, each displacing 250 tons, and two others of 712 tons are already in commission.

Ten other submarines, each displacing 500 tons, are under construction. Each is armed with one 3.6 inch gun, one machine gun and five torpedo tubes, and has a crew of thirty-five. Under the Anglo-German treaty Germany is permitted to build up to 45 per cent of England's submarine strength, and in other categories up to 35 per cent.

Submarine Diesels.

German submarine constructors stole a march on their English colleagues by evolving a "Diesel-gas" engine which can be used for surface and underwater propulsion, thereby saving considerably in weight. Foreign naval experts, however, claim the exhaust of the new engine, when operating under water, creates bubbles which will reveal the position of the submarine to surface craft.

The year book will show, too, that Germany is building three 10,000 ton cruisers instead of the two included in last year's program, and six small destroyers besides the sixteen already announced.

The program includes seventeen speedboats each armed with two torpedo tubes, and ten mine searchers displacing 800 tons.

RELIEF BUREAU WORKERS VOTE ON STRIKE PLAN

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—A vote of the 11,000 employés of the emergency relief bureau was taken by the Association of Workers in Public Relief Agencies today on whether to strike as a result of the order that they must take competitive examinations in order to be transferred to the civil service rolls.

The association takes the position that the entire home relief bureau staf should be transferred to civil service with no examination. James E. Finnigan, president of the civil service commission, has explained that automatic transfer such as it asks is unconstitutional. Results of the voting were not made known immediately.

GEN. RYDZ-SMIGLY BECOMES FOURTH POLISH MARSHAL

Promotion Follows Long Period of Intrigue.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 10.—Poland celebrated in holiday fashion today as Gen. Edward Rydz-Smigly, inspector general of the army, was handed a baton making him the fourth marshal in the country's history. President Ignacy Moscicki presented the symbol during an imposing ceremony in the courtyard of Warsaw castle, the residence of Polish kings for three centuries and now the home of the president.

The huge yard was crowded with high government officials, the diplomatic corps, and members of parliament. Standards of all Polish regiments were grouped there.

The magnificence and splendor of the pageantry contrasted with the simple function in the same courtyard some years ago when Marshal Ferdinand Foch delivered the marshal's baton of the French army to Marshal Josef Pilsudski, late dictator of Poland.

New Military Dictator.

Today's event was heralded in the government press as symbolizing that Poland has found a worthy successor to Pilsudski, and many regard Rydz-Smigly as the new military dictator.

The streets of Warsaw were crowded with many processions of various organizations. House owners received orders to fly flags from their buildings, and proprietors of stores were requested to place the general's picture alongside those of Pilsudski and President Moscicki.

Public concerts were held in the parks. Reports from other Polish cities told of similar parades and celebrations.

Months of Intrigue.

The appointment of the new marshal was accomplished only after months of intrigue, since the chief claimant to the baton was Gen. Lucjan Zeligowski, hero of the Vilna putsch. He insisted that the candidate for the marshal's post should be decided by a council of Polish generals.

Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, another popular army leader, also is reported to have opposed the decision of the president to honor Rydz-Smigly with the authority carried by this title.

Although touted as Dictator Pilsudski's successor since the death of the Polish leader, Rydz-Smigly is held in some circles to lack the spark of leadership which inspires and holds a following. The powerful opposition group argues that the new marshal will not inaugurate the needed internal reforms.

caused by excess stomach acidity, just take a teaspoonful of Condensed Jad Salts in hot water before breakfast. That is all you have to do to remove the waste matter and neutralize the excess acid and put your stomach into good shape.

Condensed Jad Salts not only contains the finest saline ingredients to give the most scientific results for their purpose, but it also has an anti-acid or alkalizing effect. In other words, Jad has a double action—first, as a saline and second as an anti-acid.

Try giving your stomach a hot Condensed Jad bath. See for yourself how it relieves and helps you—following excessive eating, smoking and drinking. You will say it is marvelous. Condensed Jad Salts costs but a few cents at any drug store.

CANADIAN ARMY CHIEF LAYS ETHIOPIA WAR TO BRITISH LACK OF ARMS

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. E. C. Ashton, chief of the Canadian general staf, said last night that only Great Britain's unpreparedness failed to prevent the Italo-Ethiopian war.

"Had Britain been prepared for war," he said, in an address at an Armistice dinner, "there would have been no war between Italy and Ethiopia. There would have been no war at all, had Britain been strong. There is no question about it. I know it from dispatches I have read."

Maj. Gen. Ashton said, although Britain is rearming rapidly, it would take a year and a half or perhaps two years to get into the desired shape.

FARM HAND KILLS SELF.

Charlotte, Mich., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Lota Stidenger, 52, farm hand, died today of self-inflicted gun wounds. Friends told the Eaton county coroner the man had been despondent.

FRANCE TO SPEND 880 MILLIONS ON DEFENSE IN 1937

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(AP)—France will spend more than 19 billion francs, or approximately $879,700,000, on national defense in 1937, it was disclosed in budget figures made public tonight. The expenditures, nearly 50 per cent more than this year's outlay, will be in terms of the newly devalued franc, but since most of the spending will be domestic it will mean a huge increase.

Upkeep of the army, which will be raised to the highest pitch of peacetime efficiency in history, alone will cost 10,974,000,000 francs [about $506,096,200]—not much less than this year's total budget for all armed services, amounting to 13,438,000,000 francs.

Half the 1937 figure for national defense is placed on the ordinary budget and the remainder on the extraordinary budget. A large sum of the increase will go toward the building of extensive new fortifications on the Belgian frontier and increasing the number of planes in the air force by 50 per cent. Considerable funds will be spent on the construction of additional coast defenses and on the expansion of naval aviation.

ESCAPED MURDERER SEIZED.

Dayton, O., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Police early today announced the capture of a man identified as Charles B. Hamilton, 35, of Indianapolis, said to have escaped three months ago from Indiana state prison, where he was serving a life term for the murder of a police chief at Winchester, Ind.

Five-Passenger Touring Sedan $1145*. A General Motors Value

THE SENSATIONAL PRICE SURPRISE OF 1937

Look at La Salle for the price surprise of 1937! You will see an entirely new La Salle, now powered with a Cadillac-built V-8 engine, at the lowest price in Cadillac history. Eight different American-built cars now have models actually higher in price than the new V-8 La Salle.

Look at La Salle for performance! The new V-8 La Salle gives you the smoothness, the performance, and the dependability that only a 125-horsepower V-8 engine built by Cadillac can provide. Twenty horsepower more than last year—a new high ratio of power to weight—that's why you can expect breath-taking performance at the wheel of a La Salle!

Look at La Salle for quality! You will see a bigger La Salle and a better La Salle. It is longer in wheelbase, with new and roomier Unisteel Turret-Top Bodies by Fisher . . . improved Knee-Action Ride . . . bigger, safer hydraulic brakes . . . the same rich upholstery formerly offered on cars costing $2,000 or more. In fact, it is the finest La Salle ever built by Cadillac!

V-8 CADILLAC BUILT $995*

*Monthly payments to suit your purse on the General Motors Instalment Plan. All prices list at Detroit, subject to change without notice. Special equipment extra.

LOW FIRST COST WITH LOW UPKEEP COST

Look at La Salle for economy! La Salle's new low price is more than matched by low upkeep cost. The new V-8 La Salle will surprise you with its remarkable all-around economy—on gasoline, on oil, and upkeep. You can own and operate a La Salle for less than many cars of lower price! Look at La Salle today!

Tune in on the "La Salle Fashion Show" sponsored by Cadillac. Every Thursday afternoon at four p.m. (E.S.T.)

With Persian Lamb—And Specially Priced!

A square shawl collar, close to the neck, and not too large to be becoming to the shorter woman, trims this good-looking coat, which comes in one of the smart new woolens. The lines are slightly fitted and are proportioned to half sizes—14½ to 24½. In black only. Most unusual value at $44.

Moderate Price Coats, Fourth Floor.

It's a Smart Frock That Uses Two Colors

Two colors, two fabrics! This attractive frock, perfect for luncheons and bridge parties, believes in combinations. It uses a dark crepe skirt with a bright metal cloth top. Two jeweled pins accent the cowl neck, and there's easy fullness in the shoulders. In blue or green with black; rust with brown. 16½ to 24½.

Every Day Frocks, Fourth Floor.

Belting and Felt Go to the Head of the Class

Fabric and felt—they are two outstanding materials for winter. And belting is a leader in fabrics. It is used here in a distinctive winged toque, draped very strikingly, and worn well off the face with a ribbon strap in back.

Fine fur felt is the material used in the beret shown here. It's a particularly individual beret, with very smart lines and two brightly colored Prince of Wales plumes for trimming.

Millinery, Fifth Floor.

Gleaming Lame Tops Crepe for Afternoon

A very soft, pliant lame, comfortable to wear, is used for the top of this one-piece frock, which has a crepe skirt. Shirring softens the high neckline, and the sleeves puff at the shoulders. In blue, wine, green, or silver color with black. 12-20.

Misses' Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor.

Corsage of "Mums" Brightens Crepe Frock

Front fullness, draped in a most individual way, and twisted at the neckline, is an important feature of this afternoon frock, which wears a huge bouquet of colorful chrysanthemums at the waist. Royalist blue, rust, petunia, gray, and black. Sizes 12 to 20.

Misses' Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor.

A Gay Pair—This Beret and Scarf $2.45 set

A warm wool scarf and a pert Russiany off-the-face beret are proof against weather, and add a gay accent to almost any coat. Navy, brown, bright red, Kent green, Kelly green, Dubonnet. $2.45.

Girls' Hats, Fifth Floor.

Trim Fleece Coat, One of many at $22.75

The classic lines of this wool fleece coat give it an air of quality wherever it goes. Plaid lined with "Tomboy" top of Celanese interlined. One of many styles with or without fur at this same price. Sizes 8 to 16.

A Princess Frock In Gay Wool Plaid $5.95

Plaid wool keeps girls snugly warm in the smartest of the season's styles—the princess. A becoming white collar of linen tops it off. Gay color combinations. Sizes 7 to 14.

Girls' Room, Fifth Floor.

These Shoes for Girls Are Special at $4.45 pair

It's easy at Carson's to fit the growing girl. Mothers tell us they have no trouble in finding exactly the correct shoes for their growing daughters. Shoes that their daughters adore, and this is important.

Here are three favorites, smart and suitable. The monk type shoe, and the kiltie tongue oxford, in brown elk (soft calfskin) and the British tan calf T-strap with medium height heel. Sizes 4½ to 9. AAA to C.

Children's Shoes, Third Floor.

Braid Dresses Up This Teenya Frock

A small, flaring peplum stresses the slim waistline of this Teenya frock, and the skirt, too, flares saucily. Alpaca weave in black, wine, green, gold, blue, gray. Sizes 11 to 17.

Teenya Shop, Fourth Floor.

Group of Blocked Lapins (Dyed Coney)

In the group are included swaggers, short and long Princess styles, tunic types—some with novelty weave linings and others with plain colors. The coat shown here is lined with softly colored plaid, with an ascot scarf to match. It comes in sizes 12 to 20. $89.75 ea.

Furs, Fourth Floor.

Mendoza (Dyed Coney) in Many Styles

Vogue says this is a Mendoza year—and so does Carson's! Mendoza (dyed coney) is the fur in the moderately priced group that most closely resembles beaver—in its deep, rich brown color, lovely soft quality, warmth without weight. There's a wide selection of styles. $100.

Fur Coats, Fourth Floor.

These Dressy Frocks Have a Touch of Metal "Up Their Sleeves"

Metallic lace fashions the sleeves and yoke of this crepe frock for afternoon. The crepe of the frock is appliqued into the lace sleeves at the shoulder. A rhinestone clip at the neck draws the front fullness together. In black, blue, wine, green. Sizes 16½ to 24½.

Lame insets in a scroll design add a dressy gleam to the sleeves of this sheer crepe romaine frock. Note the new sunburst front fullness centering in a sparkling rhinestone pin. The skirt flares to a graceful width. In black, blue, wine, green. Sizes 36 to 44.

Women's Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor.

ALLIED 'GAINST WINTRY WEATHER

CALLS SUPREME COURT PLACE FOR SOCIAL SCIENTIST

Devaney Speaks at Forum to Honor Brandeis.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

If the Supreme court of the United States is to continue to function, its personnel must be made up of social scientists who are also trained in the law, with no place left on that bench for the old type of common law lawyer. This view was expressed by Chief Justice John P. Devaney of the Minnesota Supreme court in an address last night before the forum of Temple Anshe Emet, which met to pay tribute to Justice Louis P. Brandeis of the United States Supreme court. Such meetings are being held throughout the country in view of Justice Brandeis' 80th birthday next Friday.

At the Chicago meeting two other speakers, Dr. John Haynes Holmes of Community church, New York, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of Free synagogue, New York, praised the liberal jurist for his leadership during recent critical years.

Draws Difference in Courts.

"The old type of jurist with common law ideals must be left to function in lower courts, which have mixed jurisdiction," said Justice Devaney. "In the Supreme court emphasis must be laid on the political, social, economic philosophy of the members who are to make up that superlegislative body.

"One may as well ask for a successful manufacturer schooled in methods of mass production to head our army or navy or to take charge of our educational system as to ask a common law lawyer, unschooled in the philosophy of the changing order, to take his place on the Supreme court which is to be an arbiter of our future destiny."

Judge Devaney called the legal profession "backward" and urged, under Justice Brandeis' example, that the law progress toward greater economic and social foresight. Justice Brandeis, he said, "ran counter to smug constitutionalism and kept law in step with the march of time."

Cites Public Interest.

Dr. Holmes stressed the widespread popular interest in Justice Brandeis, and cited four recently published biographies and studies of the jurist's career as being "unprecedented."

"Justice Brandeis has discovered that the law is not something static to be merely revered," said Dr. Holmes, "but a living instrument to be used to deliver a people from social evils and depressions and to give them a fuller degree of liberty."

Rabbi Wise spoke of his long association with Justice Brandeis in the Zionist movement, and bracketed the jurist with "another immortal Jew, Dr. Theodor Herzl, founder of Zionism."

"To Zionism," said Rabbi Wise, Justice Brandeis brought the scholarship of the student, the acumen of the lawyer, and the high ardor of the prophet. He enriched Jewish life the world over by the nobility of his personal example and dedication to a lofty purpose which our forefathers called holiness."

Wife, 18, Deserted as Bride of 3 Months, Wins Divorce

Mrs. Ruth Hartmann Carey, 18 years old, 2108 Belle Plaine avenue, was granted a divorce by Judge John C. Lewe in the Superior court yesterday from Prescott Carey Jr., 26 years old, 3516 Janssen avenue. Under questioning by her attorney, Harry X. Cole, Mrs. Carey testified that her husband left her on Sept. 15, 1935, less than three months after their marriage. She was awarded $8 a week for the support of her son, Donald, 7 months old.

EX-MATE JAILED

Basil McCauley, 26 years old, 6442 South Halsted street, was ordered by Judge Walter P. Steffen in the Superior court yesterday to serve six months in the county jail for nonpayment of $41 for the support of his daughter, Valerie Jean, 1 year old. His former wife, Lorraine, 21 years old, 5338 Blackstone avenue, testified that while McCauley "always has money to buy liquor," he refused even to buy milk for his child.

2 WIN APPEALS FROM DECISIONS IN ZONING CASES

Two suburban property owners whose suits attacking zoning ordinances were dismissed by lower courts won victories yesterday when the Appellate court reversed and remanded the cases.

One case was the injunction suit brought by Mrs. Mary C. Brandl to restrain the village of Winnetka from interfering with her sale of property at Linden and Scott avenues in the suburb to the Sinclair Oil company for use as a filling station. The other was the mandamus suit of William G. and Mary E. Clark to compel the village of La Grange to issue a permit authorizing them to remodel their 12 room house at 46 South Waiola avenue in La Grange into a two-family dwelling.

Justice Kickham Scanlan, who wrote the opinion deciding the cases yesterday, quoted a previous ruling holding that the reasonableness of a zoning ordinance "is necessarily determined by the facts in the particular case," in deciding whether the invasion of property rights is unreasonable and confiscatory.

1,725 TRIBUNITES TO GET $191,000 IN CLUB SAVINGS

CHICAGO TRIBUNE employés who are members of the Dearborn Mutual Benefit association will receive checks totaling $191,504 on Monday, Fred C. Weber, treasurer, announced yesterday. The payments represent an increase over 1935, when $172,145 was distributed to the members.

All TRIBUNE employés are eligible for membership in the association, which is operated as a Christmas saving club. This year the association had 1,725 members, an increase of 137 over last year. Each member deposits 25 cents a week for each share purchased, with a limit of ten shares a person. Seventeen members died this year and in each case the beneficiary was paid $750.

Officers besides Mr. Weber are: Joseph Larson, president; Charles Jacobs, secretary, and A. E. Bierma, chairman of the executive committee. The officers are chosen from the members, and all departments of THE TRIBUNE are represented on the board of directors. The association was founded more than 30 years ago.

BRIDEWELL FOR SHOPLIFTING.

Edward Royals, 37 years old, 2111 Cleveland avenue, was sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell by Judge Joseph B. Hermes in the Women's court yesterday on a charge of shoplifting. His wife, Marie, was given 44 days on a similar charge.

U. S. ACADEMY OF SCIENCES TO CONVENE HERE

Series of Public Lectures to Begin Monday.

The National Academy of Sciences, most exclusive of American general scientific organizations, will hold its autumn meeting from Monday to Wednesday of next week at the University of Chicago.

President Lincoln took a great interest in the academy during the civil war, and congress chartered it in 1863 as an official adjunct of the government. Members are at the call of the government for advice on scientific matters.

The membership is limited by law to 250, but there are commonly a few unfilled vacancies. The society has its headquarters in Washington, where one of its two yearly meetings is always held. Chicago was chosen as the site of the coming meeting partially as a tribute to Dr. F. R. Lillie, president of the academy and dean emeritus of the biological science division of the University of Chicago.

Plan 93 Sponsored Papers.

The majority of the ninety-three ten-minute papers at the coming meeting will be presented by nonmembers of the academy, each of whom will be introduced by a member familiar with his work. Subjects, covering the whole field of science, range from the pituitary gland of the whale to scientific analysis of piano performance.

F. E. Wright, of the Carnegie institution at Washington, will discuss a new method for measuring the height of the mountains on the moon. Prof. A. H. Compton, Nobel laureate in physics of the University of Chicago, will report new evidence on the behavior of the mysterious cosmic rays, which come to the earth from space outside our solar system.

Commotion Inside the Atom.

Prof. William D. Harkins, also of the University of Chicago, has a paper on reactions within the atom. Prof. George L. Clark, of the University of Illinois, will describe new discoveries made through the X-ray microscope, in which the short waves of the X-ray pick out objects so tiny that they slip between the waves of visible light.

Charles F. Kettering, vice president and research director of General Motors corporation, will speak on his scientific hobby, chlorophyll, the substance which makes leaves green and which enables plants to extract their food from air and sunlight, and will introduce four other speakers who will describe recent researches on the subject.

All Lectures to Be Public.

All of the scientific sessions of the meeting are open to the public. The physical science division will meet in Eckhart hall at the university, and the biological science division in James H. Breasted hall of the Oriental institute.

Monday evening Prof. William King Gregory of the American Museum of Natural History, in New York, will give a public lecture in Mandel hall on "Transformation of Organic Designs," a discussion of evolution as it is revealed in the rocks of by-gone ages.

FOUR MEN KILLED BY FAST TRAIN IN CRASH IN CLINTON

Clinton, Ill., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Four men were killed here today when their automobile was struck on a grade crossing by the Illinois Central's crack train, the Green Diamond bound for Chicago from St. Louis.

The dead were George Cisco; his son, Orval Cisco; the latter's nephew, Elijah Cisco, and Robert Edwards. All were residents of Waynesville.

The train was nearing the Clinton station when it struck the automobile at a crossing on route 51 about five blocks from the station. Three of the men were killed outright and the fourth died on the way to a hospital.

CARLSON, IOWA, NATIONAL CORN HUSKING CHAMP

Brother of Winner in the 1935 Contest.

Newark, O., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Carl Carlson of Audubon, Ia., the "dark horse" in the early forecasting, won the 13th annual national corn husking championship today. He is a brother of Elmer Carlson, who won the 1935 championship, but who did not defend his title.

Carlson husked 21.035 bushels of corn in the grueling 80 minute test with 17 other farmers from nine states. They competed in a field ankle deep with mud on the Alva Oyler farm southwest of here today. This so handicapped the huskers that the usual marks were cut in two.

Second place was won by Adam Byczynski, farm hand of Bureau county, Illinois, who had 20.946 bushels. Laurence House, 56, of Sherman county, Kansas, won third place with 20.63 bushels. Ted Balko, 1934 national champion from Redwood county, Minnesota, was fourth with 19.939 bushels. Last year's record was 41.5 bushels.

Other Finishers.

Albert Etter, Indiana; Theodore Tuftie, Illinois; Paul Pokett, Nebraska; John Van Zandt, Ohio; Richard Mitchell, Ohio; Louis Korte, Nebraska; Earl Henry, South Dakota; Cecil Vining, Kansas; Richard Anderson, South Dakota; Art Johnson, Minnesota; Layton Roberts, Missouri; John Whybrew, Indiana; Elke Hendricks, Iowa, and John W. Harris, Missouri.

A crowd estimated by contest officials at 125,000 braved the brisk weather and the sloppy field to watch agriculture's greatest sporting event.

Walk in Sea of Mud.

The contestants, who were the winners and runners-up from each of the nine major corn producing states, left a 100 acre field of corn virtually stripped after the competition had ended.

As they worked the huskers sloshed through the deep mud and the water soaked stalks, wetting themselves to the skin.

Numerous spectators, anxious to gain a point of vantage, became mired when they ventured too far out into the sea of mud. Several had to be pulled out, and one elderly gentleman was forced to abandon one of his rubber boots.

WALLACE BEERY AT BEDSIDE OF FATHER; FLIES FROM CHICAGO

Beery flew in from Chicago. His brother, Noah Jr., is in England.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

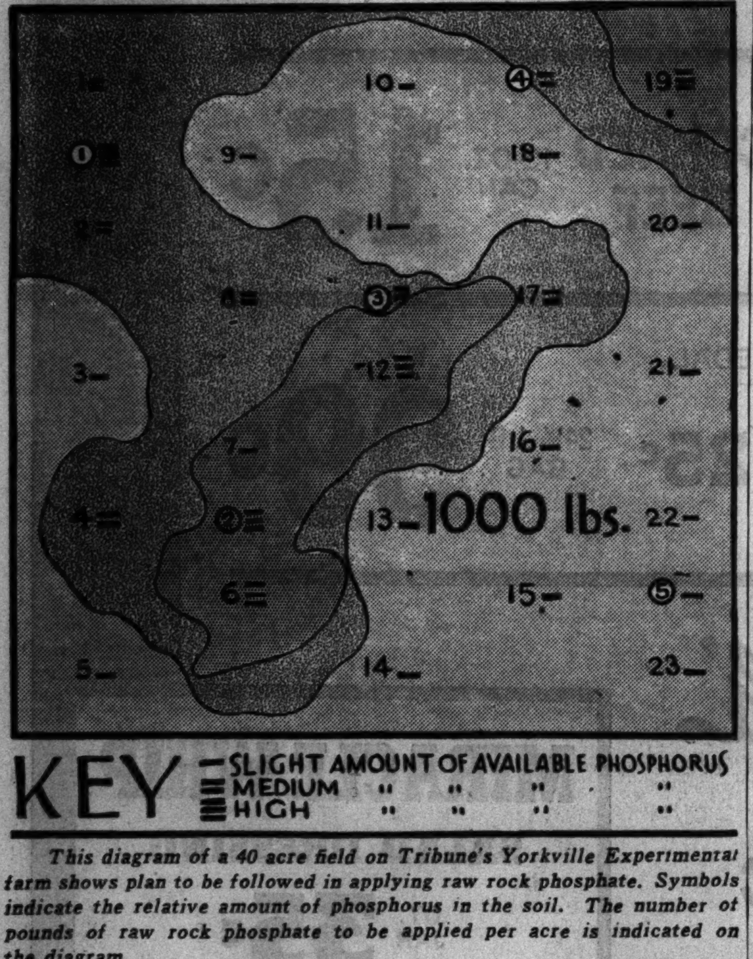
Mineral Salts

Nov. 10, 1936.

UNDER the systematic and scientific method of testing and fertilizing soil now being followed on The Tribune's Yorkville Experimental farm the manager is using both limestone and phosphate. Making a test for phosphorus along with the acidity test is now accepted by scientists and farmers as being necessary to a sound basis for planning a cropping program.

Phosphate will be applied according to recommendations of experts at the University of Illinois following tests recently made to determine the deficiency of lime and phosphorus on an eighty-five acre field at the Yorkville farm. The test indicates that approximately half the field needs phosphate. The farm manager is planning to apply about 1,000 pounds of raw rock phosphate per acre within the next few weeks. This will be applied where the test showed that only a slight amount of phosphorus is contained in the soil.

Soil with only a slight amount of available phosphorus near the surface will produce fair crops of sweet clover, corn, and oats, but it does not contain enough for crops of alfalfa, red clover, and wheat. A medium amount of available phosphorus in the soil is sufficient for good yields of alfalfa, clovers, and all grain crops. If the amount of available phosphorus is high, 75 pounds per acre, near the surface, it will be sufficient for high yields of alfalfa, clover, and all grain crops. Surface soil with a high or medium amount of phosphorus does not need an application of phosphate for ordinary farm crops.



KEY — SLIGHT AMOUNT OF AVAILABLE PHOSPHORUS; MEDIUM " " " "; HIGH " " " "

This diagram of a 40 acre field on Tribune's Yorkville Experimental farm shows plan to be followed in applying raw rock phosphate. Symbols indicate the relative amount of phosphorus in the soil. The number of pounds of raw rock phosphate to be applied per acre is indicated on the diagram.

Hunt Thieves Who Stole Woman Banker's $8,200

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Police today sought thieves who stole $8,200 worth of negotiable bonds and securities from the automobile of Mrs. Hattie Stevens, Lansing Mich., banker. Mrs. Stevens, who has been visiting friends here, said the securities were taken by persons who broke open a locked door of the car.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Addressing the Bond Club of Chicago yesterday at a luncheon gathering on "Waves, Wires, and Words," Dr. James O. Perrine of the American Telephone and Telegraph company gave a graphic demonstration of how network broadcasting is dependent on telephonic services. Dr. Perrine acted as spokesman for a group of technical experts scattered in various key cities of the nation who coöerated in putting on an unusually vivid demonstration of recent developments in improving sound transmission through a network centering at the speakers' table at the Palmer house.

Dr. Perrine first showed the great fidelity possible when no telephone circuits are used at all, then compared this with the 5,000 cycle circuits available for network broadcasting and the somewhat less faithful circuits regarded as satisfactory for ordinary telephone service.

He also maintained that the telephone interests are ready to make available a still finer radio service to carry upward of 8,000 sound cycles when the American public is willing to spend the additional dollars needed to buy receivers capable of handling everything the telephone wires would carry.

[Manufacturers, on the other hand, maintain that they are already making sets that are capable of delivering a higher fidelity of sound than the transmitters are putting out or than wires are capable of carrying.]

Dr. Perrine also reported that the telephone company is ready for television. He has high hopes for the possibilities of the coaxial cable which the telephone interests have developed for transmitting television. Such a cable has been laid between New York and Philadelphia for test purposes.

In discussing waves, Dr. Perrine pointed out some of their many vulnerable and perishable aspects. By artificial means he produced various disturbing conditions which caused overloading, noises, singing, whistling, and other distressing sounds that radio listeners grumble over when brought on by natural causes.

He brought to mind what many a listener has heard but does not always remember—that a program originating in Hollywood is brought 2,000 miles to Chicago by telephone wire, then carried out of the city again by wire to the transmitting station before it is put on the air. Thus "the miracle of radio" is usually concerned with a distance of 30 miles or less. [This, of course, does not apply to short wave broadcasting.]

As an example of the problems encountered and solved by the telephone research workers Dr. Perrine cited this one. In bringing sound from Hollywood to Chicago the low notes are transmitted in approximately two-tenths of a second, high ones take a fraction of a second longer, and still higher ones again somewhat less. If permitted to reach the listener in this manner there would be a certain amount of distortion. But the telephone men have devised corrections for this naturally created mischief so that you, at the receiving end, can get the true original tone.

HERE'S RELIEF from CONSTIPATION
Doctors have used and prescribed for years

1 hour method brings thorough yet gentle results

Works in 1 Hour

With Pluto there are no hours of overnight waiting, which allow dangerous poisons to be absorbed by the system, often resulting in that tired feeling—dull headaches—too often causing pimples, boils, colds. Simply mix 1/5 of a glass of Pluto Water with 4/5 of a glass of hot water. You'll find this mixture pleasant, gentle, quick. It will give you a thorough bowel flush in 1 hour or less, and you'll feel worlds better.

Try This Doctors' Way

Pluto Water is bottled at the famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. It is a non-habit-forming saline mineral water. Two hundred million bottles have already been used, largely on doctors' advice. Get Pluto from your druggist—either in the 25c size or the large 50c size which contains three times the quantity. In 1 hour or less, your constipation will be relieved and you'll feel like a million.

$5,600,000 WORTH OF REAL ESTATE

In a recent issue, the Real Estate columns of the Chicago Tribune included offers to sell property priced as high as $125,000—as low as $150.

The combined value of all properties offered in want ads in which prices were quoted was $5,600,000.

Because the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper, these columns give you a comprehensive idea of the best real estate values on the Chicago market today.

Review today's offers in the Real Estate columns. You are bound to be well-informed about real estate values if you watch these columns every day.

If it can be sold, a Tribune Want Ad will sell it

U.S. PENSION LIST BEGUN; HOW LAW WORKS IS TOLD

Postmen Start Census of All Employers.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Mail carriers throughout the city are beginning a census of employers as the first step in Chicago of starting the complicated machinery of the most pretentious pension project ever undertaken, the old age benefit system of the federal social security act.

On Jan. 1 an estimated 26,000,000 workers, comprising, with certain exceptions, all employés in commerce and industry in the country, will begin their contributions to the fund, from which they are to be paid pensions in proportion to their contributions when they reach the age of 65. Their employers will match their contributions dollar for dollar.

Three Agencies at Work.

Three federal agencies are engaged in the preliminary work of setting up the machinery of the pension system. They are the social security board, the postoffice department, and the bureau of internal revenue.

The postoffice is gathering the lists of employers and employés affected by the act. Following their census this week, letter carriers will distribute forms to employers on next Monday on which all employés affected by the act must be listed. Individual record cards for employés will be distributed on Nov. 24.

After the postoffice authorities have finished compilation of the records they will be turned over to the social security board, which will carry out the enormous bookkeeping task of crediting contributions to the individual accounts of the millions of employés affected.

Keep Duplicate Records.

H. L. McCarthy, former dean of the business school of De Paul university, is regional director under the social security board for the states of Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. The records of all employés in these states will be kept in the Chicago office, but master records for the whole country are also to be kept at headquarters in Washington or Baltimore.

The business routine of the social security board in maintaining its records has been modeled after that of the large insurance companies, Mr. McCarthy said yesterday. From 7,000 to 10,000 employés will be required in the field and at Washington for the task, it has been estimated. They are all being selected from civil service eligibility lists, Mr. McCarthy added. The security board yesterday opened an information office at 173 Madison street.

Revenue Bureau Collects Tax.

The social security board will have nothing to do with the collection of the contributions, which legally are income taxes. This is handled by the bureau of internal revenue. The bureau will also decide what employés are eligible under the social security act to participate in the pension system. Participation is obligatory for all persons declared eligible.

A social security division of the Chicago office of the internal revenue bureau has already been set up, under Philip J. Godfrey, with offices in the United States courthouse. The forty employés in the office are now working on collections of unemployment compensation taxes.

Activities Cover Wide Field.

The contributory old age pensions, or old age benefits, as they are known officially, are but one of the numerous activities set up by the social security act. Frequently the old age benefit system, in some of its provisions, has been confused by the public with these other activities. The social security act provides for the following activities:

1. OLD AGE ASSISTANCE BENEFITS. Administered wholly by the federal government and financed by equal contributions by employers and employés.

2. FEDERAL OLD AGE ASSISTANCE. Financed equally by federal and state governments, out of general tax funds, on a fund matching basis; administered by the states under federally approved regulations. No contributions are required from pensioners who receive assistance up to a maximum of $30 a month, after they are 65 years old, on the basis of need only.

Employers Pay Jobless Insurance.

3. UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION. The federal government on Jan. 1 will begin collecting 1 per cent of 1936 pay rolls from employers of eight or more employés. Employers receive credit up to 90 per cent of their federal tax payment for taxes paid to a state unemployment compensation system approved by the social security board. The federal government is the depository for state unemployment reserve funds. No unemployment compensation is to be paid under the federal plan until Jan. 1, 1938, or in any state until two years after that state has passed an unemployment compensation law approved by the security board. Illinois has not yet passed such a law.

4. GENERAL WELFARE ACTIVITIES. This includes aid to dependent children, maternal and child health service, aid of crippled children, child welfare, vocational rehabilitation, public health work, and aid to the blind, all financed by federal grants in aid, from general taxes, to the states, usually on a fund matching basis.

[A comprehensive view of the old age benefit section, in the form of answers to a series of pertinent questions, will be found in nearby columns.]

Youths Rob 2 South Side Coal Yards in 10 Minutes

Two young gunmen raided two coal company offices yesterday within ten minutes and obtained $325. The victims are the Windsor Coal company, 7454 Exchange avenue, and the Century Fuel company, 7901 Greenwood avenue.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES ON FEDERAL PENSION LAW

Because of the number of inquiries received regarding the old age benefits THE TRIBUNE presents herewith a series of questions and answers dealing with the old age benefit section of the federal social security act which goes into effect Jan. 1.

These questions and answers, which will give inquirers a comprehensive view of the benefit system, were prepared largely by Glenn L. Gardiner, vice president of the American Management association. Permission to use the material was granted by the Elliott Service company, 242 West 55th street, New York, which holds the copyright on it and sells it in pamphlet form. The questions and answers follow:

Q.—At what age will I start to get a pension? A.—When you are 65, unless your 65th birthday arrives before Jan. 1, 1942.

Q.—What if I am 65 years old now? A.—You will not receive any pension under the old age benefit section of the social security act. No employé reaching age 65 before Jan. 1, 1942, will get such a pension.

Provides Lump Settlement.

Q.—What if I reach age 65 between Jan. 1, 1937, and Jan. 1, 1942? A.—You will receive a lump sum equal to 3½ per cent of total wages [up to $3,000 annually] received by you between Jan. 1, 1937, and the date you reach 65. This lump sum is to cover the amount which you and your employer have paid into the pension fund on your account.

Q.—When will pension payments begin? A.—No pension or lump sum payment will be paid before Jan. 1, 1942.

Q.—Will I have to pay anything out of my wages into the pension fund? A.—Yes, until you are 65.

Q.—How much will my payments into the pension fund be? A.—One per cent of wages paid to you in 1937, 1938, and 1939; 1½ per cent of wages paid you in 1940, 1941, and 1942; 2 per cent of wages paid you in 1943, 1944, and 1945; 2½ per cent of wages paid you in 1946, 1947, and 1948; 3 per cent of your wages paid in 1949, and thereafter.

Begin Deductions Jan. 1.

Q.—When will these payments start coming out of my pay? A.—Jan. 1, 1937.

Q.—What is to be included in "wages" in determining the amount to be deducted from my pay for the pension fund? A.—The amount of wages on which your payments will be figured includes "all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash" [board, lodging, etc.]. No deductions will be made from anything you earn over $3,000 during a calendar year from a single employer. [If you have two or more employers during a calendar year, you pay on wages received from each up to $3,000 on each job].

Q.—How will I make my contributions? A.—Your payments will be deducted from your pay each pay day by your employer. Your employer will be required to turn your payments over to the government.

Q.—Will my employer also make payments into the pension fund? A.—Yes.

Q.—How much will my employer pay? A.—Your employer will pay the same percentage of your wages into the fund as you pay. His percentage will increase from 1 per cent up to 3 per cent at the same times that your payments are increased.

Money Goes Into U. S. Treasury.

Q.—Who will hold and take care of the money that is collected from me and my employer? A.—Both your payments and your employer's payments will be turned into the treasury of the United States.

Q.—If I am my employer's only employé, does this pension plan still apply? A.—The pension plan applies to all employers of one employé or more.

Q.—Will deductions be made from my pay no matter how little I earn? A.—Yes.

Q.—If I am not a citizen of the United States, will I still be eligible to draw a pension when I reach age 65? A.—Yes.

Q.—If I continue to work after I reach 65, may I draw my pension in addition to my pay? A.—No. You must be retired in order to draw a pension.

Q.—If I continue to work after I am 65, will I or my employer still be required to make payments into the pension fund? A.—No.

Need Is No Basis for Benefit.

Q.—Will my pension be paid to me after I retire at 65 whether I need the pension or not? A.—Yes. All qualified workers who have made their contributions to the pension fund will be entitled to receive a pension, based upon the contributions which they have made plus the contributions made in their behalf by the employer, regardless of what property they may own.

Q.—What will happen to the money which I have paid into the pension fund if I die before reaching 65? A.—The law states, "If an individual dies before attaining the age of 65, there shall be paid to his estate an amount equal to 3½ per cent of the total wages ["wages" as defined by the act for the purpose of contributions] paid him after Dec. 31, 1936." No payment will be made before Jan. 1, 1942, however.

Q.—If I die after I am 65, will my heirs receive any death benefit? A.—Your heirs will be entitled to receive as a death benefit a sum equal to 3½ per cent of wages [as previously defined] received by you as payment for services rendered after Dec. 31, 1936 and before reaching the age of 65, minus any pension payments made to you prior to your death.

Workers Excluded from Act.

Q.—What workers are not included in the pension provisions of the social security act? A.—The law excludes the following: agricultural labor; domestic servants; casual labor not in the course of the employer's trade or business; officers and members of a crew of a legally documented vessel under the laws of the United States or any foreign country; employés of the United States government or any instrumentality thereof; employés of a state or a subdivision or instrumentality thereof; employés of nonprofit-making religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational institutions.

Q.—If I make enough money so that I have to pay a federal income tax, will I be allowed to deduct my payments into the pension fund in figuring my income tax? A.—No.

Calculate Amount of Pension.

Q.—How much will my pension be? A.—That depends upon how many years you have been paying into the pension fund and how much wages you have earned on which your payments and your employer's payments have been made, when you reach 65 years of age. If you are eligible for a pension at age 65, you will receive not less than $10 a month nor more than $85 a month.

Your pension will be based on a sliding scale of percentages of the total wages on which your contributions since Dec. 31, 1936 have been based. The monthly payment will consist of: ½ of 1 per cent of the first $3,000 of this total, plus 1-12 of 1 per cent of the next $42,000 of the total, plus 1-24 of 1 per cent of the total in excess of $45,000.

For example, if you are now 25 years old and earn an average of $1,500 a year until you are 65, a total of $60,000, your monthly pension will consist of ½ of 1 per cent of $3,000, or $15, plus 1-12 of 1 per cent of $42,000, or $35, plus 1-24 of 1 per cent of $15,000, or $12.50—a total of $62.50 a month.

Lower Paid Workers Benefit.

Q.—Why was this method of calculating the amount of monthly benefits adopted? A.—[From an official publication of the social security board]—"The purpose of paying a higher percentage of the smaller amounts of total wages was to provide more liberal benefits for lower paid workers. Workers who are already middle aged will also benefit by this provision, since their total wages used in the computation of benefits will be wages for only a few years.

Q.—How can I, and my fellow workers, tell what our pensions will be, according to our various earnings and ages? A.—To determine this accurately you would need to know how much money you will earn between Dec. 31, 1936, and the time you reach the age of 65. The following table will enable you to determine approximately what your pension will be, based upon what you expect your average monthly earnings will be for the number of years between Dec. 31, 1936, and the time when you reach 65:

Avge. Mthly. Sal.	Years to the age of 65: 5	10	15	20	30	45

Fixes Lump Sum Payments.

Lump sum payments, in place of pensions, are made under the following conditions: If the employé contributing to the fund is not employed [at least one day a year] for at least five years between Jan. 1, 1937, and the time he reaches 65; if he reaches the age of 65 between Jan. 1, 1937, and Jan. 1, 1942; if his total wages on which contributions are made between Jan. 1, 1937, and the time he reaches 65 are less than $2,000. Lump sum payments are at the rate of 3½ per cent of total wages on which payments are made.

Q.—If I am entitled to receive monthly benefit payments, will I have an option of receiving a lump sum payment instead? A.—[by the social security board]—No. A lump sum payment is made only to the worker whose wages meet some, but not all, requirements for monthly retirement benefits.

Q.—If I continue in regular included employment after I am 65, will I receive a lump sum payment? A.—[by the social security board]—Yes, if you are not eligible to monthly benefits. The lump sum payment to those who meet some, but not all, minimum requirements for benefits is not forfeited by continuing regular work in an included employment.

Self Employed Not Included.

Q.—As the owner and manager of an unincorporated grocery, will I qualify for old age benefits? A.—[by the social security board]—Earnings of self-employed people, that is, those not working for an employer, are not wages and under the law cannot be used as a basis of eligibility for old-age benefits.

Q.—If a girl works for a period of years and then marries, will she be entitled to monthly benefits if after her marriage she no longer works in an included employment? A.—Yes, provided she meets the requirements of five years employment after Jan. 1, 1937, and total earnings of at least $2,000; otherwise she will receive a lump sum payment, as previously described.

Q.—At what age do I start making payments into the pension fund? A.—Whenever you start work on a job in the eligible classification, after next Jan. 1.

Q.—If I am to be pensioned at 65, is there any reason why I should try to save money for old age? A.—Here are two good reasons why you should be thrifty and save money:

First, because you probably will need more money to live on than the pension plan will provide for you when you retire at age 65, especially if you are now 40 years old or more. Second, because savings will still be very important to take care of any emergencies and "rainy days" that may occur in your life between now and your age of retirement at 65.

Unemployed Can Register.

Q.—Can I register for old age benefits if I am unemployed at present? A.—Yes, you can get an application blank from your postmaster and be assigned a registration number, but this is not necessary. You will be registered by your employer as soon as you get a job in one of the included classifications, and your pension will be based solely on the contributions which you and your employer make while you are so employed.

Q.—If I am unemployed for periods of time, will that affect the amount of my pension when I finally reach age 65? A.—Yes, because the amount of your pension will depend upon the total amount of money you earn between Dec. 31, 1936, and the day you reach 65.

Q.—If I work for a company that already has a good pension plan in force, what will happen to my company's pension plan, now that the government has a pension plan? A.—That will depend upon what your company decides to do about its own pension plan. The social security act does not allow your company to substitute its own plan for the government plan. Your employer must pay the full amount into the government pension fund whether he has a company plan or not.

Therefore your company may decide to discontinue its own plan. Or, if your employer's private plan is more liberal than the government plan, as it probably is, your employer may decide to cut out of the private plan an amount equal to what the government provides, so that in the end you may receive as much as the private plan provided for.

If You're Told to "ALKALIZE"

Try this Remarkable "PHILLIPS" Way Thousands are Adopting

On every side today people are being urged to alkalize their stomach And thus to ease the symptoms of "acid indigestion," nausea and stomach upsets. For perhaps the vast majority of stomach upsets come from an excess of acidity.

To gain quick alkalization, just do this Take two teaspoons of PHILLIPS MILK OF MAGNESIA 30 minutes after eating. OR – take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets, which have the same antacid effect.

Relief comes almost at once—usually in a few minutes. Nausea, "gas"—fullness after eating and "acid indigestion" pains leave. You feel like a new person.

Try this way. You'll be surprised at results. And try it particularly if you've been using some less natural and less effective way of overcoming acids. Get either the liquid "Phillips" or the remarkable, new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Each one equals a teaspoon of the liquid, and they're delightful to take and easy to carry with you. Only 25¢ at all drug stores.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Slender Waist Easy to Have with Exercises

Adviser Describes Some Excellent Ones.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

As promised yesterday, today's discussion is to be turned over to waistline whittling or planing down, or whatever you want to call the business of remodeling this telltale part of the silhouette.

Controling the diet will hasten the triumphant waistline news as it is registered for you by the tape measure. Use a tape measure, too, for this waist line reducing work. If you never have known the joy of finding two inches gone from the first recording, you have a pleasure coming to you, believe me. You don't have to be told if your waistline is thick. No one is better aware than are you of the crowded, stuffed feeling. So, get the tape measure out and grin and bear the first bad news. A new tomorrow is dawning for your midsector. Understand that any exercise you do for the waist also is going to include a lot of good for the rest of the body, principally that bloated diaphragm and thickish under-arm section and the near-hip area, also.

The middle of the body usually is constricted by tight clothing, thus devitalizing the important muscles there. Upon the muscle weakness, the accumulating fat prospers. That's why exercise is ordered, rather than the dieting as a means to a neater waistline. Middle age begins in the middle of the figure and you simply don't want that nasty description of your figure being used against you.

Here's one perfect exercise for that bulgy waistline. Stand straight and tall, pulling abdomen in flat, chest up. Bring hands high overhead, feet apart. When bringing hands and arms up overhead, raise them through vertical to rearward position, bending the knees slightly and stretching. Recover and start again. You'll feel a grand pull on the waist muscles if you do this one properly, and it is not too strenuous, either.

Now, from standing position, do the wood chopping movement, beginning with hands overhead and together as if about to strike down a mighty oak. "Chop" down outside the right leg with both hands, of course. Then "chop" in the floor direction outside the left leg. Keep on chopping until you have a mighty pile of fancied wood.

I'll wager that these two exercises alone, done 30 times to 50 a day, will give that tape measure one good hearty laugh over your former waist measure embarrassment.

Miss Moore Tells How Doll House Started

BY KAY HALL.

A broken neck and a love of little things are the reasons why $250,000 has been raised for crippled children in the last 15 months through exhibition of the Colleen Moore doll house. This explanation was given yesterday by Miss Moore, the motion picture actress, on her arrival in Chicago to supervise the second showing of the miniature palace at the Fair store, starting Saturday.

Miss Moore said she had the love of little things before she had the broken neck.

"The doll house was well under way when I suffered the broken neck in making a scene for a picture," she related. "While I was in the hospital I became acquainted with the problem of crippled children. When the doll house was completed I decided that a million dollars must be raised for work among crippled children from exhibiting it."

Miss Moore estimated that 3,000,000 people have seen the doll house in the 30 cities where it has been shown and that its first showing in Chicago last year drew the largest crowds of all.

When broken down the doll palace fills 12 moving vans. Most of its contents have been made under magnifying glasses. It boasts $100,000 worth of improvements this year, including a drawing room floor of rose quartz inlaid with jade. All of Miss Moore's jewelry except two necklaces have been fashioned into the furnishings. A friend who helped her with the house recently took two diamond clips from her dress and made them into chairs.

One new furnishing is a gold jewel case which is about half the size of Miss Moore's little finger nail. It has a hidden lock and a key that works. A dresser set, including a brush with bristles of split horsehair, is being made to match up with the jewel case, said Miss Moore.

New items in the music library include miniature but exact copies of "The End of a Perfect Day," "Skyscrapers," by John Alden Carpenter, and "From the Land of the Sky Blue Waters."

Miss Moore was met by Mrs. James B. McCahey, president of the board of directors of the Misericordia hospital and infants' home; Miss Techla Donjat, principal of the Spalding school for crippled children, and Mrs. F. H. Quayle of the board of the Martha Washington Home for Dependent Crippled Children, and D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair.

Proceeds of the exhibition will go to Chicago agencies engaged in aid to crippled children.

Studio Tries Union of Waltz and Jazz Tunes

Uses 2 Huge Orchestras in Film Novelty.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—To support his view that "fine old Viennese waltzes and the modern American dance rhythms are not really so far apart that they do not blend" Boris Morros, the Russian musical director at Paramount studio, sponsored a lavish and costly sequence. The result will hit the eyes and ears of film audiences as one of the special scenes in "Champagne Waltz."

Morros had 100 musicians from the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra and the Hollywood Bowl in one immense curved gallery of four tiers to play "The Blue Danube." Across a narrow aile was another great orchestra gallery. There Morros had gathered 100 musicians from the Biltmore and Ambassador orchestras and local night clubs and dance pavilions. They were to play "Hold That Tiger." They were to play another great jumble of music, partly at the same time.

Classical musicians clad in evening clothes started it and swept Morros' twenty trombones, twenty cornets, sixteen saxophones, twelve banjos, eight tubas, and eight percussionists into the lovely strains along with them. Then imperceptibly the harmony rhythm changed. The fiddlers from the Philharmonic swayed and chopped at their violins and solid ranks of trombones and saxes arose opposite them to blare the irregular jaz. Both orchestras ended on a strain which sounded both like the "Blue Danube" and typical "hot" American tune all at the same time.

It may be that your correspondent isn't wholly modern, but to him "The Blue Danube" sounded a trifle sweeter before the metal instruments of the tuxedo clad young fellows with the wavy hair began "blending" into it.

At any rate it was a notable and novel demonstration and it seemed to be immensely pleasing to a collection of distinguished people who had gathered to watch and listen. This group included Barney Balaban, president of Paramount Pictures; Stanton Griffiths, chairman of Paramount's executive committee; Adolf Zukor, the production chief and grand old man of Paramount; Fanchon Simon [the feminine half of "Fanchon and Marco" chain of stage presentations]; Leroy Prinz, the studio dance director and one time Chicago night club man, and opera singer Gladys Swarthout, who plays the star part in "Champagne Waltz."

Miss Swarthout didn't seem to mind the twists and swing time curlicues that Morros' blatant bandsmen affixed to "The Blue Danube."

In the picture story she plays a granddaughter of Johann Strauss who has a successful orchestra playing Strauss waltzes at a Vienna eating and dancing place in 1922 when suddenly an American college jaz band invades the Austrian capital and captivates the Viennese musical ear.

Fred MacMurray leads the American band and, as you can imagine, the blending of the bands has a romantic significance which extends to Gladys and Fred.

Paramount announces the start of an annual film series to be titled "Artists and Models of Such and Such a Year." The series will be comparable to Warners' "Gold Diggers" series, that of "Broadway Melody" at Metro studio, and Paramount's own "Big Broadcasts." Oscar Serlin, recent Chicago theater man, will produce the first "Artists and Models."

Ronald Colman has bought a hotel with dude ranch trimmings outside of Montecito, Cal. A current guest there is his ex-wife, Thelma Raye Colman, former English musical comedy headliner.

Bette Davis Returns with New Blast for Film Studio Contracts

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Bette Davis, the motion picture actress, returned from England today piqued over the outcome of a court fight with her employers and asserting "I want better rôles and I want a better career."

In England Warner Brothers successfully sued for a restraining order to prevent Miss Davis from playing in a British picture, an act which the American producers charged was an abrogation of Miss Davis' contract with them.

"There are several thousand contracts in Hollywood just like mine," she said. "I'm not a crusader for right or wrong, but it did turn out that this was a test case for all the contracts out there."

The actress said she signed an 11 year contract in 1931 at $1,500 a week with an option of $3,000 per week at expiration of the contract.

She returned on the Aquitania and plans to go to Hollywood Thursday.

There's Drama in Newest of Dinner Clothes

Jacket Combines Smart and Effective.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Drama with your newest dinner clothes! Long, slinky gowns teamed with the inevitable jacket. The jacket is so much a part of the ensemble that the outfit is called a jacket combine. The jacket and dress are so intimately related that they appear one piece.

Without the jacket the gown is extremely dress parade, usually cut low front and back, with a bodice top that fits as smoothly as skin. And the skirt, while it may flare, also fits supersmoothly at the waist and hipline.

One shop has new arrivals that will cause much ado among the sleuthing shoppers out for new things. A snow white dull crêpe, quite the most romantic ensemble we've found in weeks. The gown fits seductively smooth, flaring but slightly from below the kneeline to the floor. And around the hemline are the bands of thick old fashioned fluting that remind you of the pictures in Godey's Lady Book or something your great-granny might have worn.

The long sleeved jacket is shortish, has a curved bolero outline and around that curving outline and the cuffs of the sleeves are repetitions of the same crinkled glory of fluted crêpe.

The fluting reminds you of tight little bunches of tuberoses, or those tiny parasols, or horsehair furniture, or fat satin cushions, it's so quaintly old fashioned. But the ensemble is the newest in town.

More swanky, sleekly fashioned and just as new is the satin and velvet dinner dress that is unquestionably a dinner outfit without equal. The flared skirt and bodice top are of dull black satin, starkly simple. The fitted jacket is of black velvet, cut with all the tailored slimness of a man's dinner jacket. The long tuxedo collar is of satin. The jacket buttons primly at the waistline, the peplum is curved slightly and there is just a suggestion of fullness at the back. These are but two of the exciting new affairs found in this collection.

Fashion photograph . . . silver gray sleek kidskin is used for a swagger coat for general wear. The back flare is moderate, the collar high and flared and the sleeves full at the elbows. It's a perfect coat for wool dresses, for a suit on a cold day and it can be worn with dress parade clothes just as effectively. Since gray has become high fashion these slenderizing models of silky flat fur are increasingly popular. This model is available in a Chicago shop.

Beautiful Block Tests Ability of the Quilt Maker

October Foliage.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Every quilt maker anxious to test her needlework ability should try making a coverlet from the applique pattern, "October Foliage." It is unquestionably one of our most beautiful applique blocks but, without a doubt, one of the difficult patterns. One point in its favor is that the applique patches are not too small, for the completed applique block measures 14 inches square. A completed coverlet measuring 88 by 102 inches is composed entirely of "October Foliage" blocks.

Mother Should Be Companion to Growing Girl

Adolescent Child Needs Her Gentle Guidance.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I made up my mind when my baby was born," said a woman the other day, "that I was going to get along with my daughter. So many of my friends had experienced the same lack of parental understanding in their childhood that I had." This woman's daughter is 17.

"I've succeeded," she continued. "We do get along awfully well, and I enjoy her companionship so much."

Can you say as much? Do you get along with your daughter, especially now that she is growing up?

Do you get along with her now that she has her own ideas about clothes, now that she lays great store in what the other girls are doing, now that she sometimes is critical of the way you do your hair or the clothes you wear?

Do you get along with her now that you have to think of her and treat her more as an adult than a child? [Even though you still have to protect her and guide her ever so gently and tactfully.]

Can you take her frankness and even her criticism good naturedly, without getting "up on your ear?" Have you a real respect for her emotions and her opinions? Do you confide in her about family matters and finances enough so that she feels very much 'a member of the family' yet not overly burdened by its problems?

When your girl is little there's one way of getting along with her. When she's growing into one of those wide eyed, informed, frank young girls of the moment, there's a somewhat different way of getting along with her. Are you managing the latter?

Do do so, or you'll both lose out. I don't know which of you will lose the most. You both need each other's companionship so much!

"Understanding the Adolescent" is the name of a fully written booklet, which is sent on receipt of a large, 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Mrs. Bevans' column also appears in the Sunday Tribune.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, "The Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily instalments.

AFTER OPENING NO TRUMP BID AND A RESPONSE OF THREE IN A SUIT.

After an opening no trump bid and a response of three in a suit the opener now knows from the forcing response that partner has a minimum of about two or two and one-half honor tricks. The opener's rebids will be slightly different if the forcing take-out is in a major or a minor suit.

If a minor, opener should:

1. Show any biddable four card major suit.

Example: Bid three hearts, over three clubs or three diamonds, with ♠K86 ♥AQ74 ♦AQ3 ♣K52.

2. Raise to four with three trumps headed by A K x or A Q x or K Q x of partner's suit.

Example: Bid four diamonds over three diamonds with ♠K73 ♥AK4 ♦KQ6 ♣K1073.

3. Bid four no trump if holding a maximum [five honor tricks] or a near maximum [about four and one-half with eight or nine honor cards].

Example: ♠ K J 4 ♥ A Q 10 3 ♦ A Q 5 ♣ K Q 2.

SOUTH.

♣ K J 10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	Pass	1 spade
2 hearts	Double [final bid]

West's pass after South's original bid was intended as a trap, but he ran the grave risk that the opponents would get to a safe contract of two-odd in a black suit, in which case West would have his choice between giving up the ghost and bidding at a dangerous level. South's rebid virtually begged for trouble! His partner's pass had announced a "bust," and that meant the opponents had at least five honor tricks. He could not hope to outbid them with his three and one-half honor tricks, and there was the danger that his presumption might evoke a penalty double, as it actually did.

West's opening lead was the king of diamonds, a much better opening than the ace of his partner's suit. East signaled with the ten and West continued with the jack of diamonds. East overtook with the ace and shifted to the queen of spades. South covered and the suit was continued. The third round was ruffed by South, while West discarded a club.

South drew two rounds of trumps, East discarding the deuce of clubs. Then he led the jack of clubs, which East won. The spade return South ruffed and West overruffed. West cashed the queen of hearts and exited with his last diamond. South had to use his last trump to win the trick, and East took the last two tricks with the ace of clubs and a spade.

It was small consolation to South to know that East and West could have scored a game. They were perfectly willing to take 1,100 points instead.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 spades	Double

Could North's double be interpreted as a penalty double in the Culbertson system?

Lytton Home Now Adjunct to Hospital

New Change Takes Place at Prairie Avenue.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE old Henry Lytton house at 2700 Prairie avenue is the latest of the mansions in that historic street to assume a new rôle in a changing age. Nearby Mercy hospital recently acquired it as a guest house and as headquarters for the woman's auxiliary of the hospital.

The mansion formally will be opened as the Mercy club with a party Saturday evening, Nov. 21. The woman's auxiliary is arranging a buffet supper, cocktail bar and games, and because many of the guests will be returning from the Notre Dame-Northwestern game at South Bend that afternoon, the affair will be informal. Proceeds will be used toward furnishing the house. Mrs. Herbert Schmitz heads the auxiliary.

Until recently one of the few remaining houses still tenanted by original residents of the street was Mrs. Philo A. Otis' red brick dwelling at 1709 Prairie avenue. The last week in October Mrs. Otis and her son, J. Sanford Otis, moved to 199 Lake Shore drive.

Most of the Otises' possessions have been moved into the new apartment, and the old house stands virtually empty in a caretaker's charge, its fate still undecided. Next door, where George M. Pullman's "palace" once stood, there is now a parking lot.

Mr. Otis has bought a farm near the Des Plaines river in the vicinity of Libertyville, where his cousins, the Stuart H. Otises, the Adlai Stevensons and so many other friends of his have country places. Next spring he will build a house there.

Announce Debut Date for Edith Harrison

The Christmas holidays provide such a short time for the number of parties that are to be given for the debutantes that even Sunday, Dec. 27, is being called upon as a party date. Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison Jr. have chosen the second date for a luncheon they will give at the Onwentsia club in Lake Forest to introduce to society their second daughter, Miss Edith Harrison.

The party should be even gayer and more exciting than most large Sunday luncheons are for the reason that the Princeton Triangle club members who play the preceding evening at the Civic Opera house still will be in town, and will be invited. Miss Harrison is studying in New York City this winter and is not expected at home until the holidays.

Miss Nancy Reed, daughter of Mrs. Allen Martin Reed of Riverside, will share honors with Miss Joan Bersbach at a dinner-dance at the Arts club on Dec. 28. The two debutantes were abroad together last summer, and have been close friends for several years.

Miss Reed is studying at Sarah Lawrence, and Miss Bersbach, daughter of Mrs. Frank J. Bersbach, is attending a day school in New York. Mrs. Reed plans to come in town during the holiday season.

Miss Betty Durham, whose marriage to Henry Varnum Poor will take place on Saturday, has asked her fiancé's sister, Miss Priscilla Poor, to be her only attendant. Mr. Poor's brother, Daniel Poor, will be best man. Ushering will be the bride's brothers, R. Gregory Durham of New Haven, Conn., and Raymond E. Durham Jr. of Winnetka; and Arthur Ballantine and Raymond Clarke of New York.

Mrs. Raymond E. Durham and Miss Durham returned on Monday from New York where they finished settling an apartment at 108 East 81st street where Mr. Poor and his bride will make their home. Miss Poor accompanied them back to Chicago.

During the next two or three days several relatives will arrive to stay until after the wedding. The service

Universal Agrees to Exchange Talent with British Studio

Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—A British-American moving picture alliance that will bring a "distinct international flavor to all films" was announced today by Charles Rogers, head of Universal studio.

Rogers said he had signed an agreement with the Lloyd-Portall group of British film producers to exchange artists, technicians, and ideas.

Others were Dr. A. H. Giannini of United Artists, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Roach, and Ricardo Cortez, Robert Montgomery, and Buddy Rogers, actors.

Wise, Copeland to Speak at Meeting Here Tonight

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York will address a massmeeting of Central west Zionist leaders tonight at the Coliseum. The meeting is sponsored by the Zionist organization of Chicago to hear first-hand reports from Palestine. Senator Copeland spent most of the last summer in the Holy Land studying causes of discord between Jewish colonists and the Arabs. Col. A. H. Rosenburg is in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The beauty salon of one of our stores is having a birthday party this afternoon. It's been 13 years since the salon opened its doors—and my, how the baby has grown! To celebrate the proud parents are having a tea and a style parade.

This last should be fun. Until you've seen the styles of 1923 and 1924 you won't appreciate how sensibly and artistically the trend in coiffures has moved in the last 13 years. The "streamlined" hairdresses of today have it all over the styles of even a decade ago from every aspect. They're more practical, certainly, and every artist strives now for perfect harmony between head line and hair line. Call it streamlined if you like—it's really a sound esthetic principle applied to the art of creating a coiffure.

You can see this for yourself if you go to the party. The 1936 styles in hairdresses easily win in competition with the way-back-whenners.

You'll see, too, how cosmetics have come up in the world to their present scientific standing and if you avail yourself of the opportunity to inspect the shop's body department, where silhouettes are molded to perfection, you'll be overcome with awe and admiration. If you've been wondering what to do about that figure of yours, whether curves or the lack of them keep you from being a perfect thirty-six, you might inspect what this shop has to offer. It's impressive.

In the body department a physiotherapist supervises all treatments. Inches on or inches off—she knows just how to change your measurements to order.

Good Morning!

[Warner Oland and Wallace Beery are NOT the same person. Most of you are aware of that fact, but may be interested to know that a lady called up frantically the other day to have us assure her that Messrs. Oland and Beery WERE one—and lost $10 because we had to tell her differently.]

Mr. Oland, famed for his portrayal of the practically infallible Chinese detective, Charlie Chan, finds in this newest number of the series of Chan films a vehicle replete with opportunity for demonstration of the oriental sleuth's astuteness.

Skullduggery starts with the throwing of a race at an Australian race track by Jocky Tip Collins, who, you learn early in the game, was working under orders. . . .

Maj. Kent, with his horse, takes steamer for America. Immediately, threatening letters begin to besiege him—and his murder follows. . . . Aboard the ship are numerous persons who MIGHT profit by his decease. . . .

Comedy is introduced, as it often has been lately in the series, by the antics of Chan's ebullient college boy son whose determination to out-detective his father is both a joy and a darned nuisance to that gentleman. Quite amusing, this Keye Luke.

Other players do the expected in satisfactory fashion. The film has been pretty well directed. Maybe you will and maybe you won't correctly guess the murderer's identity.

A thought: I imagine this Chan opus was suggested by a recent and popular mystery novel, the name of which I will let you figure out for yourselves.

See you soon.

Zasu Pitts to Make Film in England This Winter

Front Views and Profiles
By June Provines

THE other afternoon an elderly woman wandering about the floor of a loop store where the television telephone is on exhibition was asked by one of the guides if she would like to test it. She complied willingly, and sat down in one of the inclosed booths. A few minutes later she stamped out enraged and disappointed, upon discovering that it was her picture and not her living self that was projected through the scientific machine. . . . We feel sympathetic with the lady. In a world in which wood is being turned into yeast, where there are synthetic chocolate bars, liquefied coal, and where they are learning how to grow all apples rosy because of their higher marketable value, just to mention a few minor scientific achievements, why shouldn't one expect to go right through the machine and come out whole in the other booth?

Scientific Age—Coincidences—Unionized?

WE'VE written about coincidences. Author Lloyd Douglas, ["The Magnificent Obsession," "White Banners," etc.], related one to a small gathering at the Medinah club when he was here last week. He confided that when he was writing his first book he was searching for a name for one of the characters, a young doctor, and he wanted to be sure it was not the name of any one he knew. While he was thinking about it he received a letter from a man in London containing a casual query.

"I noted the signature 'Dawson' and decided to use it because it was forceful. I knew no one named Dawson, and the Atlantic ocean was between my chance correspondent and me," said Douglas. "Well, years later my daughter wired me from Paris that she had become engaged to a young doctor in the Curie institute named Dawson, and that he was the son of the man who had written me that letter."

* *

OUR favorite coincidence still is the one that befell Dr. E. J. Senn. Some years ago in Paris he went to the opera and, the house being crowded, he sat down on one of those little seats—strapontin they are called—that can be let down in the aisle. When he got up to leave he tore his trousers on a nail. A dozen years later he happened to drop into the opera on a night when the house was crowded, and found a seat on the same strapontin. Moreover, when he got up to go, he tore his trousers again on the same nail.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Richie of Hinsdale announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeanette Richie Bettridge, to William Franklin Crum of 210 East Pearson street, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Crum of Kittanning, Pa. Mrs. Bettridge attended Dana Hall and Wellesley. Mr. Crum is an executive in the travel business and has lived in Chicago about nine years. He and Mrs. Bettridge will be married on Jan. 23. The wedding will be a quiet home one.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Rogers of Omaha, Neb., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Alice, to Stephen Gately Harwood, son of Mrs. Fred E. Harwood of the Homestead, Evanston. The wedding will take place Dec. 19 in Omaha. Miss Rogers attended Smith college and the University of Southern California, and Mr. Harwood was graduated from Dartmouth in the class of '32. He and his bride will live in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lewy announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet, to William H. Bergman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton M. Stern. Miss Lewy and Mr. Bergman are graduates of the University of Chicago.

Noted Swedish Singer Scores Triumph Here

Wettergren Soloist with Woman's Symphony.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

One of the most interesting singers of our day made her first appearance in Chicago last night. Months ago the directors of the Woman's Symphony orchestra hit on the happy idea of bringing Gertrud Wettergren, contralto of the Stockholm opera and New York's Metropolitan, to the Auditorium theater here for this first concert of the 1936-'37 series. Their judgment was vindicated in every way.

Curiously, Mme. Wettergren's first song was disappointing. She had chosen Mignon's "Knowest Thou the Land," an air which allows her own imperious creative powers very little scope. These same creative powers, capable of building a significant emotional state out of any material which allows her abilities full play, were triumphantly displayed in the group of unfamiliar Swedish and Finnish songs which constituted her second group, and in the three familiar encores that followed.

Here are a few impressions of Gertrud Wettergren.

She is gracious, dignified, slim, handsome. Her beauty is of the dark variety, very un-Swedish you might say, if the blue eyed, light haired type must be regarded as the national norm.

Her singing is extremely emotional, serious, even passionate. Mme. Wettergren's tense eagerness to actually live each and every song brings to mind occasionally the work of Povla Frijsh, almost a countrywoman of hers.

Her voice, unimpressive in the excerpt from "Mignon," took on an excitingly beautiful quality, strongly charged with feeling, in the group of Scandinavian lyrics. Their subjects—the folk customs of the north—lay close to her interests. In making their beauty perfectly comprehensible to a Chicago audience [which was helped, of course, by the notes and translations in the program books], Mme. Wettergren demonstrated neatly the universality of her art.

She spoke a charming English to announce the titles of her encores. Grieg's "I Love Thee" [sung in Norwegian or Swedish] was followed by the "Carmen" Habanera [French] and a bit of Strauss [German]. The audience responded enthusiastically.

Mme. Wettergren, by the way, is

The Black Automatic

By William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS.

Inspector Noel Irving of the Canadian Mounted dynamites the hideout of Frank Rocco, master criminal, not knowing two women were with him. Noel is discharged, disgraced, while Rocco becomes a glorified legend. A young stranger, who calls himself Jimmy, calls on Noel and asks him to be his partner in a secret enterprise and to help him outwit an unknown gang who are pursuing him. While they are talking Jimmy is shot dead. Noel sets out to clear his name and avenge Jimmy's murder. Noel flies to Fort McMurray in a plane which was Jimmy's. He learns Jimmy's headquarters were at Manitou. Noel meets Harla De Long, a research worker for the Indian bureau, and Jimmy's sister. He reluctantly agrees to fly her to Manitou. Harla recognizes the plane as Jimmy's and grows suspicious of Noel. Noel fears that Harla would be endangered if he told her the truth. On the trip they are attacked and forced down by a mysterious plane. They are picked up by a river steamer bound for Manitou. On board is Raphael Flood, whose advances Harla resents, and whom Noel suspects to be the gang's leader. In Manitou Noel sees Harla go into his cabin with a gun. She takes aim at the cot where she thinks he is sleeping, but is unable to fire. Noel is forced to tell her the truth. Tah-Gomaugh brings word of an outbreak of smallpox in a remote Indian village. Noel and Harla fly there with aid. The Indian preserve is forbidden to prospectors. Noel realizes Jimmy discovered gold on the forbidden territory and that Flood killed Jimmy to get the gold himself. Flood abducts Harla. Noel finds Flood's camp at the gold placer, where Harla is imprisoned. He manages to free her and get possession of Flood's machine gun. He has reason to believe that Flood is Rocco, whom Noel is supposed to have killed. He intends to capture him alive if possible. Harla refuses to leave Noel to fight it out alone.

INSTALMENT XLV.

A LIFE AND DEATH BATTLE.

With a defiant wave Paul d'Orleans turned and dropped back to the trail and hurried to the cabin.

"He certainly didn't sound very propitious," Harla commented.

"That's true. But those other men haven't his loyalty. They may surrender Flood to save themselves."

"But the placer, Noel; this 'seex-seven million'—that's where they'll balk."

He nodded. She was dead right. If his plan smashed, it would smash upon that placer. The gold dust had seized those men and was running hot in their blood.

Through the slow dragging minutes Noel and Harla waited, waited, wondering what was going on in that cabin yonder.

The wounded Yellowknife pulled himself together, went over to the streamlet and bathed his shoulder in the icy water. Except for that they saw nothing of their enemies.

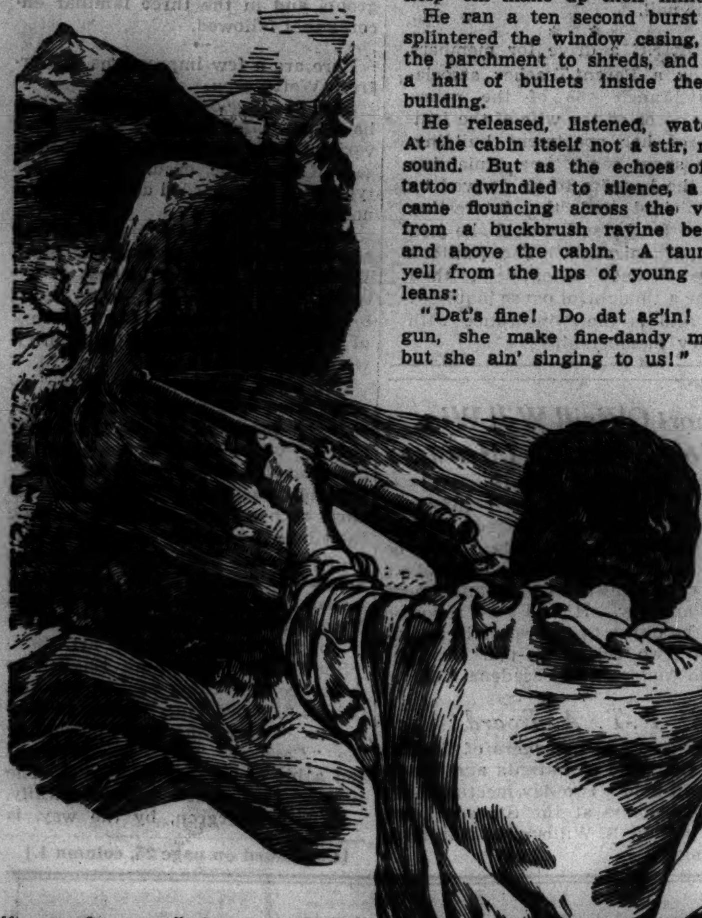
The fifteen minutes passed. Impatient, nervous, Noel trained the Vickers on the cabin window.

"I'd better convince 'em that I mean business," he said. "If they're wavering, a splash of lead might help 'em make up their minds."

He ran a ten second burst that splintered the window casing, tore the parchment to shreds, and sent a hail of bullets inside the log building.

He released, listened, watched. At the cabin itself not a stir, not a sound. But as the echoes of his tattoo dwindled to silence, a yell came flouncing across the valley from a buckbrush ravine beyond and above the cabin. A taunting yell from the lips of young d'Orleans:

"Dat's fine! Do dat ag'in! Dat gun, she make fine-dandy music, but she ain' singing to us!"



A man figure rolled out of that hiding.

Harla turned, pale of face. "Noel! They got out of that cabin! They must've knocked a log out of the back side and faded into the timber!"

He noded. "That's what they've done. I should have known they'd turn me down."

For a full half hour they heard nothing whatever from their enemies. Over the valley and the steep slopes hung a silence that was ominous of a gathering storm.

In low tones they argued about what those men were doing.

"They are over on that west slope," Harla insisted. "They're hunting places where they can see us and snipe us."

"Rush a machine gun? They're not that crazy."

"They wouldn't have far to rush. Look here"—he gestured at a rocky ravine on that east slope. Coiling down the hillside from some thick timber above, it was deep and twisty, offering perfect cover, perfect approach; and at its nearest swing it passed within thirty feet of their little refuge. "That's too good a set-up for them to have overlooked. They can boil out of there and be on top of us in three or four jumps."

The long silence was at last broken, abruptly, by the snarl of a rifle across the valley. A bullet came singing into the covert, whined past Noel's throat, nicked the barrel of the Vickers and buried itself in a windfall log.

"Noel, keep down!" Harla pleaded. "You're exposing yourself, to watch that ravine. I told you they're over yonder." With her rifle against her cheek she was peering intently at a small gray cliff straight across the valley from them. "I know just about where that man is, Noel. I saw the sun glint on his gun when he worked the bolt. He's in that clump of dwarf spruces over there. If he moves again, I can get in a shot."

Noel reached into his pocket for the extra rifle clip and laid it on his hat brim, for Harla's .303. That rifle snarl across the valley proved that she was in for a sniping duel with one enemy at least and likely with two—d'Orleans and the man called Jed.

But he still believed that the chief attack would be a sudden overwhelming rush from the rock ravine just yonder. Their strategy was plain enough now. That sniping from the western slope was only a brainy play to draw his and Harla's attention while death stalked them from the other direction.

"Noel," Harla bade, "move the Vickers a little; I want to lure a shot from that man over there. I believe he was shooting at the Vickers that first time, trying to put it out of commission."

Noel swerved the big gun a few inches. Almost instantly that sharp-speaking rifle cracked again. The bullet struck the Vickers' barrel near the bead, jarred the gun but did no harm, caromed off a granite slab and ricocheted up the slope.

The deadliness of that rifle jolted Noel. He glanced at Harla to see whether she had spotted the man. He saw her eyes narrowing and her trigger finger slowly tightening as she firmed her aim. He turned again, quickly, and glanced across at the gray cliff.

Harla shot. At the bark of her gun something threshed violently in those dwarf spruces; a rifle cartwheeled out of the thicket, struck against the cliff side and clattered on the granites below; a man figure rolled out of that hiding and tumbled over the rock into the top of a banksian, and bumped from limb to limb to the ground.

The sight of that toppling figure had a bad whipback on Harla. She turned to Noel, white faced, appalled at what she had done.

"Noel," she sobbed, "that—was—was young Paul." Her rifle dropped from her hands; she seemed on the verge of going completely to pieces.

Noel was frightened. He himself was hopelessly outmatched at this bush sniping. If he and Harla had any chance at all of fighting off death that chance rested squarely with her deadly shooting.

"Are you forgetting Jimmy?" he demanded. "Well, I'm not! They murdered him in cold blood and laughed, and now when you shoot one of them in self-defense you wilt and cry. If you had seen Jimmy standing there by my desk, helpless, gasping when their bullets struck him——"

"Noel! Don't!"

"Snap out of it, then. That rush is going to boil out of the ravine any minute, any second." As Harla picked up her rifle, he added: "This fellow Jed is over there on that hillside somewhere. He's trying to put out our machine gun. Don't let him. You might like to know that he's the man who laughed, there in Winnipeg. What're you going to do if you get a chance at him?"

"That's better. I'll try to draw a shot so that you can spot him."

BY MARY MEADE.

Don't pass up a bargain in juicy oranges just because you won't be needing quite that many for the morning glasses of orange juice. Use them for fluffy and light desserts to follow your heaviest meals. Slice them and bake them with sliced sweet potatoes and an orange juice, sugar and honey sauce. Or, make up a salad bowl of orange slices, calavo slices, wedges of apple and sections of grapefruit.

Orange Betty, orange Bavarian cream and orange marshmallow pudding are three citrus desserts which offer an after dinner lift. They're refreshing. Easiest to make is the the last named, orange marshmallow pudding.

Orange Marshmallow Pudding.

1 cup diced orange, pulp and juice
1 cup quartered marshmallows
¼ cup sugar
1 cup whipping cream

Whip the cream, fold in the other ingredients, chill and serve cold.

Orange Bavarian Cream.

1 tablespoon gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¾ cup boiling water
½ cup sugar
½ cup orange juice
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Grated rind of ½ orange
½ cup whipping cream

Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Add sugar and cool. Add fruit juices and grated rind. Cool until mixture begins to stiffen. Fold in whipped cream and chill. When ready to serve, garnish with additional whipped cream and orange segments.

Orange Betty.

1¾ cup bread cubes
¾ cup orange juice
2 eggs
7 tablespoons sugar
¾ tablespoon butter
⅛ teaspoon salt

Combine bread cubes with orange juice, sugar, egg yolks, melted butter and salt. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake at 350 degrees until firm. Serve with orange sauce.

Orange Sauce.

5 tablespoons hot water
1 teaspoon cornstarch plus
1 tablespoon cold water
5 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon butter
5 tablespoons orange juice
½ teaspoon lemon juice

Make a sauce of cornstarch, sugar and hot water and cook for 15 minutes in a double boiler. Add fruit juices and butter.

The sweet potato and orange dish mentioned previously may be made according to this recipe.

Sweet Potatoes and Orange.

5 medium sweet potatoes
1 orange
6 tablespoons melted butter
½ cup sugar
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup honey

Parboil the potatoes and cut them into slices. Slice the whole orange thinly [rind and all]. Place alternate layers of potatoes and orange slices in a buttered casserole. Pour over them the combined other ingredients. Bake for an hour in a 350 degree oven.

Noted Swedish Singer Scores Triumph Here

The Woman's Symphony orchestra turned the evening into a tribute of a special sort to the Scandinavian countries and, by implication, to the tens of thousands of Chicagoans who trace their ancestry to these lands.

Besides Gertrud Wettergren there appeared on the program Harry T. Carlson's Swedish Choral society. Especially impressive was the group's performance of a chorus from Grieg's "Olaf Trygvasson." Mr. Carlson did not appear as director. All of the society's offerings used orchestral accompaniment and were conducted by Ebba Sundstrom.

In only three numbers did Miss Sundstrom and the Woman's Symphony permit themselves to be featured without benefit of soloist or chorus. These were the Schumann First Symphony and two novelties of Kurt Atterberg, living Swedish composer.

Both director and musicians took encouragement from the huge audience on hand, decided that their fortunes are about to take definite turn for the better. Their work was vigorous when the script called for such an effect, careful and sensitive in the symphony's fragrant larghetto.

Last night was a very auspicious beginning for the new season's activities. The next concert features the duo-pianists, Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson. Later in the year comes Alfred Wallenstein, still later Carola Goya.

The second debut of Amelita Galli-Curci, previously announced for Nov. 17, has been postponed one week. This announcement was made yesterday by the Chicago City Opera company. Mme. Galli-Curci will arrive in Chicago Saturday and begin almost immediate discussions with Paul Longone on the choice of rôle.

LIKE OLD TIMES

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

It was like old times at the Auditorium last night when the Woman's Symphony orchestra gave its first concert of the season, for the boxes were filled and so were most of the main floor seats.

Every one who remembers the days when the grand old theater was the home of Chicago's grand opera has a warm spot in his heart for the Auditorium. And the fact that women's gowns are shown off to such good advantage there probably explains why so many women have great affection for the theater.

The old Opera clubroom, where so many husbands used to spend their time instead of dozing in their box chairs, was opened last night for the first time in many years and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morris dispensed hospitality to several dozen friends of the orchestra of which Mrs. Morris is president of the board of directors.

Mme. Wettergren joined the Morris' party after the performance, and received in person the enthusiastic comments of those who had enjoyed her singing earlier in the evening.

Mrs. Morris was smart in black crêpe relieved by diamond clips and gardenias and Mme. Wettergren was picturesque in flamingo crêpe.

Among those in the audience were Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Norval Pierce, Mrs. Rudolph Ganz, and Mr. and Mrs. Jason F. Whitney.

The soloist asked Mrs. Morris to follow an old Swedish custom and give her three kicks before her appearance to "bring her luck," so Mrs. Morris did it. And judging by the applause that followed Mme. Wettergren's last group of songs, the old custom worked.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' HOUSE FROCK.

There are two qualifications every house frock must have. In the first place, it must be comfortable and easy to wear, preferably adaptable to being slipped over one's dressier garment. Secondly, it must be so styled that it is easily laundered and pressed. The model presented today has both qualities and is, in addition, decidedly smart. It is a wrap-around model which may be slipped over any dress and which opens out flat on the ironing board. Its collar and matching cuffs are daintily scalloped.

This little frock, which is beautifully simple to sew, since it is cut in one piece from neckline to hem, is attractive in any type of cotton fabric. It is inexpensive, too, since the materials which are most suitable for it also are delightfully low in price. There are only so-and-so-many shopping days before Christmas, but don't allow that to frighten you! This house frock will make a perfect gift to one or more of your intimate friends.

Style No. 3136 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅜ yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

is to be read at 4 o'clock in the chapel of Christ church, Winnetka, where only members of the two families and a handful of intimate friends will be present. A larger reception will follow in the Durhams' Hubbard Woods home.

There are to be no parties before the wedding except one, a luncheon on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Ballard to which members of the bridal party are being invited.

Needlework Exhibit to Be Free to Public.

After announcements were sent out for the needlework exhibit of the Needlework and Textile guild of the Art institute the plans were changed and there will be no admission charge to the exhibit itself.

On Wednesdays, Saturdays, and Sundays, free days at the institute, there will be no charge whatsoever, and on the other four days of the week the charge will be the regular twenty-five cents that is the price of admission to the institute. The exhibit will be on view from Nov. 18 to Dec. 1 and there will be a preview for members of the guild on the 17th.

The Italy America society is giving a tea today at 4 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Leight, 2416 Lake View avenue, for some of the artists of the Chicago Civic Opera company. Rosa Raisa, Tito Schipa, Giacomo Rimini, Edith Mason, Joseph Bentonelli, and Robert Moranzoni will be among the guests.

Three young singers, Lucia Diano, Hilda Burke, and Vivian della Chiesa will pour. Among others assisting will be Fanny Cole Sample, Mrs. Clifford Caldwell, and Mrs. George Woodruff.

Many Parties Planned for Miss Janet Healy.

The days between now and Nov. 25, which is the date chosen by Miss Janet Healy and Edward S. Hill for their wedding, will pass quickly for them for the days will be filled with parties. Miss Healy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Healy of Kenilworth, is to have five attendants, including her sister, Miss Virginia Healy as maid of honor, and young Mr. Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Farwell Ferry, will be attended by five young men.

Miss Mary Hill, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Adelaide Ball, Miss Jane Littell, and Miss Marjorie Walsh of Boston are Miss Healy's bridesmaids. Frederick S. James will be Mr. Hill's best man. Two brothers, Robert Hill and Frederick B. Hill, and the bride's brother, William F. Healy Jr., and Robert Sayles of Boston will usher.

The parties will begin next Sunday with a cocktail party which Miss Virginia Healy and her brother will give at home in Kenilworth. The wedding is to be at home, too, at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, with a reception afterward.

On Tuesday, the 17th, Mrs. J. Raymond Murphy will give a tea for the bride-to-be at the Woman's Athletic club. The following evening members of the bridal party will dine in the home of Miss Littell, and on Thursday of that week Mrs. Ferry and Miss Hill will give a luncheon at home in Winnetka.

Friday afternoon, the 20th, Miss Ball will give a tea and that evening Miss Charlotte Hamilton and Miss Ruth Kniep will give a dinner and dancing party at the Congress hotel. The next night Mr. and Mrs. Healy will give the bridal dinner at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hill will give a supper party at home in Winnetka on the Sunday preceding the wedding. The next night Mrs. Curtis Tatham will give the spinster dinner in Evanston. Mr. Hill will give his bachelor dinner that night. Miss Teresa Gaynor is entertaining at cocktails on the same Monday.

Kelley to Lecture at Institute Today.

Charles Fabens Kelley will give the second of the Art institute's lecture series on oriental art at 10:30 o'clock this morning in room 2 of the institute. His subject will be "Chinese Bronzes."

Dr. Hugo Simon will speak on "England's Problems" at 11 o'clock this morning at Mrs. Henry Bartholomay's home, 1455 State parkway. This is the second of four lectures on foreign affairs to be given by Dr. Simon.

Guests at the Ladies' night dinner this evening at the Union League club will hear Hugh Walpole lecture afterward on "A Novelist in These Modern Times." The English novelist spoke on the same theme last evening in Thorne hall on McKinlock campus of Northwestern university.

In contrast to Yale, Harvard, and Princeton graduates, who this year relented and let women guests join them at the Palmer house for broadcasts of the big games, Amherst, Williams, Dartmouth, and Cornell alumni are making their broadcast parties next Saturday stag affairs for the first time in several years.

All four groups are gathering at the Hotel Sherman, the Dartmouth and Cornell men in the Crystal room and the Amherst-Williams group in the Louis XVI. room. Direct wires from the Cornell and Amherst football fields will bring play by play reports of the games.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and Dennis F. Kelly have cards out for an informal tea to be given for Miss Colleen Moore at the Congress hotel from 4 until 7 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Army and Navy Club

The Army and Navy club of Chicago will hold an Armistice night dinner at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the Old Salem grill of the club, 850 Lake Shore drive.

The Stage

Charlotte Greenwood, a comedienne who has not appeared on the Chicago stage for about six years, will return on Sunday night, Nov. 22, in a play called "Leaning on Letty," written by Wilbur Steele and Norma Mitchell. This production, which has had long runs in the Pacific coast cities, will follow "The Night of Jan. 16" in the Selwyn theater.

Miss Greenwood's company contains Percy Kilbride, Romaine Callender, Boyd Irwin, Virginia Howell, Isabel Withers and Marion Burns. The story of the play is a humorous treatment of a kidnaping episode in which the hostess of a "tourist home" figures as the master mind of detective work.

"The Night of Jan. 16" will end its run [nine weeks] at the Selwyn theater on Saturday night, Nov. 21. The company will continue its tour, with Pittsburgh as its first objective out of Chicago.

"Dead End," staged by Norman Bel Geddes in the Studebaker theater, will close its stay there on Saturday, Nov. 28, after a run of eleven weeks. The company will go on tour, visiting Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Boston, and Philadelphia. An extra matinée is scheduled for Thanksgiving day, Nov. 26.

Novaes Plays Mozart with Spanish Fire

Brazilian Pianist Soloist with Symphony.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Guiomar Novaes succeeded yesterday afternoon in pleasing symphony subscribers who like an intensely personal approach to music, displeasing those who believe that Mozart should always sound frail and angelic. The handsome Brazilian pianist, appearing as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the second of the Tuesday concerts, put something that seemed suspiciously like Spanish fire into her performance of the E Flat Concerto.

In other words, she was not content with the fragile patterns with which most of those who trafic in the Austrian master's piano music have familiarized us. Not content, either, to let the whole design seem to form in air, independent of human volition. She traced the designs in the sight of all, going at the job in warmly human fashion, and implying by her serious, workmanlike manner that no music in the world—not even Mozart—can be anything but personal and subjective.

There were plenty of fortes [not the crashing kind, of course], a great deal of dynamic variety. In a way, the performance was a reproach to those Mozart players who execute even as forzando as if the keys were red hot, and as if anything above mp would outrage the dainty spirit of the composer.

Determined above everything else to get my own opinion heard, I am going to leave the matter at this. Yesterday's Concerto offered too few opportunities to enjoy the objective beauty of line, the sweet balance of phrase against phrase which is typical of Mozart at his greatest. And too few opportunities to exult in the exquisitely wrought traceries which the composer's simple and silvery passage work may be made to suggest.

This was not the only concerto on the program. Mr. Stock gathered all of his first violins [and a few seconds too, I hear] into the semblance of one titanic soloist for the slow movement of the Sibelius concerto. It was a good chance to enjoy to the full that austere string tone which is as important a factor as any in the excellence of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

BRITAIN DEBATES POSSIBILITY OF EMPIRE BREAKUP

Controversy Is Raised by New Status of King.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The proposed visit by King Edward VIII. of England to India, Canada, and other dominions after his coronation next May is serving to stress the changed constitutional structure of the British empire since the Westminster statute of 1931 made the dominions sister rather than daughter nations and equal partners under the crown rather than mere possessions.

Curiously, it also has raised in the British commonwealth of nations the question of the right of secession—a state's right controversy such as raged in America for three decades preceding the civil war.

Experts Study Question.

There is no menace or wish of any dominions at the moment to secede, but the problem, nevertheless, is definitly posed as to whether Canada, South Africa, or Australia have the constitutional right to remain neutral in a war involving Great Britain and the right to secede if they decide things are not going well for them under the commonwealth.

After a study and analysis of the Westminster statute some high jurists and historians say the first question is an open one, and the second, far from being unthinkable, actually is a disputable point.

The controversy is hinged on the powers and duties of the king in the dominions under the Westminster statute and gives rise to speculation on how a multicephalous monarchy is going to work itself out. For King Edward is not so much the king of the British empire as the king of each separate dominion, according to one way of thinking, and now is the sole remaining visible common tie of the component elements of the commonwealth.

Precedent Is Cited.

Prof. Arthur Berriedale Keith, a noted authority, in discussing the political heresy of whether the crown is divisible or not, admits he cannot decide whether the British empire, since 1931, is a mere association of states or a federal organization under a unitary head.

Keith has just written a book devoting considerable space to the doctrin of secession and its possibility within the empire, in which he points out that West Australia once did try to secede from the Australian commonwealth, establishing a precedent. This leads to the conclusion that, under the new basis of the commonwealth since 1931, the dominions' right to secede is at least debatable.

But, it was pointed out, the Westminster statute as it exists at present, has loose ends, and is not a final measure any more than was the British North America act of sixty-nine year ago. That act provided that the constitution of the Dominion of Canada be "similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom." Under it the provinces of Canada were united and executive power was vested in the British sovereign, to be exercised by the governor general and the privy council.

Study Evolution Here.

Some commentators in the secession dispute examine the American controversy and the evolution of ideas in the United States over the same subject, pointing out that in the early days of the republic secession was held a practicable policy even by Thomas Jefferson, whereas by Andrew Jackson's time "disunion by armed force" had become treason.

Views expressed on secession within the British empire can only be understood by a close study of the United States' case. But how palpable and possible the issue is regarded in some political circles here may be gauged by the words of the Glasgow Herald:

"It may be we shall furnish within the empire something parallel to the evolution of American political thought on this matter. In the statute of Westminster, like the constitution drawn up in Philadelphia, the silent issue was secession. But time itself will write its own positive comment that the commission and peaceful development of free dominions in a world increasingly under the control of militant dictators will supply a practical argument against the doctrin of secession."

CLAIMS POLAND NEEDS NO JEWISH SHOPKEEPERS

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Col. Josef Beck, Polish foreign minister, asserted today there was "no longer any reason for the existence of small Jewish shopkeepers" in Poland, and disclosed he had discussed with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden their emigration to Palestine.

Contending the Jewish situation was the "unfortunate" result of "perfecting the Polish nation," Beck indicated his country was opposed to further reduction of Holy Land immigration schedules.

King Edward VIII. of England was host to a small stag luncheon at Buckinham palace honoring Col. Beck. Earlier Beck called on Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin.

U. S. District Judges Name Edmond Sullivan Auditor

Judges of the United States District court in Chicago yesterday appointed Edmond Sullivan, an assistant district attorney, as auditor of the courts in an endeavor to clear the docket of nearly 350 war risk insurance cases in which approximately $5,000,000 is being demanded from the federal government. Mr. Sullivan, who will hear testimony in the cases and report his findings to the court, is 29 years old, and the son of Judge Denis E. Sullivan, presiding justice of the First district of the state Appellate court.

RODMAN AND YATES REGAIN BIKE RACE LEAD

RANGER ROOKIES RALLY TO WHIP MAROONS, 4 TO 1

Come from Behind in 2d Period.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The New York Rangers defeated Montreal's Maroons, 4 to 1, in the Maroon's opening National Hocky league game tonight. It was the Rangers' first victory, after losing their own opener at Detroit Sunday.

The rookie forward line of Neil and Mac Colville and Alex Shibicky set the scoring pace as the Rangers spotted the home club the first goal, then rallied quickly to decide the game. The Maroons, although they had the edge through the scoreless first period, failed to show an organized attack. The last two Ranger goals were scored when Montreal ganged the net with ragged attacks during the final period.

Jimmy Ward put the Maroons ahead early in the second period on a pass from Bob Gracie. The Rangers came back with two goals scored less than a minute apart. Neil Colville scored the first on a pass from Babe Pratt, another newcomer, then furnished the assist for Shibicky on the second.

In the final period Mac Colville passed to Ott Heller to make the score 3 to 1 before five minutes had passed, and Lynn Patrick, son of the Ranger manager, broke away to score the final goal unassisted. Only about 3,500 saw the game. Lineup:

DWYER CASE SETTLED

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—After an all day meeting to settle the affairs of the New York Americans Hocky club, governors of the National league adjusted matters today by taking William V. Dwyer, former principal owner of the club, back into the fold while keeping control in the hands of the league.

The New York Americans Hocky Club, Inc., was formally disolved and the team passed into the hands of the American National Hocky Club, Inc., which was organized to operate the club after the old franchise had been forfeited two weeks ago. Dwyer was named as a director of the new corporation and a governor of the league today.

Court Action Canceled.

The litigation which had been threatened during the dispute over the ownership of the franchise and players was immediately canceled, both in the United States and Canada.

Dwyer's franchise was declared forfeited for nonpayment of an $18,000 debt to the league. Dwyer, however, claimed he still retained control of the players who had signed contracts with his organization, and obtained an injunction in Canada which forced the Americans to play their opening game in Chicago last Thursday under the old club name.

Dwyer Shares Profits.

Frank Calder, league president, is president and treasurer of the new organization, which took over not only the debt to the league but the club's other debts, a total of about $130,000, according to figures given out by Dwyer. Other directors are C. N. Valiquette, secretary; Mervin [Red] Dutton, team manager, and J. N. Vansard.

Under the new setup Dwyer retains a financial interest in the club, sharing in the profits or losses as well as having a vote in its affairs.

MARQUETTE IS CONSIDERED FOR ORANGE BOWL

Miami, Fla., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Letters asking whether their football teams would be interested in playing in Miami's annual Orange bowl game New Year's day have been sent athletic authorities of a dozen colleges, it was announced tonight.

Among the colleges are Fordham, University of Pittsburgh, Villa Nova, Holy Cross, and Temple in the east and Marquette of Milwaukee. Catholic U. of Washington defeated Mississippi 21 to 20 in the 1936 game.

Leonard Del Genio Wins Bout with Max Berger

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Leonard Del Genio of Harlem gained a close decision over Maxie Berger, Canada, in the feature eight round bout at the New York Coliseum tonight. A crowd of 7,000 responded unfavorably to the verdict. The Harlem lightweight, who still has hopes of meeting Titleholder Lou Ambers, earned the award on superior infighting.

ARRANGEMENT OF SCHEDULE AID TO WILDCAT ELEVEN

But N. U. Deserves Credit for Great Record.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Continued success dulls the keen desire for competition, which is one way of stating that success breeds overconfidence. This is Minnesota's most logical explanation of its defeat by Northwestern, assuming that the Gophers are the better team as claimed in Minneapolis, which is not admitted, however, in Evanston.

It is true that Northwestern's schedule quite by accident was so arranged that the players did not need urging to be prepared to play to their utmost. And the Wildcats did not have a long series of victories behind them to make them believe they could whip any team at any time they got ready to turn on the power.

Wildcats Needed No Incentive.

Northwestern needed no incentive against Iowa, a team which had tied the Wildcats the year before and which apparently looked to be almost as strong. Northwestern didn't know whether it could really play championship football or not. There were several replacements and at least one position, right half, which was a problem.

North Dakota State provided opportunity to obtain team work through actual competition. Then came Ohio State. Certainly the Buckeyes, co-champions of the Big Ten, winner over Northwestern last year, would force Northwestern to the limit. So quite naturally the players, after an uncertain start, played to the limit. One point, a very fortunate kick by Geyer since the pass from center nearly was fumbled, was the margin.

Illini in Upset Spot.

Illinois was in the spot to upset Northwestern and the Illini have a habit of doing just that. But the Wildcats didn't let down. Minnesota followed and again Northwestern had tremendous incentive, as every team has had since the Gopher victory streak reached major proportions.

There is no point in arguing the respective merits of the two teams, now or then. Most important was that Minnesota didn't score. Then, next in importance, was Northwestern's ability to grab its scoring opportunity made possible by Alfonse's fumble and a penalty on Widseth.

Title Prospect Blooms.

By the time of the Wisconsin game last week, the chance to win a conference title kept Northwestern at peak form. So it should be Saturday at Michigan for the Wildcats, although conference champions, can not afford defeat which would destroy the prestige of victory over Minnesota.

Minnesota's victory record had to end some time and Nebraska and Purdue, strangely enough, contributed to that end. Minnesota, by its last minute one touchdown victory over Nebraska, forgot about its failure to score from Nebraska's three yard line. It also accepted Uram's run for the winning score as its due.

Gophers Feared Purdue.

Minnesota feared Purdue. And after the first half, the Gophers realized the fear was well grounded. But the final score, 33 to 0, did more than any other game to create delusions of ever present power. It set up the mental situation which helped Northwestern the following week.

Northwestern's victory over Minnesota is the major upset of the conference year. This doesn't detract from Northwestern's proved ability to defeat the Gophers. It does point to public acceptance, at that time, of Minnesota's greatness, a conception revived by the tremendous exhibition of power against Iowa.

Chicago's victory over Wisconsin may be listed as the other Big Ten upset. Although defeated by Marquette, Purdue, and Notre Dame, the Badgers apparently were stronger offensively than Chicago. Wisconsin proved again while losing to Northwestern that it has developed an effective forward passing attack. The Badgers' weakness has been its de-

FOOTBALL CHATTER.

WISCONSIN'S exhibition of aerial stunts in Saturday's game against Northwestern was one of the most brilliant ever shown on any gridiron. It seemed almost as if the projectors couldn't miss their receiver or receivers miss the oval. Partisans of both elevens enjoyed the pyrotechnics—even Purple fanatics—because it seemed the visitors could not overcome at any stage Northwestern's lead established with comparative ease by straight football.

That Wisconsin did not score more often by the aerial route was because the receiver in most instances was covered and downed almost immediately after the pass was caught. It looked at times as if the Wildcat was making sure his man did not get away for a touchdown jaunt if he jumped and lost his balance in an effort to knock down or intercept the oval. Coach Waldorf said it might look that way and perhaps that was what his players had in mind, but no instructions were issued to that effect.

We remember other games, of course, in which there was passing which changed the result, but never so many passes completed out of those attempted. Swede Oberlander of Dartmouth passed Chicago dizzy back in 1925, when the Green Wave won, 33 to 7, but his ends often were free to speed to touchdowns afterward. Art Parisien of Notre Dame, in 1926, with his two left handed tosses, changed an impending tie with Northwestern into a 6 to 0 victory, and in a later contest downed Southern California, 13 to 12, by the identical plays.

Another pleasant feature Saturday was the sportsmanship displayed. After nearly every scrimmage a Badger or Wildcat could be spotted helping a prostrate opponent to his feet. Once Don Heap fell on a Northwestern fumble behind the line of scrimmage. Heap curled up over the ball awaiting the not unusual but unnecessary piling on which sent him out of one game injured. Several Badgers charged through, but not one jumped on the Wildcat.

Wisconsin left a distinctly favorable impression both with its own supporters and with neutrals by spectacular playing and good sportsmanship.

The Badgers have yet to win their first conference game in the first year of Harry Stuhldreher's coaching, so we asked Roundy Coughlin, Madison sports sage, if wolves were howling. Roundy replied: "Not at all. There's a new spirit. It's too good to be true. We can't believe it yet. What could be fairer?"

Several neutral scouts who have been watching Wildcats and Wolverines all season say Michigan might give plenty of trouble to, even upset, Northwestern at Ann Arbor. They argue Michigan's material was good but inexperienced. Now it's more experienced. Their view is that Michigan showed true form only once this fall, that game against Columbia.

And They Had No Lively Ball?

A friendly contest of baseball was had on Thursday last between the Massillon baseball club and the Crescent club of this place on the ground of the latter. The weather was most delightful and the players in fine trim. The game was closely and spiritedly contested and some excellent playing displayed by both teams. At the close of the game the clubs partook of a magnificent repast at the Union hotel. Score:

Massillon	6	1	0	9	7	8	3	7	1	—42
Crescent	7	9	4	3	14	2	6	4	2	—51

Fly catches—Massillon, 18; Crescent, 12.
Fly misses—Massillon, 9; Crescent, 7.

CHEVIGNY TELLS TEXAS BANQUET GUESTS HE'S QUIT

Makes Announcement on Eve of Minnesota Trip.

Austin, Tex., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Coach Jack Chevigny of the University of Texas announced tonight he would not be coach of the Texas Longhorns next fall.

Under fire because of his team's consistent losses, Chevigny said he would not seek to renew his contract with the university on its expiration Feb. 1, 1937.

His announcement came at the conclusion of a speech at a dinner in honor of the football team on the eve of its departure for Minneapolis to play Minnesota Saturday. He did not give a reason other than to indicate he was considering practicing law.

Alumni Favor Littlefield.

Chevigny, despite bitter criticism, which included public accusations of teaching rough football to his players, has made no official reply to the charges.

Many of the old guard alumni were said to favor Clyde Littlefield, coach of freshman football and track, who preceded Chevigny as head coach, as his successor.

Praises Football Team.

"I sincerely believe that the team has played as great a brand of football every Saturday this season as could be seen anywhere in the nation," he said. "I am deeply grateful for all you have done for us and I am proud to be associated with so fine a group of men.

"I would like especially to commend the boys of the squad whose spirit has never faltered and who have given their best always, often under trying circumstances. They're as fine a bunch of lads as I've ever worked with."

HICKORY STICK FLIES; FOOTBALL TEAM ELIGIBLE

Nacogdoches, Tex., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The old fashioned hickory stick whistled in the classroom at Nacogdoches High school today. Football squad members took their "three licks" as punishment for playing hookey, so they would be ready for tomorrow's "big game" with Lufkin.

Last Friday the Nacogdoches first team decided to pick up a few football pointers at a college game. Principal C. K. Chamberlain objected to the plan but the team skipped afternoon classes anyway.

When the students returned to school yesterday Principal Chamberlain gave the students their choice of "three licks" with the hickory, "staying in" Saturday or suspension until Thursday. They scorned the first two and chose the suspension.

Then some one reminded them that the Lufkin game was scheduled for tomorrow. The suspension would make practically the entire first team ineligible.

So the boys relented, took their punishment and will be on the field tomorrow.

Lindstrom Suffers Wrist Fracture in Auto Crash

Freddie Lindstrom, former member of the Chicago Cubs, suffered a fractured wrist and several cuts and bruises in an automobile crash at 87th street and Southwest highway last night. Lindstrom received treatment from Dr. Warren Furey at the Little Company of Mary hospital and was taken to his home on the south side. Lindstrom was returning to Chicago from a hunting trip.

Layden Tells Notre Dame to Guard Punter

Coach Elmer Layden told his squad that movies of the Navy game last Saturday, which Navy won, 3 to 0, showed laxness in rushing kickers, protecting Notre Dame kickers, and protecting Notre Dame punt receivers. He did not confine himself entirely to remarks about kicking, however, having found plenty of other flaws while reviewing the pictures this morning.

All Ready to Go.

Apparently every one on the squad, with the exception of Jerry Clifford, third string left end, will be able to appear against the Cadets Saturday before an expected capacity crowd of 76,000 at Yankee Stadium. Nearly half of the more active members of the team, however, are expected to be below peak efficiency with bruises and bumps.

Clifford discovered today, with the aid of X-ray photos, that he has a chipped bone in his right elbow. He has been walking around with the injury for a week and when it failed to respond to ordinary treatment further examination was made and the joint set. He will be lost to the squad for the rest of the season.

COLD SPURS ARMY.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—With a sudden drop of temperature keeping them on their toes, Army's varsity worked at full speed this afternoon for the Notre Dame game. Coach Gar Davidson ordered a long offensive drill against the B squad and the spirit displayed indicated that the Cadets are as eager as ever to be in good condition for the annual battle with the South Bend eleven Saturday.

Although Army's reserves have been cut down to a point where Davidson no longer can introduce fresh teams to the game at will, he still has enough good men to be assured of giving the Irish strong competition. Meyer, Ryan, Schwenk, and Kasper still are present in the first backfield, with a second group consisting of Craig, Samuels, Martin, and O'Connor ready to take their places. Stromberg and Kimbrell, who returned from the hospital yesterday, went at full speed today, and seemed in good shape. Kopcsak left the hospital today after his attack of flu, but did not turn out for drill.

BULLETIN.

The Chicago team of Jerry Rodman and Cecil Yates continued to hold a one lap lead over Gerard Debaets and Bobby Thomas at 3 a. m. today in the six day bike race a[illegible] the Chicago Stadium. The team [illegible] Cohen and O'Brien had taken th[illegible] place from Georgetti and Rabol[illegible]

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Loud screaming of promoters a[illegible] officials of the six day bike race [illegible] had seen a discrepancy of more t[illegible] two miles spread between the lea[illegible] and the tailenders in two nights [illegible] pedaling at Chicago stadium, [illegible] night frightened the cyclists i[illegible] doing heroic things to please the [illegible]tient customers.

Lethargic circling of the big pi[illegible] track suddenly was transformed in[illegible] one spirited jam after another, as t[illegible] boss man yelped threats of sala[illegible] trims. Rodman and Yates, Chica[illegible] boys who earlier had enjoyed a s[illegible] touch, while others quarreled in t[illegible] ruck, found themselves with a batt[illegible] on their hands and at several stage[illegible] of the race were supplanted by De[illegible]baets and Thomas.

Riders in Bad Mood.

As the third midnight of the rac[illegible] grew nigh, Debaets-Thomas and Rodman-Yates were in a mileage tie, the technical lead depending on the results of the sprints that were to come later in the night. As the midnight sprints started Debaets and Thomas were technically leading by 92 sprint points as compared with 87 possessed by Rodman and Yates.

The lads were in a sulking mood most of the daylight hours yesterday as a result of the aftermath of the determination of some of the higher priced stars to end the Kilian-Vopel chain of nine straight six day victories. When Referee Kramer started plastering fines on the jockying performers and promised bigger and better socks, the prima donnas indicated they would make their anti-German maneuvering less obvious. Earlier three teams had said they would be happy to finish next to last if they could have a part in making Kilian and Vopel finish last.

Debaets and Thomas Gain.

The riders still were pouting many minutes after the evening crowd had assembled and there hadn't been even a mild jam at 8:30 o'clock. At 8:40 o'clock, however, Henry O'Brien broke loose and promptly precipitated the best jousting of the race. The jamming continued until O'Brien, Kilian and Audy piled up at 9:30 o'clock in the first serious spill of the race.

During the lull while the spillers and their bikes were being repaired new standings were tabulated. Rodman and Yates still were in front but their lead had been trimmed to one lap by Debaets and Thomas who had been four laps back at the start of the evening's business.

Spectacular Jamming Starts.

Rodman and Yates held to their lead until 9:58, when Debaets and Thomas hopped into a tie and two minutes later Debaets and Thomas took the lead. At 10:07 a jam which brought the thousands of bike bugs to their feet saw Rodman and Yates sweep back into a tie.

The tie prevailed till 10:47, when Rodman and Yates busted loose again with sensational swoops high on the banks, but as soon as they had calmed Debaets and Thomas again ripped loose and in two minutes of jamming the tie was reëstablished.

The highly touted stars in the race who had expected to grind down some of their less famous brethren whenever they turned on the heat found themselves in tough spots all night long and as midnight grew near such stellar gents as Al Letourner, Gus Kilian, Torchy Peden, and Heinz Vopel were eating splinters showered at them from the wheels of several unknowns and erstwhile selling platers. This appellation does not apply to the four leaders, but it does go for several who are ahead of the high salary fellows.

Results of the 1 a. m. sprints:

COMMISSION O. K. GIVEN MARSHALL, BABA TITLE BOUT

Wrestle on Nov. 20 at Chicago Stadium.

The Illinois athletic commission will recognize the Everett Marshall-Ali Baba bout at Chicago Stadium Nov. 20 as for the heavyweight wrestling championship.

This became definite yesterday when Chairman Joe Triner of the commission accepted a $500 forfeit check from each as assurance that the victor will defend the disputed crown against Jim McMillen within 60 days subsequent to next week's meeting.

"The forfeits are acceptable," Triner said, "as part of the provisions of this commission. Therefore the match will be recognized as a title affair with the stipulation that the survivor wrestle McMillen at a date to be set Nov. 23."

Promoter Fred Kohler is confident that a capacity crowd of 20,000 will gross $17,000 to see the Marshall-Baba engagement. He said there will be 6,744 tickets at 44 cents, 4,000 at 75 cents, 5,000 at $1.20, and 4,000 at $2.20.

Walter Roxy, Detroit heavyweight, will meet Stan Buresch in a return encounter which heads tonight's wrestling card at Arcadia Gardens, 4444 Broadway. They are booked to wrestle 90 minutes. Red Vagnonne opposes Ivan Rasputin in the semi-final, scheduled for 30 minutes. Supplementary events at 30 minutes involve Rudy Kay and Ernie Peterson, Chief Wurham and Charlie Peterson, and Frenchy Leavitt and Great Marcus.

Harry Thomas, Eagle Bend, Minn., heavyweight slugger, boxed two rounds yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium in preparation for a ten round headliner with Pal Silvers of Brooklyn at Marigold Gardens next Monday. . . . Irving Schoenwald, north side promoter, has had his bond renewed by the state boxing commission. . . . George Mansor, journeyman heavyweight wrestler, yesterday was reinstated by the commission after being suspended for several weeks. . . . Al Nettlow, lightweight member of the Catholic Youth organization, has gone to Detroit for treatment of his left hand, injured in his winning effort against Joe Connolly of Scotland at the Stadium last Friday.

Johnny Barbara, South Bend, Ind., sectional Golden Gloves welterweight champion, and Verne Patterson have been signed to meet for five rounds in the windup of George De Bray's amateur show at Northwest stadium annex Friday. Barbara won a previous battle. . . . Mike Adler, last year's C. Y. O. heavyweight king, and Webster Epperson yesterday were matched for five rounds in the headline bout at the Madison Athletic club Friday. . . . Correct dates for the second annual amateur boxing tournament sponsored by Franklin park at the park gymnasium are Nov. 17, 18, and 19. . . . Eddie Borden, New York fight manager, will edit next year's issue of the Everlast boxing record. . . . Oscar Rankin, California middleweight, likely will meet Solly Krieger in a return match at Pittsburgh Nov. 26. . . . Harry Dublinsky has refused an offer to box Holman Williams at Pittsburgh Monday. PITT ELEVEN TO DRILL HERE ON WAY TO LINCOLN

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's football team will leave tomorrow for Lincoln, Neb., and arrive there Saturday about three hours before it steps onto the gridiron to meet Nebraska's Cornhuskers. The Panthers are due in Chicago Thursday for a workout at Stagg field and will remain in Omaha Friday night.

Illinois Shifts Lasater Back to Left Tackle

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Harry Lasater, Fairfield sophomore who started the season as tackle, then was shifted to center behind Capt. El Sayre, was back at left tackle on the Illinois varsity today as practice was accelerated for Saturday's game with Ohio State here.

Freshmen employing Ohio State plays were stopped cold again this afternoon. Another scrimmage tomorrow will conclude the hard work for the week.

Lowell Spurgeon will appear on his old position at right half back Saturday. Held back at the start of the season because of poor physical condition, Spurgeon is fit now and his all around ability is expected to be of great value against the Buckeyes.

Saturday's game will be the last at home for a large group of players, including Capt. Sayre, Ken Nelson, Cliff Kuhn, Tiny Morris, Tom Wilson, Wib Henry, Bob Grieve, Jewett Cole, Bill Charle, Gene Dysktra, and Francis Cantwell.

OHIO EYES SOPHOMORES.

Columbus, O., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—If by any chance the Ohio State-Illinois game at Champaign conforms to the pattern of recent contests between the schools, one of the talents of the newly discovered sophomore stars may prove the difference between victory and defeat for the Buckeyes.

Coach Schmidt has taken a sudden interest in sophomores and Johnny Rabb, Booth, Bill Phillips, Bill Bullock, Cark Kaplanoff, and Bob Masoner are now being regarded as more than mere reserve material.

Today's practice found the Bucks engaging in an intensive offensive drill in which back field strength was sifted about quite thoroughly in an effort to give Rabb, Booth, Phillips, and Birkholz plenty of opportunity.

NEW SOX PLAYER

FRANK RENSA.

Catcher Frank Rensa, purchased by the White Sox from the Dallas Texas league team to understudy for Luke Sewell, is 33 years of age. Last season he built up a reputation as a man hard to steal on. He threw out 57 would-be burglars and allowed only 43 stolen bases in 139 games. He had 104 assists for the season, five in one game and four in another. His season's batting average was .281 in daylight games and .240 under the electric lights. He is shown in the uniform of the Detroit Tigers, with whom he trained in 1930.

Iowa Begins Hard Drills for Purdue

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The Hawkeyes began their first serious drill for the final Big Ten game against Purdue here Saturday with a hard offensive workout.

Glen Olson broke into the first string lineup for the first time since he suffered a broken nose two weeks ago, alternating with Hild at one of the blocking posts. Lamb, Bowlin, Schenck, and Simmons were given chances at carrying the ball. Wagler, who did some fine blocking against Minnesota Saturday, appeared to have clinched the right half back post.

With Nelson and Farroh kept from active duty because of leg injuries, Liggett and Gallagher played guards.

CONDITION WORRIES PURDUE.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Getting the squad back into physical condition for the closing Big Ten battles, with Iowa and Indiana, provided the main worries for the Boilermaker coaching staf this afternoon as Purdue resumed drill, with the Hawkeye game at Iowa City Saturday as the immediate problem.

In a comparatively light drill the coaches sought to improve the blocking of both backs and linemen, to develop the scoring punch that was lacking against Fordham on the numerous occasions when the Boilermakers drove within the 20 yard line.

Interest in the season's final, with Indiana, here a week from Saturday, which may find the two Hoosier rivals battling for the runnerup post in the Big Ten race, already has reached a fever heat. All records for advance sales have been broken, and Ticket Manager Doan announced tonight that there were less than four thousand reserved seats available.

Enlarge Park for Soccer Twin Bill on Sunday

Four thousand additional seats are being installed at Sparta stadium, scene of the twin soccer bill Sunday, featuring the Maccabees from Tel-Aviv, Palestine, who are making their last appearance in the United States. This will increase the capacity of the west side field to approximately 11,000.

The touring all-Jewish champions face the Chicago Maccabees in the first game and the Sparta team in the second game.

A group of Jewish and Bohemian business men, who are backing the game, decided on the expansion of the seating capacity after advance demands for tickets. Parking space for 3,000 cars is located adjacent to the field.

The European team will arrive at 6 o'clock this evening at La Salle Street station and will go to the Coliseum to attend the mass meeting on Palestinian affairs. Thursday night the players are to be guests at the six day bike race and Friday and Saturday will be devoted to workouts at the scene of Sunday's games.

Duquesne Guard Dropped; Seeks Job with Lions

Purple Holds Lead in U. S. Football Poll

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Northwestern maintained a slight margin over Minnesota, Fordham remained more securely in third place, and Alabama leaped from 14th to fourth in the biggest gain of the week in the Associated Press national football ranking poll released today.

Despite Minnesota's amazing 52 to 0 victory over Iowa and Northwestern's struggle against a desperate Wisconsin team the Wildcats were given a 16 vote advantage over the Gophers. Football writers gave Northwestern 435 out of a possible 470 votes, Minnesota 419. Fordham's total rose to 348 on the strength of its convincing 15 to 0 victory over Purdue.

Marquette skidded from fourth place to eighth after squeezing out a 7 to 6 win over Creighton. Pitt, Nebraska, and Louisiana State followed Alabama in fifth, sixth, and seventh places, and Santa Clara and Washington were voted ninth and tenth.

The ballots were geographically divided as follows: East, 21; middle west, 12; south, 6; southwest, 4; Rocky mountain, 1, and far west, 3.

The rankings:

First ten—	Pts.	Last week's ranking and points.
1—Northwestern	435	First	412
2—Minnesota	419	Second	371
3—Fordham	348	Third	227
4—Alabama	348	14th	16
5—Pittsburgh	203	Fifth	191
6—Nebraska	201	Eighth	165
7—Louisiana State	184	Seventh	168
8—Marquette	145	Fourth	212
9—Santa Clara	118	Ninth	145
10—Washington	117	Sixth	181

Waldorf Seeks to Co-ordinate Purple Attack

The little matter of getting both offense and defense clicking on the same Saturday is occupying Northwestern's football team this week as preparations continue for Saturday's Big Ten finale with Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Only the fact that the offense was rolling when the defense was lax and vice versa has enabled the Wildcats to clinch the conference championship. By scoring two touchdowns and making good on both extra points, the Purple nosed out Ohio State, 14 to 13.

The defense attained its high point of the year against Minnesota by holding the powerful Gophers scoreless, something that no other team had been able to do in three years. It was well that it did, for the Wildcats' offense was able to produce only one touchdown.

Badgers Misuse Defense.

Only a great offensive drive enabled Northwestern to defeat Wisconsin last Saturday. In this game the defense was powerless to stop the devastating aerial attack the Badgers unleashed.

Consequently Coach Lynn Waldorf is making an extra effort to get both offense and defense functioning together for the remaining games with Michigan and Notre Dame. The fact that Wisconsin was able to scare the Wildcats offers Waldorf sufficient ammunition to keep his charges from becoming too self-satisfied this week.

The Wildcats face the final conference game in fine physical shape. In fact, Northwestern has been extremely fortunate in this respect all season. Not since the first week of practice has any player been incapacitated for any length of time.

New Men Get Chance.

Several players who have been knocking at the door of varsity recognition all season are expected to get a chance against the Wolverines Saturday. They include the sophomores Walter Malloy, tackle; Tom Eby, end, and Jack Major, Iggy Mesec, and Jack Kaufman, half backs.

The Northwestern squad of thirty-five players and coaches will leave tomorrow night over the Michigan Central for Dearborn, Mich., where it will stop at the Dearborn Inn. It will not go to Ann Arbor until shortly before the game Saturday. A workout will be held at Dearborn Friday afternoon.

MICHIGAN HAS HOPE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Michigan's football team, preparing for the invasion next Saturday of Northwestern, isn't ready to be counted out. The Wolverines, with only one victory in six games, believe the Wildcats can be beaten. They're hoping to turn the trick and salvage something from an otherwise disastrous season.

They displayed this optimism as Coach Harry Kipke spent most of today's drills on offense, repeating yesterday's routine, indicating that he will rely on a running game and intersperse it with passes.

MISIAK REJOINS SQUAD.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Eddie Misiak, left half back, who had been absent for more than a week suffering from an attack of kidney stones, rejoined the Wisconsin football squad this afternoon. It had been feared he was lost for the season. Misiak was taken to the hospital the night before the homecoming game with Chicago.

In an effort to balance the Wisconsin attack, Coach Harry Stuhldreher emphasized running plays this afternoon as the Badgers began preparation for the Cincinnati game here Saturday.

Barring injuries, the Badgers will be at top strength, with the possible exception of Fred Benz, first string end.

MAROONS TAUGHT HOW TO SMOTHER HOOSIER ATTACK

Shaughnessy Will Have Most of Squad Ready.

Lessons on how to check Indiana's hard charging attack occupied Chicago's Maroons yesterday as they went through the motions against a freshman eleven drilled in Hoosier formations. Coach Clark Shaughnessy, however, fears that while his charges may learn how to check the formations they may have trouble holding the individual Hoosiers for 60 minutes.

Since moving to Indianapolis in 1934 Coach Bo McMillin has seen his team lose only one November game, that to Chicago in McMillin's first season. The Hoosiers will have not only their November record to uphold, they will be looking forward to one last crack at the Maroons. The long series, heavily dominated by the Maroons, will be closed out, for several years at least, this Saturday at Stagg field.

The Maroons hope to do better this week than they did against Indiana last year when they dropped a disheartening game, 24 to 0.

Almost all the available Maroons will be ready Saturday. Omar Fareed, left half, who suffered a broken nose against Ohio State last Saturday, expects to play. Sellie Sherman, who has averaged better than six yards per try from scrimmage this year, will be the Maroons' chief offensive threat.

HOOSIERS PLAY FROSH.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—A freshman team emulated Chicago's Maroons this afternoon in a scrimmage against the Indiana eleven. Coach Bo McMillin used the yearlings in an attempt to familiarize the varsity with Chicago's ten different formations in preparation for Saturday's invasion of the Midway.

Following the scrimmage the Crimson players returned to a drill on blocking and tackling, two departments with which the coaching staf was not satisfied in the Hoosiers' last two encounters.

Coach McMillin said the Indiana squad appears to be in its best physical condition of the season.

CARDINALS PLAN WAYS TO CHECK PIRATES' PASSES

Matesic Is to Perform at Wrigley Field Sunday.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The Chicago Cardinals' pass defense appeared impregnable last week while Dave Smukler of Philadelphia was throwing a slippery ball. It permitted only one completion for a gain of a yard, intercepted five and broke up nine others.

But that was against Philadelphia and the same defense's next assignment is against the Pittsburgh Pirates, who come to Wrigley field Sunday. Pittsburgh makes a specialty of passes, particularly when Ed Matesic is in its back field. Consequently Coaches Milan Creighton, Paddy Driscoll, and Phil Handler have forgotten all about last week's performance and have devoted themselves to some free style fretting.

Matesic Is a Problem.

The Cardinals have little fear of the Pirates' running attack, which features only one really dangerous ball carrier, Flash Strutt. Strutt is one of the fastest men in the league and a great open field runner. But Matesic is another problem.

Bears Can Tell 'Em.

Matesic was an all around athlete at Pittsburgh, starring in boxing and baseball in addition to football. He spends his summers playing professional baseball, but in the fall he concentrates on long, bulletlike passes. The Bears met up with him twice this year and considered themselves lucky to escape as easily as they did.

Reports from the east yesterday indicated George Marshall, president of the Boston Redskins, is contemplating transfer of the Redskins' franchise to Washington because of a lack of attendance. The Redskins, Marshall revealed, have played to only one $20,000 gate since entering Boston five years ago. If the club is not moved to Washington, where it would make its headquarters in Griffith stadium, home of the Senators, it might be shifted to Cleveland. Club owners have often decried the absence of a team in the Ohio city, which would break up long jumps between the western and eastern boundaries of the league.

George A. Richards, president of the Detroit Lions, suggested last year that all clubs waive their claims on members of the College All-Star squad and that a team be selected from among the collegians to be operated in Cleveland by the league until suitable sponsors could be found.

Final decision on Boston's status depends upon attendance for the Redskins' three remaining games. If the five year old $20,000 record is not broken when the Bears play there next Sunday it will be an indication, according to Marshall, that Boston does not want professional football. No figures are available on the new American league's patronage in Boston, but whether the minor leaguers are making a go of it or not, they undoubtedly are hurting the Redskins with their 50 cent admission policy.

The Cardinals offered a considerable sum for Full Back Dave Smukler last week before the husky triple threat back, suspended for an outburst of temperament, was reinstated by the Philadelphia Eagles, but they were turned down.

"Philadelphia fans would string me up to the crossbars if I went home without Smukler," Coach Bert Bell said.

After the Cardinal-Redskin game at Boston, during which home town fans rioted over decisions rendered against the visitors, Tom Thorp, veteran eastern official, who refereed the game, said he would refuse further professional assignments unless he was given competent assistants. Thorp, a wealthy man who makes a hobby out of officiating, said there was no excuse for decisions such as those which took two touchdowns from the Cardinals.

Coach Potsy Clark dispatched a long letter to Coach Steve Owen last week apologizing for the Lions' part in the fight which followed the Detroit-Giant game in New York. Clark said the actions of Ace Gutowsky, Lion full back, and George Christensen, tackle, were inexcusable, then tapered off by blaming Cal Hubbard, American league baseball umpire who was making his debut as a Giant. Hubbard, a veteran, much older in experience and years, should have used better judgment, Clark said.

Hubbard accused Gutowsky, who gained 137 yards against the Giants, of giving him an ungentlemanly nudge in his expansive middle.

When the game was over Hubbard encountered Gutowsky and Christensen, but before he could unwind his Sunday punch Christensen fetched him a clout in the eye. Police and spectators prevented further carnage, but Hubbard had already received what competent judges declare was the most elegant shiner ever seen on Broadway.

De Paul Plays Leo Today in League Game

Leo and De Paul will meet this afternoon in a Catholic High School league football game at Shewbridge field. Leo also plays St. Rita on Sunday. The Sunday game will be St. Rita's homecoming contest.

Farragut of the City league is looking for a game Saturday in or out of the city.

Red McGovern, St. George half back, achieved the rare feat of throwing and catching his own forward pass in the game with De La Salle last Sunday. Red was on the De La Salle 20 yard line and faded back. He was rushed by two men, one of whom blocked the attempt. The ball wobbled off slightly to one side and McGovern caught it and was downed on the 12 yard line, eight yards short of a touchdown.

Coach Carl Stockdale of Wilson Junior college announced Wilson may meet the St. Johns Military academy of Delafield, Wis., after the regular Northern Illinois Junior college conference schedule is finished.

Arlington Heights at Lake Forest High and Grant at Warren are the two games scheduled Friday in the northwest conference.

Riverside can win the West Suburban title by defeating Hinsdale Saturday. Hinsdale is in last place, winning only one of its five starts, while Riverside won four and tied one.

Oak Park will complete its Suburban league assignments Saturday against Morton. The Oaks must win or drop into a tie with Proviso, which they defeated, 6 to 0, last week.

ASTURO GODOY AND AL ETTORE FIGHT TONIGHT

In his debut last month Godoy fought a draw with Leroy Haines, Philadelphia, and impressed the fans with his speed and willingness to trade punches.

Sixto Escobar, bantamweight champion, and Indian Quintana of Panama, who fight for the title in Madison Square Garden Friday night, will wind up hard training tomorrow. Both are in splendid condition. The early betting makes Escobar a 5 to 3 favorite to retain his crown.

C. A. A. to Show Olympic Game Movie on Dec. 10

A movie of the 1936 Olympic games will be shown Dec. 10 in the main dining room of the Chicago Athletic association, 12 South Michigan avenue. In addition, a lecture on "Germany of 1936" will be given by Clifton M. Utley, Chicago council of foreign relations.

Former Chicago Prep Stars Play with St. Mary's

St. Benedict's college of Atchison, Kas., and St. Mary's college of Winona, Minn., will present several former Chicago prep stars when they play Saturday night at the 124th Field Artillery armory, Cottage Grove avenue and 52d street.

Larry [Moon] Mullins, former Notre Dame star, who is coach of St. Benedict's, has had four seasons in which to teach his style of strategy. Teams under his tutelage have rolled up 13 straight victories.

BRITISH VICTORS IN MILITARY JUMP AT HORSE SHOW

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A quartet of British officers tonight won the international military jumping championship as the National Horse show closed before a capacity crowd of 15,000 in Madison Square Garden.

With Lieut. J. A. Talbot-Ponsonby, winner of the individual title, riding anchor, the British survived two jump-offs to take the trophy they last won in 1910.

The Britishers, led by Maj. A. L. Cameron, matched the perfect performances of teams from the United States, Chile, and the Irish Free State the first time over the course. They then tied the United States and Irish in the first jump-off as the South Americans dropped out and in the second jump-off beat the Irish, winner of the event last year, by the narrow margin of 1 point.

Third place went to the United States team from Fort Riley, Kas., and fourth to Chile.

BIERMAN DENIES HE WILL RESIGN AS GOPHER COACH

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Reports that Bernie Bierman will leave Minnesota for a $15,000 year contract at Tulane at the end of the football season were denied today by the Gopher coach.

Bierman said, "I have no intention of returning to Tulane or going anywhere else. I am perfectly satisfied at Minnesota at present. The most ridiculous part of the report is that I should return to Tulane. Red Dawson is doing a good job down there, and it so happens that he has a four year contract. Last year I did receive a legitimate offer from Tulane, but I refused it."

On the heels of the Tulane rumor came another that Bierman is thinking of going to the University of California at Los Angeles. This likewise was denied by Bierman.

Chowaniec Outpoints Eddie Boyle in 8 Rounds

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Max Chowaniec, Milwaukee light heavyweight, outpointed Eddie Boyle of Cleveland in the main event of a boxing program here tonight. Chowaniec weighed 173¼, Boyle 174¼. In the semi-windup Don McDonald, 169, San Pedro, Cal., outpointed Tony Pate, 164, Milwaukee, in eight rounds.

Guns Boom as Season Opens for Pheasants

BY BOB BECKER.

Thousands of Chicago hunters yesterday banged their way through the fields and thickets in the country close to the city limits for their first pheasant and rabbit hunting of the season. With the Illinois season permitting upland game hunting starting at sunrise, sportsmen were on the highways before dawn and spread out in the hunting field by the time the sun showed itself.

The bombardment that followed was one of the noisiest in years as practically every field that could be hunted by the shotgun army was crowded with armed squads eager for shots at the cock pheasants or the fast running cottontails. Many farms and estates posted against hunting had to maintain guards starting before sunrise to keep hunters from sweeping across closed fields.

We were on the highways in Lake county before sunup to see the way the hunters fanned out over the fields and bombarded the birds. Practically every car on the road at that hour had from two to five hunters in it. Two optimistic hunters that we passed west of Libertyville were standing at the side of the road in the dim light that precedes sunup, trying to thumb their way toward a hunting ground.

Pheasants Are Plentiful.

Sportsmen, fortunate enough to find farmlands where they could hunt, had no complaint about the number of pheasants in the weed thickets and cornfields. The season has been a favorable one for birds, so the crop this year is larger than it was last season.

We found this true in the valleys about McHenry, where we hunted with Paul H. Davis of Kenilworth, Dr. Clifford P. McCullough of Lake Forest, and Dr. Ernest Ovitz of Laona, Wis. The pheasants in the weed thickets along the streams and in the cornfields were at least one-third more plentiful than on opening day 1935.

The crafty ringnecks took no chances on flying when they could sit tight and not be disturbed by walking hunters. When we were hunting in the thickest cover it required the work of Mike, a springer spaniel; Pat, a Chesapeak, or one of the two pointers galloping around with us, to oust the birds and put them to flight.

Bag Jacksnipe, Too.

Walking through cornfields with a couple of the dogs ahead of the guns and one or two members of the party standing at the end of the field produced some of the sportiest shooting of the day at high overhead birds that zoomed out of the standing corn on their way to brushy thickets along Nippersink creek. To add spice to the day's fun, there were jacksnipes in the lowlands through which we hunted and also around small pools in the wheat fields. We bagged five of these birds while hiking from one good pheasant spot to another.

Hunters have until sundown, the night of Nov. 15, to hunt ringnecks in the northern zone, so the bombardment in northern Illinois will continue through the week-end.

Butler Eleven to Play in Spite of Captain's Death

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—After attending the funeral at Canton, Ill., of their captain and senior quarter back, Spero Costas, members of the Butler university football squad tonight voted to play Saturday's game with Western State Teachers' college of Kalamazoo, Mich. They recalled that Kalamazoo upset Butler last year in the final game after an otherwise perfect season, and that Costas, who had led his team to an undefeated record this year, was anxious to avenge the Kalamazoo defeat.

The last thing he told the squad in the locker room Saturday night, they said, was: "Well, we'll take Kalamazoo next." Later Costas was killed instantly in an automobile crash at Crawfordsville, Ind.

His brother, George, a freshman end, received a fractured skull and is still semi-conscious in a Crawfordsville hospital, as is Wayne Truelock, former Butler student who was driving the Costas boys to their home at Canton for the week-end. Inman Blackaby, junior full back injured in the crash, may not recover in time to play Saturday.

Arthur Cosgrove, Butler basketball captain-elect, injured in another automobile crash here early Sunday, remains semi-conscious. A girl passenger in the automobile which hit Cosgrove's car after a dance, may die.

More than sixty Butler players and officials went to Canton for the funeral today. Varsity practice will be resumed tomorrow. A sophomore will be trained for the quarter back job.

Johnston Hopes to Book Lewis-Braddock Match

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—James J. Johnston, Madison Square Garden boxing matchmaker, said today he is going to try to induce the New York state athletic commission to withdraw Max Schmeling as Heavyweight Champion Jim Braddock's title challenger and substitute John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight king. Johnston is sailing for home tomorrow on the S. S. Queen Mary.

North Section C.Y.O. Boxing Trials Start

Lightweights and welterweights dominated the opening night's fighting for north side entrants in the C. Y. O. boxing tournament at Loyola university gym last night. Bouts will be continued tonight and tomorrow.

Forty bouts were held in the 118, 126, 135, 147, 160, and 175 pound classes. All fights involved inexperienced boys who are taking part in the tourney for the first time. Tonight a number of veteran contenders will be seen in action.

LOUGHLIN WILL START 1ST LINE AGAINST AMERKS

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Manager Clem Loughlin of the Chicago Blackhawks announced after today's practice that in Thursday's opener against the New York Americans at Madison Square garden, New York, he would probably again start his league leading point making line of Thompson, Romnes, and March. The Blackhawk manager's policy of past seasons has been to rotate his three forward strings as starters.

Loughlin stated that the team would return to the rotating system as soon as the Hawks' other two lines were definitly decided upon. Throughout this afternoon's workout Loughlin experimented with four right wings, two left wings, and three centers in an effort to reach a decision as to which six players will handle the other two lines in Thursday's clash.

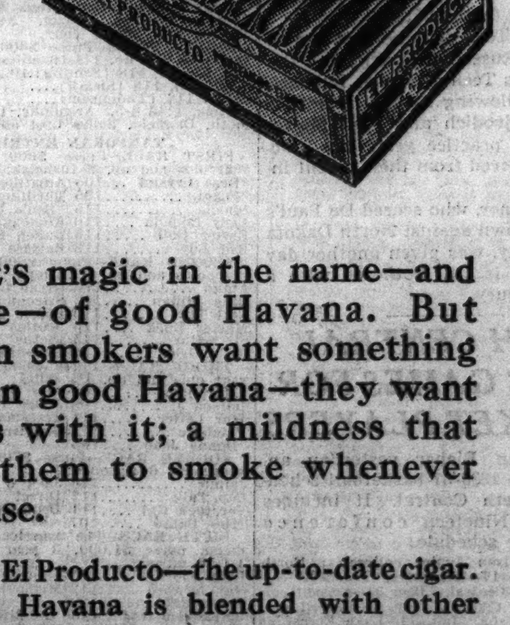
"HAVANA" Up-To-Date

EL PRODUCTO

for real enjoyment

You'll find the uncopyable El Producto blend both in slender, streamline shapes and full-bodied perfecto sizes. 10c to 25c.



THERE'S magic in the name—and taste—of good Havana. But American smokers want something more than good Havana—they want mildness with it; a mildness that permits them to smoke whenever they please.

And that is El Producto—the up-to-date cigar. The finest Havana is blended with other equally costly tobaccos to give a sparkling, distinctive taste. Yet El Producto is so mild you can smoke it all day long.

No wonder El Producto is outstanding in smokers' affections; it is the American smoke for real enjoyment. Sizes to suit your taste.

GOLF CLUBS CUT OUT 7,427 TRAPS, SAVE $321,000

P. G. A. Hears Report at Annual Meeting.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Professional Golfers' association has effected a saving of $321,000 on maintenance costs on American courses within the last fifteen months. This interesting and important fact was brought to light yesterday by A. W. Tillinghast, consultant architect for the P. G. A., in his report to the organization as it opened its annual three days meeting at the Congress hotel.

Golf course maintenance is one item of the game too frequently overlooked by the average player. Too often he is so occupied with the immediate tarif on dues and greens fees to realize that these and other costs all are vitally connected with and dependent upon course maintenance expenses. This neglect is as obvious as that which applies to the game's unsung hero, the greenskeeper.

In his capacity as consultant architect for the P. G. A., Tillinghast has inspected 370 courses from coast to coast within a fifteen months' period. More than half of the $321,000 economy total was found in the elimination of unnecessary traps. A total of 7,427 such superfluous traps was done away with. The average maintenance cost on a single trap, including raking, cutting slopes, and hand clipping the grass bordering the sand was reckoned at $25, making a total of $185,675 that was lopped off the upkeep of the 370 courses inspected.

Lose 92 on One Course.

The remainder of the saving was derived from Tillinghast's advice on course construction. Frequently he was able to save clubs which planned to redesign certain holes a considerable sum. Tillinghast has long enjoyed a high fame as a golf architect, having built sixteen courses on which major championships have been played. He is the architect who added the bearded spine of traps to the first fairway at Garden City, N. Y., which saw the finish of the thirty-seven hole final between Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati and Jock McLean of Scotland last September.

On one of the courses visited by Tillinghast, 92 traps were eliminated and 41 at another. Still another course, one of the best known in the country, had one green guarded by seven traps. Only one space, at the right hand front corner of the green, did not have a trap, and that was the one place where one was needed.

Reduce Green Fees.

Professionals attending the meeting yesterday agreed that such unnecessary traps are expensive not only in the direction of course maintenance but also are a bane to the average golfer, driving away thousands of Americans who would play the game were it not for the fact that these traps frequently keep them from breaking 100. The pros are ready to do everything possible to get these same 100 shooters into the 90 class, and feel that ridding courses of traps such as those already eliminated constitutes a long step forward. One pointed out that the Augusta National course at Augusta, Ga., annual scene of the masters' tournament and one of the finest layouts in the country, has only 23 traps on it.

It also was revealed yesterday in a report read for Horton Smith, chairman, who was absent, that the tournament committee for the ensuing year will be reduced from nineteen to three. Robert E. Harlow, manager of the tournament bureau, pointed out in his report that tournament players will have a total of $200,000 in purses to shoot at in the coming playing season.

The election of officers for 1937 is expected to be transacted today, when a discussion of the P. G. A. plan for group instruction, particularly as it applies to high schools and colleges, also will be held.

DE PAUL TEAM PREPARES FOR LAST 2 GAMES

Signal drill and pass defense occupied the De Paul university squad yesterday as it prepared for its closing week of football.

Arkansas Tech will be met next Monday at Russellville, Ark., and the strong Texas Tech eleven at Lubbock Tex., the following Friday. Vladimir [Butch] Vojvodich and Paul Mattei returned to practice yesterday practically recovered from their recent injuries.

Bill Muellner, who scored De Paul's first touchdown against North Dakota last Saturday, was given another day of rest. He is still bothered with a shoulder injury.

NORTH CENTRAL LISTS GAMES FOR BASKET PLAYERS

Coach Len Bieber yesterday announced the 1936-'37 basketball schedule for North Central. It includes five Little Nineteen conference games. The schedule:

Dec. 12—Wilson Junior college at North Central. Dec. 17—Milwaukee Teachers' college at North Central. Dec. 31—Cornell college at North Central. Jan. 9—Carroll college at Waukesha. Jan. 11—Lake Forest at North Central. Jan. 16—Western Michigan State at North Central. Jan. 18—Lake Forest at Lake Forest. Jan. 23—Wheaton at Wheaton. Feb. 1—De Paul at North Central. Feb. 5—Augustana at Rock Island. Feb. 9—Armour Tech at Chicago. Feb. 13—Carroll college at North Central. Feb. 20—Armour Tech at North Central. Feb. 27—Wheaton at North Central. March 5—De Paul at Chicago.

Kid Chocolate Released from Ellis Island on Bond

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Kid Chocolate, former featherweight boxing champion, was released from Ellis Island today under a $500 bond guaranteeing his departure from the United States within four months. Chocolate, born Eligio Sardinias, was sent to Ellis Island yesterday immediately upon his arrival from Cuba.

Time, 1:16 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Overlap, $49.10 straight, $25.60 place, $10.60 show; Marfeu, $10.90 place, $6.90 show; Happy Hostess, $12.80 show. Winner, b. or br. c., 2, by Broadway Jones-Mollie R. Owner, E. K. Bryson. Trainer, H. Baker. Went to post at 1:34½. Off at 1:43. Start poor. Won driving, place same.

OVERLAP ran into lead in final furlong, drew out, but was doing his best to win. MARFEU was hustled along from the start, ran a good race. HAPPY HOSTESS broke good but dropped back, came with a rush at end. YOUNG AGNES ran a fair race. HAPPY HAZEL failed to show any speed. NADIR away poorly and never had a chance. FLYING VIM was practically left.

SECOND RACE—Steeplechase. Two miles. Three year olds and up. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 3:44 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: National Anthem, $9.60 straight, $5.50 place, $3.90 show; Swimalong, $8.40 place, $4.10 show; Good Chance, $2.80 show. Winner, ch. g., 5, by American Flag-Golden Melody. Owner, Brookmeade Stable. Trainer, R. H. Crawford. Went to post at 2:04½. Off at 2:05½. Start good. Won driving, place same.

NATIONAL ANTHEM was kept well up from the start, took lead going into final jump but was doing his best to win. SWIMALONG displayed remarkable improvement over his recent race. GOOD CHANCE was miserably ridden. He was allowed to drop far out of it and at several jumps Little almost fell off. GOOD CHANCE finished gamely on his own courage. REDSHANK closed ground gamely. TOP WAVE opened wide gap early but stopped to a walk.

THIRD RACE—One mile and one-sixteenth. Three year olds and up. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Arrangement of Games an Aid to Purple

fensive play, and in particular its ineffective tackling.

But Wisconsin, if for no other reason than the team spirit manifest this season, has made progress toward a more successful season in the near future. The Badgers should whip Cincinnati Saturday for their second victory of the year.

Gophers Over Texas.

Minnesota, if still as wrought up as it was last week, will pile up a high score against Texas. Purdue scarcely can fail to whip Iowa. Indiana, although hard pressed to beat Syracuse last week, a mental letdown, should have matters under control at Chicago. Northwestern, of course, is favored to whip Michigan, although the Wolverine weight and line defenses may be sufficient to cause the Wildcats trouble.

Ohio State always has had a stumbling block in the Illini. In 1934 Illinois whipped Ohio State, 14 to 13, to keep the Bucks from a share of the Big Ten title. Last fall Illinois held Ohio State to one touchdown, although the Buckeyes were playing in Illinois territory most of the afternoon. Despite this record, Ohio State is the favorite, but here is a fine opening for another major upset.

Grand Duke Is 1st in Southern at Pimlico

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The latest success story on the race track reached some sort of a climax at Pimlico this afternoon when Grand Duke captured the Southern handicap for Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago to give her her twenty-sixth victory of the Maryland season.

The gelded son of Stimulus was home first in a drive to stave off the rush of Bomar Stable's Billy Bee, which in turn led the favored Sergt. Byrne. The winning margin was a length and a half.

Chief Cherokee Last.

Mrs. Denemark, wife of a Chicago automobile dealer, already this year has won approximately $100,000 in purses. The horses are of about the same caliber as those trained by Hirsch Jacobs, but the results attained by the Veteran Bert Michell quite surpass, in proportion, the phenomenal string of victories rolled up by Jacobs.

Grand Duke ran coupled with Chief Cherokee. While it appears Chief Cherokee was generally expected to be the more formidable, the Denemark entry bracketed the field, Grand Duke finishing first under Hilton Dabson's handling and Chief Cherokee bringing up the rear.

Meeting Ends Today.

The Pimlico meeting will come to an end tomorrow with the Walden handicap as the feature. Matey, winner of the Pimlico Futurity after Privileged was disqualified, is named; so are Clodion, Merrymaker, Nor Sir, and Brooklyn, all formidable juveniles. The test is at 1 1-16 miles and carries $7,500 added.

PERRY'S LOSS IS BAD NEWS FOR BRITISH TENNIS

U. S. Officials Predict Davis Cup Victory.

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Fred Perry in a decision to embrace professionalism was received with a variety of emotions by United States Amateur Tennis officials today, but all agreed that England is destined to lose the Davis cup next season and that this country might win it.

"I'm honestly sorry Perry quit the amateur ranks," said Walter L. Pate, captain of recent American cup teams. "There isn't much glory in winning from a weakened team."

Pate figures the 1937 Davis cup fight will be among the United States, Germany and Australia — provided Australia can inspire Jack Crawford to forget his boredom and produce first class tennis.

U. S. Chances Good.

"Without Perry, England's cause appears hopeless," Pate declared. "Bunny Austin alone can't handle the singles asisgnment. And, with Don Budge improving all the time, we stand a great chance of winning back the cup. I think Budge will be the greatest amateur of them all when the new season opens. It's too bad he can't meet Perry again with the cup at stake."

Walter Merrill Hall, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, wasn't particularly astounded.

"I knew it was coming," said Hall. "Yes, it certainly improves our Davis cup chances—and also those of Germany and Australia. But, with the exception of Baron Gottfried von Cramm, there is no amateur singles player left who classes with Budge."

May Intensify Interest.

England now is experiencing the professional blight that already has cut deeply into the amateur ranks of France and the United States.

"It's rough on England," Hall went ont, "but it was to be expected. Under the circumstances, I don't see how England can defend the cup successfully next season. The 1937 winner may be decided on a doubles match. Incidentally, I feel we have a pretty fine doubles team in Don Budge and Gene Mako.

"Perry's retirement from amateur play will take a lot out of the cup matches, but it also will add considerable interest to the outcome."

Perry will inaugurate his professional career Jan. 6 in a match against Ellsworth Vines at Madison Square Garden. The winner must be accepted as king of all netmen, amateur or professional. Vines is undisputed boss of the pro brigade, while Perry won the Wimbledon and U. S. crowns during the 1936 campaign.

PERRY PLANS PICTURE.

Perry made his shift from amateur to pro ranks with one significant gesture. He didn't knock the amateur sport.

"I realize that all I am, and all that I hope to be in the future, I owe to the amateur game," he said.

NO EXHIBITIONS FOR BRADDOCK, SAYS JOE GOULD

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Joe Gould, manager of Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock, told the New York state athletic commission today the announcement that Braddock would meet Jack McCarthy of Boston in a six round exhibition in New Orleans Nov. 16 was erroneous.

Gould made his statement when the commission informed him it would countenance no exhibitions by Braddock until he has posted a check for $5,000 as evidence of his intention to fight Max Schmeling for the title next June.

"Braddock will remain at Hot Springs for another three weeks," Gould said, "and then will come to New York to appear before the commission for a physical examination. He positively will not book exhibitions until they have been approved by the commission."

HARRIET MONROE, FRIEND OF POETS, LEAVES $30,000

Will Names Relatives, Friends, and U. of C.

Miss Harriet Monroe, noted friend of the poets, left the bulk of an estate estimated at $30,000 to relatives, friends, and the University of Chicago in her will filed yesterday with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. Miss Monroe died on Sept. 26 at Arequipa, Peru, at the age of 76 years.

The largest single bequest is $6,000 for Poetry, a magazine of verse, which Miss Monroe founded and published. The bequest is to be used in the discretion of the executors, Miss Monroe's brother, William S. Monroe, 64 East Elm street; her sister, Mrs. Lucy Calhoun of Pekin, China, and Edwin S. Fletcher, husband of Miss Monroe's niece.

$5,000 Left to U. of C.

A bequest of $5,000 is made to the University of Chicago to establish a foundation for the advancement and encouragement of poetry. The income is to be accumulated into a $500 prize for "any American poet of distinction or of distinguished promise" to be named by a committee of poets appointed by the president of the university.

As announced soon after Miss Monroe's death, her library of poetry, critical works, original manuscripts, and letters is left to the University of Chicago. The executors are authorized to publish selections from Miss Monroe's books, "Valeria and Other Poems," "You and I," "The Passing Show," and "The Difference," and other poems.

After numerous small bequests, the residue of the estate is left to five relatives and friends.

Attorney Charles H. Hamill, who filed the will, said that according to present plans of the trustees, Miss Monroe's magazine will continue publication until the present volume is completed next September and longer if possible.

A. C. Meyer Leaves $160,000.

The will of Alfred C. Meyer, insurance broker, dividing most of his $160,000 estate between his widow, Elsa, 1755 East 55th street, and the Michael Reese hospital, was admitted to probate yesterday by Edward Luczak, assistant to the Probate judge. Mr. Meyer, who was chairman of the board of the hospital, died at the age of 53 on Oct. 29, of injuries incurred when he was run down by an automobile in front of his home.

Mr. Meyer's will provides that $51,000 of his estate be used to complete payment of pledges totaling $25,000 he made to the hospital in his lifetime. One fund of $50,000 that Mr. Meyer established is the Isaac and Kate Meyer research fund. The other of $25,000, is the Rosette Josephson research fund.

The residue is to be placed in trust for the widow, the principal eventually going to Mr. Meyer's children, Alfred Jr. and Helen. If the son and daughter die without heirs, up to $250,000 of the estate, if it becomes that large, will go to the hospital.

Details of Nash Will.

The will of Mrs. Grace Reid Nash, daughter of a founder of Reid, Murdock & Co., leaving her $30,000 estate to her husband, William Raymond Nash, who lives at the Union League club, was admitted to probate yesterday. Mrs. Nash died in Westport, N. Y., on Sept. 7 at the age of 60 years.

Mrs. Nash's will also provides for the disposition of the larger part of the estate of her father, Simon S. Reid, the value of which is not definitly known. These provisions are contingent upon the death of Mrs. Reid's daughter, Mrs. Clifford W. Barnes of Lake Forest, and on whether Mrs. Barnes leaves any children.

If Mrs. Barnes dies childless the New York Y. M. C. A. will receive $50,000 of Mr. Reid's estate, and a like amount will go to the Presbyterian hospital in Chicago. The rest will be divided among relatives.

ICE HOLDS 50 ORE AND GRAIN SHIPS AT DULUTH DOCK

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Approximately fifty ore and grain vessels were tied up in the Duluth-Superior harbor today, with cold weather delaying ore shipments and handicapping unloading and loading of grain boats.

The first ice of the season in slips along the waterfront was reported during the night. Four inches of ice formed alongside some of the grain elevators in Duluth.

Activities at grain elevators have been hampered because government regulations prohibit unloading and loading during inclement weather conditions.

Diamond Joe Esposito's Widow Freed in Rum Case

Mrs. Camille Esposito, 800 South Oakley boulevard, widow of "Diamond Joe" Esposito, west side politician slain by gangsters several years ago, won a dismissal on charges of violation of the internal revenue laws yesterday before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. On motion of her attorneys the commissioner suppressed the evidence on the ground that a small still in the basement of the Esposito home was seized by agents without a search warant.

One-Armed Gunman Takes Laundry Truck and $32

A one-armed robber met Thomas Fagan, 5822 Honore street, a laundry driver, when he returned to his truck at 705 West 73d street last night after making a delivery. The cripple ordered Fagan to leave his wallet containing $32 on the driver's seat, then entered the truck and drove away.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Night Light

MARION B. STAHL, FORMER CHICAGO LAWYER, IS DEAD

Succumbs to Month's Illness in N. Y.

Marion Barber Stahl, 37 years old, former Chicago lawyer, died in the Doctors' hospital in New York City yesterday after an illness of about a month.

MARION STAHL.

Mr. Stahl was born in West Point, Neb., and was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1923. Two years later he was graduated from the university's law school with the degree of bachelor of law and doctor of jurisprudence.

Upon finishing law school, Mr. Stahl became associated with the Chicago law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis. On Jan. 1, 1934, he moved to New York, becoming a partner in the law firm of Stahl & Updike, general counsel for the New York Daily News and other interests.

Mr. Stahl was a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity and Phi Beta Kappa honorary society. He was a member of the University club of Chicago, and the Cloud club and the Sleepy Hollow Country club of New York. He belonged to the American Bar association and to the local associations in New York and Chicago.

He is survived by his widow, Dorothy Bennetts Stahl; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Stahl of West Point, Neb., and three sisters, Bernice and Edith Stahl of West Point and Mrs. Howard Buffett of Omaha, Neb. Funeral services will be held this afternoon in the residence at 1001 Park avenue, New York.

O'BRIEN AGAIN FAILS TO GO TO COURT HEARING

The elusive Lawrence C. O'Brien, former state representative, failed once more yesterday to keep a promise to pay $140 in back alimony to his estranged wife, Irene Loftus O'Brien.

On Monday a writ of attachment for his arrest was issued by Judge John C. Lewe in the Superior court after O'Brien failed to make a promised court appearance. He sent word through his attorney, Harold J. Berger, that he would appear in court yesterday to pay up.

Yesterday Attorney Berger informed Judge Lewe that his client had been injured in an automobile accident and could not appear. Attorney Berger offered to pay the $140 debt if the writ of attachment were withdrawn, but Judge Lewe refused, and bailifs continued to seek O'Brien to serve the writ.

On Monday it was reported that O'Brien was the man who fled on foot after the car he was driving collided with another at Huron and Dearborn streets.

CHARGES EX-WIFE HIDES FUR COAT FROM THE COURT

Cited before Judge Walter P. Steffen in the Superior court yesterday for nonpayment of $300 alimony, Milton S. Rothschild, 28 years old, charged through his attorney, Samuel L. Golan, that his former wife, Elsie, had changed her mink coat for a cloth one outside the courtroom door.

"Mrs. Rothschild comes from a wealthy family," Attorney Golan said. "She changed coats with her sister before coming in here in order to impress the court with her need." Attorney Jerome B. Strauss for Mrs. Rothschild declared that his client had switched coats merely because she was too warm in the mink garment.

Rothschild, who is secretary of the Illinois Bronze Powder company, was given until Saturday to pay his alimony debt. On his plea that his salary has dropped from $600 a month to $350 he was given leave to petition for a reduction of his $150 a month alimony payments.

Martin Canty, School Board Engineer for 40 Years, Dies

Martin Canty, 75 years old, 1249 West 81st street, a stationary engineer for the board of education for 40 years, died yesterday in the Evangelical hospital. Mr. Canty fractured his right arm in a fall near his home last Oct. 25. He was first employed by the board in 1896 and until the time of the accident he was engineer at the Medill school, 1326 West 14th street.

Found Dead Beside Auto in Garage; Fumes Blamed

Harvard E. Holway, 44 years old, 2724 Farragut avenue, a salesman for a wholesale concern, was found dead yesterday beside his automobile in a garage at 2618 Winona avenue. Death was attributed by the police to motor exhaust fumes.

CHARITY AND CHURCH CHIEF BENEFICIARIES OF $3,500,000 WILL

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Listing an estate estimated at more than $3,500,000, the will of Mrs. Henry Barton Jacobs of Newport and Baltimore was filed in the Orphans' court today. Most of the estate was left to the Protestant Episcopal church and to charities. Mrs. Jacobs' will provided for an annuity of $100,000 for her husband and made a number of bequests to relatives, friends, and employés. One of the chief beneficiaries is a project for surgical aid to children which was instituted by her first husband, Robert F. Garrett.

Mrs. Jacobs, who died last month at her home in Newport, R. I., made provision in the document that the trustees should hold enough of her estate to assure payment of the $100,000 a year to her husband during his lifetime, after which the sum will become part of her residuary estate.

HOLD FUNERAL SERVICES FRIDAY FOR DR. GAHAGAN

Funeral services for Dr. Henry J. Gahagan, noted psychiatrist, will be held at 9:30 a. m. Friday from his residence at 5240 Sheridan road to St. Ita church.

Dr. Gahagan died at St. Joseph's hospital in Aurora Monday after he was struck by an automobile as he descended from a bus in front of the Mercyville sanitarium two miles north of Aurora. He had been medical director of the sanitarium for the last nineteen years. He was 68 years old.

A pontifical requiem mass will be sung at St. Ita church at 10 a. m. with the Rt. Rev. Edward Hoban of Rockford officiating. Interment will be in Mount Hope cemetery, Elgin.

Surviving Dr. Gahagan are his widow, Mrs. Della Cullen Gahagan; two sons, Harry and Paul; a daughter, Mrs. W. R. Meadows, of Elgin, and one sister, Mrs. Catherine Conroy.

MRS. JOHN C. H. BREYTSPRAAK OF EVANSTON DIES

Mrs. Clara Breytspraak, 75 years old, a charter member of the Evanston Woman's club, died Monday evening at her home, 1010 Forest avenue, Evanston, from a heart ailment.

Her golden wedding anniversary was celebrated with her husband, John C. H. Breytspraak, a Chicago silk importer, in March, 1935. He died two months later. Mrs. Breytspraak came to Chicago from London with her parents when she was 8 years old. She had lived in her Forest avenue home for the last 45 years.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today in the Lady chapel of St. Luke's procathedral and burial will be in Memorial Park. Surviving are two sons, John of Evanston and Victor of Crystal Lake, and a daughter, Mrs. Fred E. Bechstein of Evanston.

Mrs. Frederic W. Masters, No. Side Clubwoman, Dies

Mrs. Frederic W. Masters, 55 years old, 2057 Touhy avenue, prominent north side club woman, died at home yesterday after an illness of three weeks. Mrs. Masters was formerly president of the Women's Protective association, president of the Hamlin Park Woman's club, and vice president of the 10th district of the Federation of Women's Clubs. Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 3905 Lincoln avenue. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery.

F. C. Dickson Estate Set at a Million; $10,000 to Widow

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The will of Fred C. Dickson, president of the Indiana Trust company and vice president of the Merchants National bank, was admitted to probate today. Listing personal property of $500,000 and real estate of $500,000, the will directed that $10,000 go to the widow, together with household goods and personal effects; that $1,000 be given to Albert Ferguson and to Janie Fisher, employés, and the rest of the estate goes to his daughter, Mrs. Otto N. Frenzel Jr.

Hold Funeral Services Tomorrow for John Nolan

Funeral services for John E. Nolan, 69 years old, a veteran railroader, will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock in St. Philip Neri church, with interment at Calvary cemetery. Mr. Nolan died Monday at his home, 7418 Jeffery avenue. For 53 years he had been in the railroad business, the last 43 with the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad in track elevation and freight work. He is survived by a son, Joseph.

Louis G. Binger, Explorer of Valley in Africa, Dies

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Louis Gustave Binger, once governor of the Ivory Coast, French possession in West Africa, died today. He explored the valley of the Niger river in Africa in 1887. He was director of African affairs in the ministry of colonies in the late '90s.

SURFACE LINES ACT TO GET NEW TRACK HEARING

Attorney Harry P. Weber, representing the Chicago Surface lines, notified the city yesterday that the company had petitioned the Illinois commerce commission for a hearing on the extension of street car tracks in 87th street between Ingleside and Stony Island avenues. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], member of the council transportation committee, was informed that a hearing would be held on Nov. 25.

Last Oct. 29 the company was enjoined by Judge Harry M. Fisher in the Circuit court from proceeding with a request to the commission for a certificate of convenience and necessity to authorize the proposed extension. Judge Fisher upheld the city's contention that under the home rule utility bill the city has sole power to authorize such extensions.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes were uncertain yesterday as to whether the city would apply for a new writ of prohibition to block the proposed new hearing.

G. H. Gardiner Dies; Law Partner of John W. Davis

29 YEAR OLD BARON BALKED IN HIS PLAN TO WED FIANCEE, 70

Boston, Mass., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Any prospect 29 year old Baron Frary von Blomberg might have had of whisking away his wealthy 70 year old fiancée to New York for marriage there Friday seemingly was blasted today by announcement from the hospital where she is convalescing that she would still be in bed.

At the same time one of Mrs. Frederick E. Snow's three sons, Crocker Snow, widely known aviator, had this to say about the announcement of the impending marriage, made in New York last night by the press agent baron:

Frary, who until his adoption here four years ago by the aged Baroness Adelheid Maria von Blomberg, was plain Bill Frary, could not be reached and those at his downtown publicity office professed to know nothing about his plans.

Mme. Lucie Zora, Former Circus Actress, Is Dead

Fort Pierce, Fla., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Fred Alispaw, 52, known two decades ago as Mme. Lucie Zora, "the world's most daring woman," for her circus exploits, died here today after a year's illness. Born in Fort Pierce, she left as a girl to join a light opera company and later the Sells-Floto circus. She won renown for her ability to handle animals and was said to be the first trainer to team tigers and lions in an act.

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The spectacular rise in United States government obligations again was the outstanding feature of the bond market today. Prices throughout the treasury list soared upward in more active trading as 22 of the 25 long term issues listed established new high levels since their date of issue. Net gains ranged from 1-32d to 15 32d point of a point on a turnover of $3,285,300, compared with sales of $1,268,500 on Monday.

Turnover for all bonds of $16,322,000, face value, topped Monday's $15,795,000 aggregate, the difference being accounted for by increased business in the federal section.

Tax Exempt Bonds Sought.

The persistent demand for tax exempt securities and the strictly higher grade corporate loans was in evidence throughout the day in the over-the-counter market, as well as on the stock exchange. A typical example was the advance in New York City 4¼s of 1981, which added a full point and closed at a new record high at 123-123½.

The character of the market for domestic corporate bonds was changed somewhat today as profit taking developed in many of the recent favorite convertible industrial loans, while a good demand continued for the better grade rail issues. Prices, on the average, were moderately higher on the day.

Railroad Liens Are Strong.

Rail liens were particularly strong, led by Alleghany corporation convertible issues. In contrast, such issues as Allis-Chalmers 4s, American Rolling Mills 4¼s and American Type Founders 5s yielded sharply in moderate trading. An individual feature was the RKO 65 per cent paid certificate issue, which sold at 200, up 42 points from the previous sale made last January.

French dollar bonds were bid up sharply in heavier trading. Nord Railway 6½s advanced 8 points, while the government loans were up 1 to 3¾ points. Other foreign issues, especially the Latin American loans, were in good demand at slightly higher levels.

Mutual Life of New York.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly send me information about the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York?—L. S.

Answer: This company is one of the oldest and largest insurance companies in the world. It is purely mutual, controled by its policyholders. The company has been in business since 1842.

Total admitted assets at the end of 1935 were $1,239,040,000, compared with $1,160,510,000 a year earlier. Of total assets 60 per cent was in bonds, bonds of excellent quality on the whole. Mortgages amounted to 22 per cent and policy loans to 14 per cent of assets.

Total income was $257,204,000 and disbursements were $167,887,000 during 1935, when $268,728,000 of insurance was written. Insurance in force was $3,708,081,000 at the end of 1935. This compared with a high record of $4,464,278,000 at the end of 1930. Cash in assets was 3.6 per cent in 1935, compared with 3.9 per cent in 1934 and 4.4 per cent in 1933. The decline was a natural result of low interest rates. A rate of approximately 3 per cent is required to maintain policy reserves.

Liquid position is excellent, expenses are regarded as remarkably low, and return to policyholders has been low. Reserves are set up mainly on the strongest valuation basis in general use. This company has been ably managed over a long period of time and results achieved by it are considerably above the average in insurance.

Why the Price Dropped.

Investors' Guide: Kindly furnish me with a report and opinion on Commercial Credit common and recent 3¼ per cent bonds. Can you give me the reason for the sudden drop in the common stock recently from 84 to 70?—E. F.

Answer: We are inclosing a report on the company. The reason for the sudden decline which occurred on Oct. 1 was the payment of a 20 per cent stock dividend on Sept. 30. A person with 10 shares on Sept. 30 has 12 shares on Oct. 1, their market value being approximately $840 in either case.

PETROLEUM MEN TERM PRESENT OUTLOOK GOOD

Improvement Described at Convention Here.

Satisfaction with the present situation in the petroleum industry was expressed yesterday before the American Petroleum institute at the Stevens hotel by Axtell J. Byles, president of the organization, and Col. Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Texas railroad commission and of the interstate oil compact commission, which is charged with keeping production in the oil fields at the right levels.

AXTELL J. BYLES.

The present situation is in marked contrast to that which prevailed a few years ago when over-production and disastrous price wars kept this great industrial activity in a constant ferment.

Cites Contributing Factors.

Byles cited the following factors as contributing to the improvement: an unusually large increase in consumptive demand; liquidation of crude oil inventories to a satisfactory extent; discoveries of new supplies of petroleum sufficient to offset the depletion of the period; service to the public maintained at low but steady prices.

"Inventories of finished products, generally speaking, have attained a better balance," he said. "A high rate of employment and wages, reasonable hours and good working conditions for labor have been maintained. The business as a whole has made good progress toward more reasonable profits."

Lauds Compact Commissions.

Col. Thompson lauded efforts of the compact commissions set up by various states to control overproduction which had disastrous consequences in the industry and threatened the fuel supplies of the nation.

"The compact commission was empowered to prevent waste and not to make the price of oil dear," he said. "The oil compact is a constitutional way of approaching a common problem of sovereign oil producing states —waste prevention.

"The petroleum industry can drill itself to death and drown itself in its own oil if it prefers suicide to prosperity. It can be stopped only by intelligent action of the operators themselves."

Coöperation of the petroleum industry with the motor carriers in a study to determine limits of special taxes that should be borne by motor vehicle operators in several states, was urged by Ted V. Rodgers, president of the American Trucking association.

CHICAGO STOCKS FIRMER; 16 MAKE NEW 1936 HIGHS

Trading continued active on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday and most issues at the close where steady to higher. Sixteen issues reached new highs for 1936. Of the 142 issues traded, 58 closed higher, 40 unchanged and 44 lower. The volume amounted to 105,000 shares.

Middle West led trading with a turnover of 13,450 shares and closed equal to its high of the year at 13¾, up ⅛. Warants were also active and rose ⅛. Other new highs included Allied Products common, Butler Brothers, Alfred Decker and Cohn common, Marshall Field common, Illinois Brick and Sundstrand Machine Tool.

Also among the most active issues were Central and South West Utilities common at 8,700 shares, closing off ¼; Chicago corporation common, down ⅛, and Cord corporation, up ⅜.

EGG FUTURES PRICES SET HIGHEST MARKS SINCE 1930

Egg futures yesterday advanced ¼ to ½ cent on the Mercantile exchange to a new high level since 1930. November contracts closed at 28¼ cents a dozen. Continued light receipts and withdrawals of 40,000 cases from cold storage were the bullish incentives. Sales of futures aggregated 284 cars. Fresh egg prices showed little change with refrigerators ¼ cent higher.

Further reports of wage increases and the prospect of a better consumption demand for butter had some effect on butter futures, which closed unchanged to ⅛ cent higher with November at 31⅛ cents a pound. Sales were 111 cars. Potatoes were 1 to 2 cents lower, with January at $2.97 per 100 pounds. Sales, 20 cars. Prices follow:

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today at 3.70c per lb for spots. No sales were reported, but there was a good inquiry at 3.65 for either prompt or later shipment sugars. There was nothing offered below 3.70c, while some holders were asking as high as 3.75c. After advancing a point early on further trade buying and covering, futures reacted under liquidation and scattered trade and commission house selling with the market closing unchanged to 2 points net lower. Sales were 7,400 tons.

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The spectacular rise in United States government obligations again was the outstanding feature of the bond market today. Prices throughout the treasury list soared upward in more active trading as 22 of the 25 long term issues listed established new high levels since their date of issue. Net gains ranged from 1-32d to 15 32d point of a point on a turnover of $3,285,300, compared with sales of $1,268,500 on Monday.

Turnover for all bonds of $16,322,000, face value, topped Monday's $15,795,000 aggregate, the difference being accounted for by increased business in the federal section.

Tax Exempt Bonds Sought.

The persistent demand for tax exempt securities and the strictly higher grade corporate loans was in evidence throughout the day in the over-the-counter market, as well as on the stock exchange. A typical example was the advance in New York City 4¼s of 1981, which added a full point and closed at a new record high at 123-123½.

The character of the market for domestic corporate bonds was changed somewhat today as profit taking developed in many of the recent favorite convertible industrial loans, while a good demand continued for the better grade rail issues. Prices, on the average, were moderately higher on the day.

Railroad Liens Are Strong.

Rail liens were particularly strong, led by Alleghany corporation convertible issues. In contrast, such issues as Allis-Chalmers 4s, American Rolling Mills 4¼s and American Type Founders 5s yielded sharply in moderate trading. An individual feature was the RKO 65 per cent paid certificate issue, which sold at 200, up 42 points from the previous sale made last January.

French dollar bonds were bid up sharply in heavier trading. Nord Railway 6½s advanced 8 points, while the government loans were up 1 to 5¼ points. Other foreign issues, especially the Latin American loans, were in good demand at slightly higher levels.

Mutual Life of New York.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly send me information about the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York?—L. S.

Answer: This company is one of the oldest and largest insurance concerns in the world. It is purely mutual, controled by its policyholders. The company has been in business since 1842.

Total admitted assets at the end of 1935 were $1,239,020,000, compared with $1,160,510,000 a year earlier. Of total assets 60 per cent was in bonds, considered of excellent quality on the whole. Mortgages amounted to 22 per cent and policy loans to 14 per cent of assets.

Total income was $257,204,000 and disbursements were $167,887,000 during 1935, when $268,728,000 of insurance was written. Insurance in force was $3,708,081,000 at the end of 1935. This compared with a high record of $4,464,278,000 at the end of 1930. Cash yield on assets was 3.6 per cent in 1935, compared with 3.9 per cent in 1934 and 4.4 per cent in 1933. The decline was a natural result of low money rates. A rate of approximately 3 per cent is required to maintain policy reserves.

Liquid position is excellent, expenses are regarded as remarkably low, and net cost to policyholders has been low. Reserves are set up mainly on the strongest valuation basis in general use. This company has been ably managed over a long period of time and results achieved by it are considered above the average in insurance business.

Why the Price Dropped.

Investors' Guide: Kindly furnish me with a report and opinion on Commercial Credit common and recent issue of 3¼ per cent bonds. Can you give me the reason for the sudden drop in the common stock recently from 84 to 70?—E. F.

Answer: We are inclosing a report on the company. The reason for the sudden decline which occurred on Oct. 1 was the payment of a 20 per cent stock dividend on Sept. 30. A person with 10 shares on Sept. 30 had 12 shares on Oct. 1 their market value being approximately $840 in either case.

PETROLEUM MEN TERM PRESENT OUTLOOK GOOD

Improvement Described at Convention Here.

Satisfaction with the present situation in the petroleum industry was expressed yesterday before the American Petroleum institute at the Stevens hotel by Axtell J. Byles, president of the organization, and Col. Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Texas railroad commission and of the interstate oil compact commission, which is charged with keeping production in the oil fields at the right levels.

AXTELL J. BYLES.

The present situation is in marked contrast to that which prevailed a few years ago when over-production and disastrous price wars kept this great industrial activity in a constant ferment.

Cites Contributing Factors.

Byles cited the following factors as contributing to the improvement: an unusually large increase in consumptive demand; liquidation of crude oil inventories to a satisfactory extent; discoveries of new supplies of petroleum sufficient to offset the depletion of the period; service to the public maintained at low but steady prices.

"Inventories of finished products, generally speaking, have attained a better balance," he said. "A high rate of employment and wages, reasonable hours and good working conditions for labor have been maintained. The business as a whole has made good progress toward more reasonable profits."

Lauds Compact Commissions.

Col. Thompson lauded efforts of the compact commissions set up by various states to control overproduction which had disastrous consequences in the industry and threatened the fuel supplies of the nation.

"The compact commission was empowered to prevent waste and not to make the price of oil dear," he said. "The oil compact is a constitutional way of approaching a common problem of sovereign oil producing states—waste prevention.

"The petroleum industry can drill itself to death and drown itself in its own oil if it prefers suicide to prosperity. It can be stopped only by intelligent action of the operators themselves."

Coöperation of the petroleum industry with the motor carriers in a study to determine limits of special taxes that should be borne by motor vehicle operators in several states, was urged by Ted V. Rodgers, president of the American Trucking association.

CHICAGO STOCKS FIRMER; 16 MAKE NEW 1936 HIGHS

Trading continued active on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday and most issues at the close where steady to higher. Sixteen issues reached new highs for 1936. Of the 142 issues traded, 58 closed higher, 40 unchanged and 44 lower. The volume amounted to 105,000 shares.

Middle West led trading with a turnover of 13,450 shares and closed equal to its high of the year at 13¾, up ⅛. Warants were also active and rose ⅛. Other new highs included Allied Products common, Butler Brothers, Alfred Decker and Cohn common, Marshall Field common, Illinois Brick and Sundstrand Machine Tool.

Also among the most active issues were Central and South West Utilities common at 8,700 shares, closing off ¼; Chicago corporation common, down ⅛, and Cord corporation, up ⅜.

EGG FUTURES PRICES SET HIGHEST MARKS SINCE 1930

Egg futures yesterday advanced ¼ to ½ cent on the Mercantile exchange to a new high level since 1930. November contracts closed at 28¼ cents a dozen. Continued light receipts and withdrawals of 40,000 cases from cold storage were the bullish incentives. Sales of futures aggregated 284 cars. Fresh egg prices showed little change with refrigerators ¼ cent higher.

Further reports of wage increases and the prospect of a better consumption demand for butter had some effect on butter futures, which closed unchanged to ⅛ cent higher with November at 31⅛ cents a pound. Sales were 111 cars. Potatoes were 1 to 2 cents lower, with January at $2.97 per 100 pounds. Sales, 20 cars. Prices follow:

MIDDLE WEST REPORTS SHARP GAIN IN PROFITS

Plan to Pay Surtax and Boost Surplus.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

Sharply increased earnings for Middle West corporation during the third quarter of this year were indicated yesterday in the income statement issued yesterday for the nine months ended Sept. 30.

D. C. GREEN.

At the same time, President Daniel C. Green announced that directors have decided it the lesser of the two evils to accept the penalty imposed by the federal surtax on undistributed profits rather than sacrifice an opportunity to accumulate some surplus for the new company.

In deciding not to distribute any of its net income through dividends to stockholders, the company estimates that it will be forced to pay the government 20½ per cent of total net taxable income.

$100,907 Set Aside.

Out of earnings for the first nine months of this year the company has set aside $100,907 to provide for taxes. This figure is based on the parent company's net income of $432,466 plus certain reserves not allowed for tax purposes.

"It simply is not good business to try running a company controling $400,000,000 of assets with no surplus whatsoever," said Green. "We started without earned surplus and must try to accumulate some." He added that directors will have an opportunity to change their minds when they meet Dec. 7, but indicated that this is highly improbable.

Middle West corporation is a new company, beginning operations with a clean slate on Nov. 27, 1935, as successor to Middle West Utilities companies, top holding concern of the utility system formerly controled by Samuel Insull and which passed through bankruptcy reorganization.

Tax Considered Unfair.

It is toward this type of company, which needs a breathing spell to enable it to build up a surplus, that business men generally believe the new federal tax on undistributed profits to be particularly unfair.

Consolidated net income of Middle West for the first nine months of this year was $1,317,064, or 40 cents per share after provision for full preferred dividends of all subsidiaries, whether earned or not, by the subsidiary issuing the stock.

Before deduction of $390,500 for unearned dividends on preferred stock of some of the subsidiaries, net income was $1,707,564, or 52 cents per share. Some business men regard this as a more fair basis for computing earnings because, as Green pointed out in his report, unearned dividends are not liabilities until declared and are not a claim against Middle West or any subsidiary other than the one immediately affected by the earnings deficiency.

Improvement Is Marked.

The marked improvement of Middle West during the third quarter is shown by a comparison with figures for the first six months of this year. Net income for the six months was $199,926 or 6 cents a share after deductions for unearned preferred dividends and $889,109 or 27 cents a share before such deductions. The fact that the figure on unearned dividends for the full nine months was little more than half the $689,183 during the first six months itself is indicative of the improvement.

Some, who discard both of the net income figures, hold that earning power is reflected by the amount that actually could be distributed in dividends to Middle West by its subsidiaries. Because of the involved situations throughout the system that figure was $816,176 for the nine months and $520,538 for the first six months.

Subsidiary Profits Higher.

Operating revenues of the subsidiaries amounted to $51,437,420 in the first nine months this year, compared with $46,621,240 in the corresponding 1935 period. Their combined net income was $8,402,005, contrasted with $5,380,998 during the first nine months of last year.

Green reported that the system has $22,500,000 in cash—$2,000,000 in the parent company, $2,200,000 in Middle West of Canada, and $18,300,000 in other subsidiaries.

OCTOBER HOME BUILDING 45 PCT. OVER LAST YEAR

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Home building in October jumped 45 per cent over October last year, the F. W. Dodge corporation reported today. Residential construction started during the month in 37 eastern states totaled $79,736,200, compared with $55,100,300 in 1935.

Total volume of construction of all types in the 37 states reporting for the ten months ended Oct. 31 was placed at $2,267,468,100, compared with $1,392,293,400 in the comparable period last year, an increase of 63 per cent.

U.S. Puts Corn Harvest Near 55 Year Low

Production of corn in the United States this year is 1,526,627,000 bushels, according to the department of agriculture estimate as of Nov. 1. The crop is the second smallest since 1881, and compared with an indicated 1,509,362,000 bushels on Oct. 1. The 1935 harvest aggregated 2,291,629,000 bushels. A crop of 1,478,000,000 bushels was secured in 1934.

Mild fall weather was credited with improving this season's indicated yield for all crops 2 per cent in the last month. But even with this increase, the department said, the crops will be "about 21 per cent below average production" due largely to the summer drouth.

Yield Per Acre Is Low.

Husking returns on corn on Nov. 1 showed a somewhat higher yield per acre than was indicated a month ago. The average yield per acre was 15.5 bushels, the smallest on record, and compared with 24 bushels in 1935 and a 10 year average of 25.4 bushels.

Relatively little change was shown in the corn crop in the states of largest production as compared with the preceding month.

	November, 1936.	October, 1936.	Final 1935.
Ohio	120,582	116,928	157,608
Indiana	111,900	111,900	160,474

Total U. S.	1,526,627	1,509,362	2,291,689

No report was made this month on the wheat, oats, rye, and barley crops. The final official estimate on 1936 production of all grains will be issued on Dec. 18.

Production of soy beans in the six important commercial states aggregated 26,054,000 bushels this year, compared with 37,691,000 bushels in 1935 and a 1928-'32 average of 10,204,000 bushels.

Potato Crop Below Average.

The potato crop was estimated at 332,244,000 bushels, compared with 387,678,000 bushels in 1935 and a 1928-'32 average of 372,116,000 bushels.

Pastures showed further improvement in October, particularly along the eastern and southern portions of the drouth area.

Crop estimates were slightly higher than a month ago for sweet potatoes, apples, tobacco, peanuts, sugar beets, and buckwheat. Indicated production this year compared with 1935 follows:

Buckwheat, bu.	6,456,000	8,220,000

DRIVE TO BOOST CHICAGO STOCK MARKET. URGED

A concerted drive to boost business on the Chicago Stock exchange and coöperation by men in the cashiers' cages were urged last night by Thaddeus R. Benson, president of the exchange, and Joseph A. Rushton, chairman of the Chicago Association of Stock Exchange Firms, at the annual fall dinner meeting of the La Salle Street Cashiers at the Hotel Sherman.

"The Chicago Stock exchange is doing and will continue to do everything within its power to bring about a greater financial Chicago," said Benson. He made a plea for a long term view on the plan to develop a greater financial middle west, saying that the exchange is looking ahead fifteen years and more in its development program. The growth in volume and listings on the exchange are only "a drop in the bucket" compared with potentialities.

"Less than 20 per cent of the listed securities business originating in Chicago goes to the Chicago Stock exchange," Benson asserted. "To improve that percentage will mean a great increase in our volume."

10 MONTH TRUCK SALES TOP TOTAL FOR ALL OF 1929

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Retail sales of motor trucks in the first ten months of this year exceeded the total for all of 1929, which previously was the peak mark for the industry, Arthur C. Butler, secretary of the motor truck committee of the Automobile Manufacturers' association, reported today. Sales jumped to 575,000 units for the ten months, compared with the entire 1929 sales of 527,057 units, he said. It is estimated, said Butler, that the year's sales will total 680,000 vehicles, which would represent a 24 per cent gain over 1935.

September Exports Decline.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The commerce department reported today a decline of passenger car exports in September. The total for the month was 4,445 units, valued at $2,796,572. The lowest recorded since January, 1934. Truck exports amounted to 6,352 units, valued at $3,765,432, the lowest for any month since May, 1935.

MARKETS, BANKS WILL CLOSE TODAY

All financial and commodity markets, banks, and financial houses will be closed in Chicago and other American cities today in observance of Armistice day. Live stock exchanges will be open for business. Chicago stores and most commercial establishments will be open as usual.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES SET RECORDS; OTHER CONCERNS SHOW GAINS

Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday reported record sales for late autumn. Sales for the tenth period this year, which is from Oct. 9 to Nov. 5, totaled $49,200,311, against $37,057,198 for the corresponding 1935 period, an increase of $12,143,113, or 32.8 per cent.

For the first ten periods of Sears-Roebuck's fiscal year, or from Jan. 30 to Nov. 5, sales amounted to $387,932,818, compared with $305,301,296 in the corresponding periods last year, an increase of 27 per cent, and also a new record.

The J. C. Penney company reported October sales of $28,952,204, the largest for the month in the history of the company. This compares with sales of $24,023,064 for the same month last year, representing an increase of 20.5 per cent. For the first ten months this year sales of the company totaled $195,612,985, against $169,612,985, a gain of 15 per cent.

The Kroger Grocery and Baking company reported for the four weeks ended Oct. 31 total sales of $18,468,742, against $17,768,092 in the like period of 1935.

The Lerner Stores corporation had sales of $3,191,993 for October, compared with $2,787,754 for the same month last year, a gain of 14.5 per cent.

DOLLAR EASES AS SILVER PRICE AGAIN ADVANCES

In London, bar silver reached a new high for the year at 22 15-16 pence [about 50.32 cents] an ounce, up 1 1-16 pence. The price is now 2 15-16 pence above the level on Nov. 2 and compares with the previous high for the year of 22¾ pence established Jan. 2. The price for foreign metal at New York remained at 47½ cents an ounce following an upturn of 2¾ cent Monday.

Dutch guilders scored the sharpest advance in the New York exchange market yesterday, rising .23 of a cent to close at 53.87 cents. The British pound gained ⅝ cent to $4.88 5-16, and the French franc .00⅝ of a cent to 4.64¼ cents. The Belgian belga was .00½ of a cent higher at 16.93 cents.

Gold engaged abroad for American account consisted of $1,840,000 taken in India and $1,526,000 in England. Gold imports of $6,102,100 were received at New York yesterday. Of this amount $3,762,600 came from Canada, $1,554,100 from England, and $785,400 from Belgium.

OPERATING NET OF A. T. & T. RISES IN SEPTEMBER

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—American Telephone and Telegraph company today reported net operating income for September of $1,656,818, compared with $1,450,009 in the same month of 1935.

The figures cover operating activity only and do not include nonoperating income such as interest, dividends, and other revenue received. The total is before operating charges such as interest and rents paid.

File Issue with SEC.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—American Telephone and Telegraph company formally filed with the Securities and Exchange commission today a registration covering $160,000,000 of thirty year 3¼ per cent debentures, due Dec. 1, 1966, as authorized yesterday by the company's directors. According to the statement $140,000,000 of the debentures are to be offered publicly and $20,000,000 are to be sold on or before Feb. 1, 1937, to the trustee of pension funds of the company and certain of its subsidiaries. Proceeds are to be applied to the retirement of $150,000,000 of 35 year 5 per cent debentures.

Libbey-Owens-Ford Starts Building 2 Plant Additions

Toledo, O., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company announced today the award of a contract for two plant additions at the laminated glass center of the company here to cost $150,000. Work started today. The improvements are in addition to a $750,000 plant expansion now under way at the Rossford, O., plant.

N. Y. Central's Earnings Rise Far Over 1935

The New York Central railroad yesterday reported sharply higher earnings for September compared with the same month last year, along with other important railroads.

For September the New York Central had net income, after fixed charges, of $1,133,374, equal to 23 cents a share, compared with $277,895, or 5 cents a share, in September, 1935. Net railway operating income for the latest month totaled $4,356,071, against $3,797,744 in the same month last year.

For the first nine months of this year the railroad reported net income, after fixed charges, of $3,501,306, equal to 70 cents a share, against a deficit of $6,358,081 for the corresponding period of 1935.

Great Northern Earns More.

The Great Northern railroad reported net income for the first nine months of 1936 totaled $3,209,176, equal to $1.20 a share, against $1,425,435, or 57 cents a share, in the corresponding months of a year ago. Net income for September amounted to $2,432,124, compared with $3,133,351 in September, 1935.

The Indiana Harbor Belt reported net income, after fixed charges, of $147,108 for September, equivalent to $1.94 a share, compared with $129,134, or $1.70 a share, for September, 1935. Net railway operating income amounted to $187,356, against $169,420. For the first nine months of this year net income, after fixed charges, was $1,264,629, a gain of $367,342 over the corresponding period last year. Net railway operating income for September totaled $1,617,821, compared with $1,267,214 a year ago.

Lake Erie Income Increases.

The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie reported September net income, after fixed charges, of $529,261, equivalent to 61 cents a share. This compares with $288,867, or 33 cents a share, in September, 1935. Net railway operating income for September amounted to $605,037, against $324,992. For the nine months ended Sept. 30 net income totaled $3,367,553, against $2,341,261 in the corresponding period last year. Net railway operating income totaled $3,917,998, compared with $2,885,396.

Net income after fixed charges for September of the Rutland railroad was $2,617, against a deficit in the same month last year of $13,490. Net railway operating income for September was $24,949, against $16,616. For the nine months ended Sept. 30 net deficit, after fixed charges, was $198,384, against a deficit of $382,178 for the first nine months of 1935.

FEDERAL REPORT SHOWS RISE IN COST OF LIVING

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Secretary Perkins said today that the average living costs for families of wage earners and lower salaried workers in 32 cities of the United States increased 0.4 per cent between July 15 to Sept. 15.

The September index for living costs was 82.4, compared with 82 on July 15, the average costs in the 1923-'25 period being used as 100. Comparison with Oct. 15, 1935, showed an increase of 2.1 per cent, the secretary reported. She said the current index is 10.6 per cent above the low point of June, 1933, but 17.3 per cent below December, 1929.

Truck Group Sues to Block Rail Pickup and Delivery

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Master Truckmen of America, Inc., an association of truck operators, filed suit in Federal court today to obtain injunctive relief from a recent order of the interstate commerce commission approving a free pickup and delivery service by railroads under certain conditions. The order is effective Nov. 16. The plaintif alleged the order violates the I. C. C. act and the anti-trust laws.

Declaration of Dividend
SOUTH BEND LATHE WORKS
At a meeting of the board of directors of South Bend Lathe Works, held in South Bend, Indiana, on November 10th, 1936, a regular quarterly dividend of thirty cents (30c) per share was declared on the capital stock of the company, payable December 1, 1936, to holders of record at the close of business on November 20, 1936.

U. S. STEEL SHIPMENTS IN OCTOBER LARGEST FOR MONTH SINCE '29

New York, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The United States Steel corporation announced today shipments of finished steel products by subsidiaries in October totaled 1,007,417 tons, an increase of 45,614 from the September figure and the largest October total since 1929. The increase over October, 1935, was 320,676 tons.

October was the first month in which the big steel producer's shipment tonnage had crossed the million ton mark since May, 1930. Shipments in October, 1929, were 1,242,120 tons.

U. S. MAY BORROW 300 MILLION NEW CASH IN DECEMBER

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Possibility that the treasury may go into the money market next month for $300,000,000 of new cash and that the December financing may aggregate about $1,500,000,000 was discussed today in well-informed fiscal quarters. Nothing will be said officially until Secretary Morgenthau makes a formal announcement, but treasury sources hinted the government may seek to bolster its supply of ready cash.

President Roosevelt has estimated that net new borrowing for this fiscal year will total $750,000,000. About $450,000,000 was borrowed in September, and so a call for an additional $300,000,000 in December would complete demands for new money under that program.

In mid-December $358,000,000 of 2¾ per cent notes and $450,000,000 of discount bills will mature. The treasury also may make provision for $429,000,000 of 3 per cent notes due Feb. 15, which, with $300,000,000 of new borrowing, would bring the financing to $1,537,000,000.

One factor increasing the possibility of new borrowing was seen in Secretary Morgenthau's recent statement that at least $1,000,000,000 would be kept in the treasury's working balance as "insurance" against "times and conditions" abroad.

METALS ADVANCE AGAIN; HIGHEST SINCE LATE '20S

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 10.—The spectacular rise of metals into new high ground for post-depression days continued today when further mark ups in quotations on lead, tin, and export and scrap copper became effective.

Good trade buying and speculative demand sent prices of tin in world markets up to a point more than 10 cents a pound above that of two weeks ago and the highest since the late '20s. Lead prices were boosted $2 a ton today by leading selling interests. This is the fourth advance of $2 a ton of recent months.

While export copper again moved into new high ground since 1931 at 10.90 cents a pound, the spotlight in the "red metal" situation was held by scrap copper. This was marked up an additional $3 a ton today. A like advance was made last week.

Stock Exchange, SEC Will Confer on New Regulation

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—The New York Stock exchange announced today that it had been invited to send representatives to Washington next Wednesday, Nov. 18, to discuss with the Securities and Exchange commission its program of segregating the broker-dealer functions as outlined in a report to congress last June. The exchange group will negotiate, it is understood, directly with the five members of the commission rather than its technical staf.

STOCKS MIXED; SILVERS RISE, MOTORS LOWER

Rails and Steels Dip; Stores Higher.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Irregular price movements marked dealings in stocks today as profit-taking slashed the values of rail, copper, steel, and utility issues while silver mining shares, chemicals and merchandising equities shot forward, many of them to new highs for the year and movement. A total of 117 issues reached new peaks for 1936; one hit a new low.

Trading volume slackened slightly but the market was a broad one and the feeling in the financial community remained fairly cheerful. The first hour followed the pattern of the post-election session with the tape falling a few minutes behind actual operations but the pace was not maintained. Total sales for the session amounted to 2,704,620 shares, compared with 3,139,080 Monday.

Early Prices Strong.

Enough stocks began the day at higher prices to give the market a strong tone but the increased values induced traders to take profits, and irregularity was the rule for the greater part of the day. Much of the turnover was attributed to evening up operations by the professional element and brokers reported considerable switching was taking place in the general list in advance of tomorrow's holiday.

Business news continued to favor the constructive faction with a flow of favorable dividend actions, hastened by a desire to avoid the penalty tax, drawing the greatest attention.

Major Motors Lower.

In the motor section of the list General Motors opened a point lower in response to the extra dividend and employé bonus news and never did find its way back to the previous closing level. Chrysler, one of the main bull targets in recent sessions, also wound up the session with a loss of over a point.

Silver shares, spurred by the rise in prices for the metal and inflationary talk, bounded forward to new high territory. U. S. Smelting was the leader, its gain at one time amounting to 5 points, half of which disappeared before the final bell. American Smelting crossed 100 and tacked up a gain of 1⅝ points; Cerro de Pasco soared 2⅝ to a new high, and McIntyre was bid up $1.

Mercantile shares drew increasing attention from the speculative fraternity on the outlook for a brisk holiday trade which many in the street expect to be improved by the ladling out of millions of dollars in dividends and workers' bonuses.

Macy's, Best, Spiegel May Stern, Kresge, Allied Stores, and Safeway scored gains ranging from fractions to more than 2 points.

Steel Shares Less Active.

Steel shares failed to get anywhere and were less active. Losses of more than a point were sustained by Big Steel and Bethlehem, along with Crucible and Jones & Laughlin.

Except for Atchison and Union Pacific, which lost 1⅞ and 4 points, respectively, setbacks in the carrier sections were mainly of the fractional variety. American Telephone posted a new high before slipping below its previous closing level, and the rest of the utilities hesitated.

Allied Chemical burst loose for a gain of 6 points and Air Reduction set an altitude record with a flareup or nearly 2 points. Columbia Carbon receded 2½ points.

BOARD OF TRADE HOURS CHANGED AFTER MONDAY

Hours of trading in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade beginning next Monday will be between 9:30 a. m. and 1:15 p. m., central standard time, except on Saturday, when the exchange will close at noon, it was announced yesterday following a meeting of the directors.

The new hours will remain in effect until Nov. 24, when members of the exchange will vote on whether to make these hours permanent or to close the grain markets at 1:30 p. m. except on Saturday, instead of at 1:15 p. m. Trading hours adopted in the ballot will become effective on Nov. 25.

The present hours of trading are from 10:15 to 2 p. m., eastern standard time. Beginning next Monday the hours for trading in cotton and securities will be from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m., except on Saturdays, when the hours will be from 9 a. m. to noon.

White Collar Workers Get Steel Pay Boost

A spokesman for the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, biggest subsidiary of United States Steel corporation, said yesterday at Pittsburgh that "white collar" office employés will share in the pay boost going into effect on Nov. 16. At the same time other companies announced wage boosts or bonuses.

Steel men estimated approximately 50,000 "white collar" workers in the industry will share in the general wage increase. Officials said details of the raise are being worked out for the office force so that those receiving low pay will receive a larger rate of increase than others. Carnegie-Illinois has approximately 5,000 in the Pittsburgh-Youngstown district and an equal number in the Chicago-Gary area.

Fairless Tells Stand.

President Benjamin F. Fairless of Carnegie Illinois told a group of employés' representatives in Pittsburgh there is some doubt about the announced pay raise going to workers whose representatives fail to accept the sliding scale pay plan based on the federal cost of living index.

He addressed the closing session of a joint district council, newly organized to settle disputes between the company and its 53,000 workers in the Pittsburgh-Youngstown area.

The company has announced 11 of 19 mills in this area have accepted the plan.

A spokesman for the workers declared that the men will accept their wage increase of approximately 10 per cent, but were "going after more."

Workers' representatives of the Gary steel plants of Carnegie-Illinois decided yesterday to take an informal referendum among the men to learn if the new wage contracts, calling for an approximate increase in pay of 10 per cent, should be signed.

Part of Gary Men Sign.

The 5,500 employés of the sheet mill are the only Gary employés who have both agreed to the increase and signed the contract. At a conference of union representatives and company officials yesterday it was reported that the balance of the 21,500 employés are about evenly divided on the proposition. The dissenters believe that signing the wage contract for a year would prevent them from taking advantage of any further improvement in conditions.

Meanwhile other independent companies formally announced today they will join in increasing wages. These included the Wheeling Steel corporation, employing approximately 20,000, and the McKeesport Tin Plate company at McKeesport, Pa., employing 3,000.

The Harrisburg Steel corporation and the Central Iron and Steel company, both of Harrisburg, Pa., also ordered increases.

The wage increase at Harrisburg Steel corporation affects 1,002 workers, and totals approximately $100,000 additional in the annual pay roll, according to Wilbert Wear, president. Total wages last year amounted to about $1,250,000.

Clock Concern to Pay Bonus.

Other companies announcing wage boosts or bonuses yesterday included the Western Clock company of Peru, Ill., which ordered a bonus equivalent to two weeks' wages for more than 3,000 employés. The payment will be made Dec. 1 and will total approximately $120,000.

A 10 per cent increase in wages was ordered by Interlake Iron company of Toledo, O., effective next Monday. The wage boost will benefit several thousand workers.

Kroehler Manufacturing company, large furniture maker, has boosted employé wages by 5 per cent, effective Nov. 4, P. E. Kroehler, president, announced yesterday. This increase affects 2,000 workers. Additional increases are contemplated for Jan. 1.

Columbian Carbon company ordered wage bonuses of $50 each to employés if with the company since July 1. It employs about 1,500 people.

Order 10 Per Cent Hike.

United Paper Board company at Urbana, O., announced that effective yesterday the 100 employés at the Urbana plant would receive a 10 per cent increase in wages. Harry S. Cutler, superintendent, also said that the boost would go into effect at the company's other plants in New York state.

Paine, Webber & Co., brokerage house, distributed yesterday to all clerical and statistical employés a bonus of an extra week's salary. The bonus goes to about 900 employés in the firm's New York and branch offices.

The Black and Decker Manufacturing company of Towson, Md., announced a bonus of two weeks' pay with exception of comparatively new employés whose bonus will be graded according to the length of service. The payment will be made Dec. 1.

CHRYSLER VOTES $5.50 DIVIDEND; EARNINGS RISE

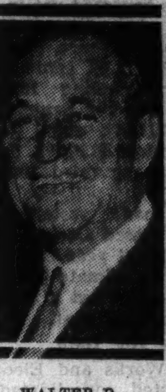
Chrysler Stock Rises

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Chrysler shares took the stock market grade in high gear today, skimming along to $139.25, the day's highest level, following the declaration of a $5.50 dividend. It closed at $138.50. The closing price was up $2.62½ from the New York close and $10.50 higher than the last sale here ten days ago.

Chrysler corporation directors yesterday ordered the payment of $5.50 a share on the common stock, the largest per share disbursement in the history of the huge automobile company. The dividend is payable Dec. 14 to stockholders of record Nov. 20.



WALTER P. CHRYSLER.

Announcement of the payment, which will put $23,729,150 in the pocketbooks of stockholders just before the Christmas holidays, follows the $65,200,000 disbursement ordered for stockholders of the General Motors corporation Monday.

Chrysler corporation paid a $4 dividend Sept. 15. Previously it paid $2.50 in 1936, making the total for the year $12.

Profit Up Sharply.

Walter P. Chrysler, chairman, reported that for the first nine months of this year the corporation earned $41,975,327, equal to $9.63 a share on common stock, compared with $23,184,457, or $5.35 a share, in the same period of 1935. The earnings were after provision for surtax on undistributed profits.

Indicated profits for the third quarter of this year were $12,501,591, equal to $2.80 a common share. During the first nine months of this year the corporation sold 768,503 units, compared with 599,415 in the corresponding period of last year. Sales totaled $479,819,688 compared with $366,711,178.

A dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock of Allegheny Steel company was declared by directors. The regular quarterly payment of $1.75 a share on preferred was also voted.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1936, the company reported net taxes but before surtax on undistributed profits. Earnings were equivalent to 39 cents a common share. This compares with net profit of $246,009 for the corresponding 1935 period, equivalent to 31 cents a share. Harry E. Sheldon, president, said profits for October were in excess of $200,000 after taxes but before undistributed profits surtax. He added that the company is running at full capacity.

Gulf Oil Triples Rate.

The Gulf Oil corporation declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on its 4,800,000 shares of outstanding stock, an increase of 50 cents over the previous quarterly payments this year, and moved to issue a 100 per cent stock dividend.

President J. F. Drake disclosed the stock issue plan after stockholders authorized an increase in the company's stated capitalization from $120,000,000 to $300,000,000 by increasing the par $25 stock to 12,000,000 shares. The board, whose chairman is W. L. Mellon, nephew of Andrew W. Mellon, delayed action on the stock dividend pending state authorization of the changed capital.

The stock dividend, if and when issued, would have a par value of approximately $113,450,000. The stock now is selling around $110 on the New York curb, having dropped $1 today. It has sold as low as $72 this year.

Columbian Carbon Acts.

WESTERN UNION QUARTER PROFIT BEST SINCE 1929

Improvement Reported by Other Big Concerns.

Substantial increases in earnings for the third quarter of this year and for the first nine months were reported yesterday by the Western Union Telegraph company. Third quarter profit of $1,955,302, equal to $1.87 a share, was the largest for the period since 1929. In the third quarter of 1935 net profit was $1,515,164, or $1.45 a share.

Net income for the first nine months of this year was $5,010,446, equal to $4.79 a share, compared with $3,414,903, or $3.26 a share in the corresponding 1935 period.

Profit Up Sharply.

The Addressograph-Multigraph corporation reported for the first nine months of this year net income of $875,147, equal to $1.17 a share, compared with $462,010, or 62 cents a share in the same 1935 period. September quarter net income was $217,017, equal to 29 cents a share, compared with $186,191, equal to 25 cents a share, for the third quarter of last year.

Colorado Fuel and Iron corporation and subsidiaries reported net income for the first nine months of $875,147, equal to $1.17 a share, compared with $462,010, or 62 cents a share, in the corresponding 1935 period. Net income for the September quarter was $217,017, equal to 29 cents a share, against $186,191, or 25 cents a share, in the third 1935 quarter.

Estimates were made yesterday that net income of Alfred Decker & Cohn, Inc., for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1936, will approximate $150,000, compared with actual net of $64,340 in the preceding fiscal year.

Utility Reports Big Gain.

American Water Works and Electric company reported consolidated net income for the twelve months ended Sept. 30 of $4,704,186, equal to $1.67 a share, against $3,083,660, or $1.08 a share for the twelve months ended Sept. 30, 1935.

Net income of $1,253,813, equivalent to 64 cents a share, was reported for the third quarter by the New Jersey Zinc company. This compares with $1,168,003, or 59 cents a share, in the third 1935 period. For the first nine months of this year net income was $3,593,585, equal to $1.83 a share, compared with $3,342,216, or $1.70 a share a year ago.

The Pittston company reported for the nine months ended Sept. 30 consolidated net loss of $1,135,817, compared with a net loss of $1,848,844 a year ago.

COTTON FUTURES DECLINE ON HEAVY HEDGING SALES

Cotton futures declined yesterday due to the heavy hedging sales by the south, which more than offset aggressive buying by the trade, and reports of an extremely active demand for cotton cloths. Closing sales of futures in Chicago were at net losses of 5 to 15 points. Other American markets declined 5 to 14 points. [A point equals 1-100 cent a pound or 5 cents a bale.]

Sales of cotton cloths at New York so far in November were estimated in excess of 100,000,000 yards. The domestic demand has been stimulated by fears that a prospective advance in the wages of textile operators would be passed on to the consumer.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 15 points lower with New Orleans at 12.20 cents; New York, 12.15 cents; Houston, 11.95 cents a pound. Prices follow:

stock at the rate of one-fiftieth of a share for each common share held. Of this declaration 50 cents represents the regularly quarterly rate and $1.50 an extra payment.

National Oats company ordered a special dividend of $1 on its shares. Northern Pipe Line company voted a 35 cent dividend, against 15 cents on July 1. Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, Ltd., ordered a 5 cent extra and the regular monthly dividend of the same amount.

Approve Final Dividends.

Advance Aluminum Castings voted an initial dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock. Hancock Oil of California announced an extra dividend of 12½ cents a share on both the class A and class B stocks.

Atlas Takes Action.

Atlas corporation declared an initial quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the 6 per cent preferred stock, the first payment since the consolidation of Shenandoah corporation, Sterling Securities, and the Pacific Eastern corporation with Atlas corporation.

The Kansas City Southern Railway company resumed dividends on its 4 per cent preferred stock with a declaration on $1 a share. This makes the first payment on the stock since 50 cents a share was disbursed April 15, 1933.

United States Freight company voted an extra dividend of 75 cents a share and a regular quarterly of 25 cents on common. The last extra disbursement was 25 cents a share paid Dec. 1, 1935.

LEHMAN URGES NEED FOR BETTER TRUST CONTROL

Against Segregation from Banking Houses.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—Robert Lehman, president of the Lehman corporation, 90 million dollar investment trust, recommended additional regulations for controlling the investment trust industry today before the Securities and Exchange commission. Lehman is a cousin of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York and a partner in Lehman brothers banking house which sponsors the trust.

ROBERT LEHMAN.

The proposals for a mild policing of investment trusts were made at the windup of a two day hearing into the affairs of Lehman corporation. The SEC is conducting the inquiry for the purpose of determining what kind of new powers it will ask of congress at the forthcoming session.

Stresses Value of Experience.

Lehman's suggestions, consisting mainly of publicity regarding transactions and operations for the education of shareholders, stressed the value of experience in a trust sponsored by an investment house. He declared that the segregation of investment trusts from investment banking houses was against the best interests of the public.

He proposed that investment trusts issue quarterly reports to their stockholders, which would also be filed with the exchanges and the SEC. The reports would furnish full public information on operations, including such facts as direct transactions, underwriting activities, and brokerage commissions. These should be based upon standard accounting principles, Lehman said, to be developed through a committee of representatives of the SEC and investment trusts.

Full Publicity Urged.

"The most desirable method of eliminating the possibility of 'unloading,'" said Lehman, "whether investment trusts are being managed by investment bankers or by others, is through regulation that requires complete disclosure of all direct transactions. Stockholders could then be relied upon to enforce their existing legal rights against controling persons who have profited at their expense.

"Only if experience should demonstrate that this solution is inadequate, should the further step be considered of prohibiting any transactions between investment trusts and directors and controling stockholders as principals."

FAMOUS GLASS FIRMS IN EAST TO CONSOLIDATE

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Acquisition of the Macbeth-Evans Glass company of Pittsburgh by the Corning Glass works, said to be the world's largest maker of technical glassware, was announced today in a joint statement issued by the two companies. Only the ratification by the stockholders remains to be received and this is expected to take place in time to permit the consolidation by Jan. 1.

Macbeth-Evans was founded in 1872. The Corning company, whose main plant is at Corning, N. Y., had its birth nearly 100 years ago.

Business Bits

Paul H. Davis and Arthur W. Wakeley, original partners in the firm of Paul H. Davis & Co., celebrated the 20th anniversary of its founding yesterday. Davis has been president of the Chicago Stock exchange twice and is a governing member of the New York Stock exchange.

Robert J. Graf, president of H. M. Byllesby & Co., yesterday announced the election of William G. Pohl as secretary and treasurer, and of J. J. Shinners, vice president, as a member of the board of directors of the company.

Henry P. Warren Jr. has been elected vice president of E. H. Rollins & Sons. Inc., according to an announcement made yesterday by the investment banking firm.

L. M. Jones, assistant general passenger agent, has been promoted to assistant passenger trafic manager of the Milwaukee road. William J. Cannon has been made general passenger agent and Joseph Caldwell has been appointed first assistant general passenger agent.

Effective Jan. 1 the creative and production departments of Erwin, Wasey & Co., Ltd., Chicago, will be moved to the New York office at 420 Lexington avenue, S. J. Schwinn, vice president, announced yesterday.

Graham Polk has joined the Kelvinator corporation to succeed H. A. Dahl as Chicago district manager of the household appliance division, it was announced yesterday.

John A. Moloney, former editor of the Chicago Merchant, has joined the sales staf of the Big Four Advertising Carriers, it was announced yesterday by Ralph Goodman, general manager of the advertising agency.

Stuart Peabody of New York, director of advertising and commercial research of the Borden company, will address the Chicago Federated Advertising club tomorrow at its luncheon meeting in the Hotel Sherman. His subject will be "Advertising and the New Deal Plurality."

BYLLESBY CO. GIVES UP CONTROL OF TWO OPERATING CONCERNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—A break in the united front of the public utility holding companies against the "death sentence" act was seen today when H. M. Byllesby & Co. of Chicago filed an application with the Securities and Exchange commission declaring it not to be a holding company.

The application was based on a voting trust agreement whereby the Byllesby company relinquishes control of the class B common stock held by it in the Standard Power and Light corporation, which, in turn, owns a majority of the common stock of Standard Gas and Electric company, neither of which is a registered holding company.

Class B common stock has power to elect a minority of the board of directors of Standard Power and Light, and these directors have the right to elect a majority of the board of Standard Gas and Electric.

According to the application, the voting trust agreement delegates control of the bulk of the holdings of Byllesby to Bernard W. Lynch, Henry C. Cummins, and Mathew A. Morrison, none of whom is a director or an officer of Byllesby. The three men are directors of Standard Power and Light. Lynch is president and Cummins vice president of Standard Gas and Electric.

OFFICIALS PROMOTED.

Election of William G. Pohl as secretary and treasurer of H. M. Byllesby & Co. and of J. J. Shinners, vice president, as a director was announced yesterday by Robert J. Olaf, president of the organization. Previously Pohl was assistant secretary, assistant treasurer, and a director.

LICHTENSTEIN SEES CONTINUED LOW MONEY RATE

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 10.—[Special.]—Interest rates will remain low for the next two or three years, because of the influence of government activities on the money market, but after that time a steady rise will occur, Dr. Walter Lichtenstein, vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, predicted today at the second annual conference on banking at the University of Illinois.

"As long as the budget is not balanced and the government therefore continues to borrow heavily, interest rates will be kept low," he asserted.

Among the ways which the government has at its disposal for influencing the money market, he explained, are continuing to raise reserve requirements or selling the large portfolio of bonds now held by federal reserve banks, using the stabilization fund, and shifting bonds accumulating in various government bureaus, such as the FDIC, the RFC, and the Social Security administration when that begins to function.

CORN DECLINES; FARMERS MORE WILLING TO SELL

Much Grain Is Bought for Future Delivery.

Prices of corn futures declined 1 to 1½ cents a bushel yesterday as the result of a material increase in purchases of cash corn for deferred shipment from the country and general evening up operations for the government crop report, which was made public after the close of the session. December corn led the decline and closed at $1.01¾ a bushel, or 2½ cents under the high point on Monday.

Purchases of cash corn by Chicago interests yesterday for deferred shipment from the country aggregated 173,000 bushels, the largest day's business since the new crop started to move from farms to terminal markets. Part of the grain was secured from Michigan and Ohio points. The two states normally ship their surplus corn to Buffalo and other eastern markets.

Corn Buying Lacks Snap.

There was not the snap to the buying of corn futures yesterday which has been so much in evidence lately. Last week December corn advanced 10 cents a bushel. The prospective heavier movement of cash corn was regarded as evidence that farmers were satisfied with the prevailing price level. Cash corn yesterday declined 1 to 2 cents a bushel in the sample market. Shipping sales aggregated 54,000 bushels.

Closing of spreads between December and May corn, the former being sold and the May future bought, narrowed the price difference between the two deliveries to 6¾ cents.

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Month ago.
Wheat	$1.14⅝	$1.15⅛	$1.15⅝
Corn	1.01¾	1.03¼	.95¼
Rye	.42⅞	.43	.41⅝
Barley	.85⅝	.86⅝	.82⅝

Trading in Wheat Light.

Speculative operations in wheat futures were relatively light and the market showed an easy undertone. Closing trades were at net losses of ¼ to ⅝ cent a bushel. Part of the weakness was in sympathy with the Winnipeg market, which declined a cent a bushel due mainly to a lack of foreign demand for Canadian cash wheat and somewhat better reports regarding the outlook for the new Argentine crop. Liverpool wheat futures closed ¼ cent higher to ¾ cent lower.

Trading in oats futures was light and closing prices showed little change from Monday. Rye declined as much as a cent a bushel in sympathy with wheat and corn.

A large trade was transacted in soy bean futures within a narrow range of prices. Cash interests were on both sides of the market. Closing trades were at losses of ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel. Sales of futures were estimated at 400,000 bushels.

PACKERS HANDLE MORE LIVE STOCK THAN LAST YEAR

Cattle Killing in October Particularly Large.

Slaughtering of all live stock was stepped up considerably during October. A report of the department of agriculture shows that packers under federal inspection at all points slaughtered 1,124,175 commercial cattle, a new eighteen year record for October, and, barring the two war years 1917 and 1918, the largest number ever killed during that month.

In September packers killed 1,071,452 commercial cattle. The kill a year ago also was large for October, the total being 1,083,044. Cattle killing in October has been increasing steadily for the last four years. In that month of 1932 packers slaughtered 694,463. The following year the October kill was 861,349 and in 1934 it was up to 980,956.

Calves Killed Set Record.

Calves kiled last month in plants under federal inspection, at 585,425, set a new record high for October, and compared with 531,000 a year ago, the previous high.

The hog slaughter increased more than 1,000,000 head last month, the total, at 3,491,671, comparing with 2,403,342 in September. It was 1,356,000 greater than the October slaughter of 1935, an increase of 63 per cent. However, last year's kill was among the lowest on record.

The sheep slaughter, at 1,741,798, compared with 1,592,912 in September and with 1,764,535 a year ago. Barring last year and 1931 the slaughter last month is the biggest October kill on record.

Ten Months' Slaughter Higher.

In the first ten months of 1936 packers killed 14,098,830 sheep, against 14,868,549 a year ago. Other live stock is substantially ahead of the 1935 figures. The cattle slaughter this year, at 8,996,589 head, compares with 7,827,398 the first ten months of last year.

Hogs slaughtered this year, at 27,082,233, compared with 20,761,094 in the ten months of 1935, which was one of the lowest on record. Two years ago packers killed 35,367,560 in ten months, and three years ago the ten months' total was up to 38,194,807, not including the 6,410,866 pigs and sows destroyed by the government that year.

Lower Rates for Duplicate Night Telegrams in City

Western Union Telegraph company yesterday announced new low rates for night letters in quantity filed for delivery within the city. The service becomes effective Dec. 1. The regular rate for a night letter of fifty words or less within the city is 20 cents, the company pointed out, but under the new schedule night letters filed in quantities of 25 or more containing identical texts, signed by the same person or concern and filed for transmission simultaneously, the reductions will range from 10 to 50 per cent.

CORN AND HOG WEAKNESS DEPRESSES LARD FUTURES

Hedging pressure and commission house selling, induced by weakness in the corn and hog markets, depressed lard futures yesterday. Closing trades declined 7½ to 12½ cents. December showed the largest loss. Investment purchases checked the break. Clear bellies [salt pork] closed nominally 10 cents higher.

Cash lard was quoted at $11.75; loose, $11.30; leaf, $11.12½, and clear bellies at $15.25 per 100 pounds. Prices follow:

LOST AND FOUND.

TO FINDERS.

If you have found a cat or dog, a pocketbook, jewelry, or fur, and cannot locate the owner through the "Lost and Found" advertisments in The Tribune call and go through the "Lost and Found" index at the PUBLIC SERVICE OFFICE, 1 SOUTH DEARBORN-STREET.

TO LOSERS.

If you are listed in the telephone directory you can charge an advertisment of your lost article by telephoning Miss Miller of The Tribune ad taking department, Superior 0100. Your advertisment receives the benefit of free listing in the Tribune Public Service office mentioned above for a period of two months. This service facilitates the recovery of lost articles advertised.

Announcing
Promise-to-Pay PLAN
No Security—No Endorsers.
No Wage Assignments.
Just Your Plain Note
Now you can get a loan on just your Promise-to-Pay. If you can make regular payments, sign only a plain note and nothing else. It is just like borrowing from a friend on a simple I. O. U.—no endorsers, no wage assignments, co-makers, furniture, real estate, stocks, bonds, diamonds, or other security required. We take you at your word and give you the money you need on just your Promise-to-Pay. Unbelievably simple, yet there is no catch to this offer. Your honesty, integrity, and ability to pay are absolutely the sole requirements for a loan on the New Promise-to-Pay Plan.
Reduced Rates
Monthly charges are 3% on balances up to $100 and only 2% on balances above $100. Also all other types of loans at the same reduced cost. For full particulars, telephone, write, or stop in the office nearest you.

HOW YOU CAN BORROW.
1. If you can make monthly payments you can qualify for a loan.
2. You do not need co-makers or endorsers.
3. No inquiries made of employer or friends.
HOW YOU CAN REPAY.
1. Payments on all loans are small. For example, payments on a $200 loan are $10 per month plus interest charges on a 20 month schedule.
2. Monthly rate is 2% on the balance above $100, 3% on $100 or less. This is substantially less than the lawful maximum on all loans over $100.

SPANISH LOYALISTS DIG TRENCHES IN PATH OF REBELS—Typical reinforced trench dug near Madrid by the loyalists who are battling to save the city from the rebels. The rebels are storming the city by land and air, many bombs dropping yesterday near the heart of Madrid. Part of the city was in flames last night. (Story on page 1.)

SCOTCH AMBULANCE UNIT AIDS SPANISH WAR VICTIMS—Members of Scottish unit at work on the Madrid front removing wounded soldiers from ambulance to field hospital. The battle between the loyal defenders and Fascist rebels for control of the capital raged on yesterday with planes dropping bombs on terror stricken residents.
